Stalin States Peace Aims To British Laborites

Quoted on Desire To Settle Economic And Political Issues With United States

Warsaw, Oct. 17 (AP).—Eight Labor members of the British Parliament touring Europe declared tonight that Prime Minister Stalin had told them in Russia that he had no thought of making war and wanted to settle political and economic issues with the United States.

The Britons, headed by Konni Zilliacus, said Stalin added that if the United States and Britain did not desire to settle differences, "we shall wait until they regain their reason."

Zilliacus said he and the seven other leftwing members of Parliament, on a visit to Moscow to study Russian trade unions and factories, were flown in a special plane to Stalin's villa at Sochi on the Black Sea.

Two-Hour Interview

The parliamentary group quoted Stalin as saying in a two-hour interview:

"We want as close trade relations with Great Britain as possible. We are interested in the development of trade relations between our two countries.

"The sooner the two states agree, the better for good partners in common work.

"Just as the Soviet Union has always stood for improvement of political and economic relations with all countries, so it now stands for such improvement, beginning with the United States and Great Britain.

"If these countries wish to improve relations with the Soviet Union, they will be welcomed. We shall be prepared to go forward to meet them irrespective of what economic setup may be in those countries.

Cooperation Possible

"Cooperation between countries having different economic systems is possible. That already has been proved by experience.

"If, however, they do not want to improve their relations with the Soviet Union, we shall have to do without them. We shall nevertheless be able to carry on.

"We will wait until they regain their reason and understand cooperation between nations is necessary. We can wait. We are a patient people."

Russia Asked to Curb Reckless Talk in U. N.

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Soviet delegates heard an appeal today to stop harsh language and reckless accusations which have made so many debates sound like barroom brawls.

The appeal came from British Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross during a debate in the Political Committee on the American proposal for a year-round standing committee of the Assembly.

He pleaded with delegates "to try and put aside the vituperation, the recriminations, the inflammatory and provocative speeches, one leading to another, the suspicions, the talk of war."

He begged them "to picture international politics as something other than a perpetual struggle whereby one side tries to get the better of the other one."

Gromyko Replies

The only response he got was an icy speech from Russia's Andrei Gromyko saying that the American plan "cannot fail to encourage warmongering reactionaries who are even now rubbing their hands with pleasure" because it would give them "free rein for carrying out their criminal plans."

Gromyko warned that the creation of such a standing committee would be illegal, and that Russia would never "compromise" on the issue.

To many delegates this sounded

Speaking Frank...

Byrnes Disturbed by Stalin's Ignorance of U. N. Vote Plan

By James F. Byrnes

This is a serialization of James F. Byrnes' "Speaking Frankly"—six of 15 chapters of the book published October 15, 1947, by Harper & Brothers. Copyright, 1947, by James F. Byrnes Foundation (A Charitable Trust).

IN OCTOBER, 1943, Secretary of State Cordell Hull had taken with him to Moscow the first proposal that finally developed into the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a United Nations organization. He and the President believed it would be far easier to obtain agreement on a plan for a peace organization while the war was still in progress. How right they were!

At the conclusion of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, in the autumn of 1944, the only major point remaining at issue was the formula for voting in the Security Council. The Soviet delegation had insisted that all decisions in the Security Council must be by a unanimous vote on the part of the major powers. We agreed that no decision committing our military forces to action should be taken without our consent, but did not believe the right of veto should extend to all matters.

We finally had devised a compromise formula which we hoped the Soviets could be persuaded to accept, and the President sent it direct to Marshal Stalin on December 5. At the same time, the State Department prepared and delivered to the Soviet and British embassies in Washington lengthy statements in explanation and support of the President's proposal.

It was on the second day of the conference that Secretary Stettinius formally presented our proposal and the President then asked for its immediate consideration. In supporting the plan, the President referred to the agreement reached at Tehran in which the three heads of government declared: "We recognize fully that supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace that will command the good will of the overwhelming mass of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."

Conflicting reports of the exchange that followed were presented in the Security Council of the United Nations in the spring of 1947 by the Soviet and the British representatives during a discussion of the veto power and its relationship to the control of atomic energy. Because of this, and because the veto power has remained one of the most controversial issues of the United Nations structure, it may be of interest to present here the major portion of my shorthand record of the views expressed on the veto issue at Yalta.

SINCE the United States, as the author of the proposal, had clearly stated its position, the exchange was almost entirely between Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin. It follows:

Prime Minister: "The peace of the world depends upon the lasting friendship of the three great powers, but His Majesty's Government feel we should be putting ourselves in a false position if we put ourselves in the position of trying to rule the world when our desire is to serve the world and preserve it from a renewal of the frightful horrors which have fallen upon the mass of its inhabitants. We should make a broad submission to the opinion of the world within the limits stated. We should have the right to state our case against any case stated by the Chinese, for instance, in the case of Hongkong. There is no question that we could not be required to give back Hongkong to the Chinese if we did not feel that was the right thing to do. On the other hand I feel it would be wrong if China did not have an opportunity to state its case fully. In the same way, if Egypt raises a question against the British affecting the Suez Canal, as has been suggested, I would submit to all the procedure outlined in this statement. I would do this without fear because British rights would be preserved under paragraph 3 when our veto would kill action if we chose to use it.

"I presume, Mr. President, if Argentina raises a question against the United States, that the United States will submit to all the procedure of the last five paragraphs and would not vote on the issue. However, the United States could raise its fundamental objections in respect to all the measures to be taken under paragraph 3. . . .

"His Majesty's Government see no danger from their point of view in associating themselves with the proposals of the United States. We see great advantage in the three great powers not assuming the position of rulers of all the rest of the world without even allowing them to state their case. It would not be right for us with the great power we possess to take that position, denying them the right to state their case, and to have measures taken to adjust difficulties short of the powers set out in paragraph 3, on which powers we rely if we are not convinced by our friends and colleagues on the Security Council."

THE Marshal: "I would like to have this document to study because it is difficult on hearing it read to come to any conclusion. I think that the Dumbarton Oaks decisions have, as an objective, not only to secure to every nation the right to express its opinion, but if any nation should raise a question about some important matter, it raises the question in order to get a decision in the matter. I am sure none of those present would dispute the right of every member of the Assembly to express his opinion.

"Mr. Churchill thinks that

Congressmen Have Narrow Escape at Sea

Rep. Margaret Smith Praised for Courage On Crippled Plane

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Courage, poise and cheerfulness displayed by Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) during the ordeal of a four-hour flight over the Atlantic in a crippled plane calmed and reassured eight fellow Congressmen and 18 others aboard, one of them said on their arrival today.

Rep. Smith

Representative Smith and eight other members of the House Armed Services Committee were returning from Berlin where they investigated conditions in the American zone. They took off from Langens Field, the Azores, Tuesday afternoon in an ATC transport, carrying a total of 25 passengers and crew. As Maj. Luke Quinn, one of the passengers, told the story.

"We were out about 800 miles when No. 3 engine conked out, just like that. We were seven hours from Bermuda with strong headwinds facing us, and four hours from the Azores. We turned back and a B-17 flew out to meet us 500 miles out, and give us position reports if we had to ditch.

"Everybody was scared; everybody was aware of the danger. Congresswoman Smith showed remarkable poise and cheerfulness during the return flight. Her calmness was reassuring to passengers and crew alike. It was a bit of a sweat."

Major Quinn added that preparations were made to ditch the plane while flying at 8000 feet. "Mae Wests were donned and seat belts fastened in case another engine stopped," he said.

The crippled plane made it back to the Azores. However, it could not be repaired there, so another plane flew from Washington to pick up the passengers. They stopped over here today and will leave tomorrow for the States.

Other members of the House committee: Dewey Short (R., Mo.), chairman; Landsdale G. Sasscer (R., Md.), George J. Bates (D., Mass.), Gordon Canfield (R., N. J.), John E. Fogarty (D., R. I.), C. W. Bishop (R., Ill.), J. Leroy Johnson (R., Calif.) and Leon H. Gavin (R., Pa.).

Curious Pilot's Experiment Blamed for Airliner's Loop

A veteran pilot's professional curiosity was responsible for the outside loop of an American Airlines skymaster October 8 in which 53 people were shaken up, the Civil Aeronautics Board revealed yesterday.

Sisto

The airline reported the pilot, Capt. Charles R. Sisto had resigned. He had eight years service with the line.

According to the CAB, Sisto was in command of the airplane while it was flying near Mount Riley, Tex., at 8000 feet, but was not in control. Control was held by Capt. John Beck, as observer, while Sisto sat on the jump seat between Beck and the copilot, Capt. Melvin Logan.

Sisto, the CAB reported, decided to throw into position the mechanism which locks the controls while the airplane is on the ground. He wished, the CAB said, "to determine what action, if any, it would have on the control and attitude of the airplane from level flight." He told neither Beck nor Logan what he had done.

Immediately the airplane started to climb, the CAB reported, and Beck manipulated an elevator control to bring it into trim. When this had no effect on the airplane except to set its controls in a dangerous position, Beck thought of the locking mechanism and began turning the elevator control back to normal. 21-Cent Milk Plan Fought In Virginia

Opponents Jam Alexandria Hall In 5-Hour Hearing Over Increase

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A proposed milk price increase which would raise the cost of most home-delivered milk in Greater Washington to 21 cents a quart was bitterly opposed by consumer representatives yesterday.

About 100 milk producers, distributors and consumers, jammed the Alexandria Health Department auditorium yesterday in a five-hour-long price hearing called by the Virginia Milk Commission.

The hearing was to consider a price rise requested by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, which supplied 85 per cent of the milk consumed in this area.

Two Raises Sought

The association's request would increase the price of milk about 1 cent a quart at the farm level. However, dairy distributors at the hearing made it clear that they would seek an additional half-cent increase to help meet their own increased costs.

Most dairies in the area deliver milk to the home now for 19½ cents a quart. The two raises, if approved, would bring the cost to 21 cents.

Representatives of consumer organizations at the hearing greeted the proposals with such cries as "shameful," and "un-American," and threatened that consumers would turn to other milk products as evaporated milk, rather than pay the prices requested.

Price Pattern Seen

Although the hearing officially concerned only milk prices in Virginia, there was no room for doubt that the price established in Virginia would be a pattern for Washington and Maryland, where milk prices are not controlled.

Asked by a member of the Milk Commission if the producers association was seeking to establish a price for the Virginia area or the entire Greater Washington area, Bruce B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the association, replied, "Just Virginia. We'll take care of the others ourselves."

Derrick declared that failure of dairy farmers to obtain adequate prices for milk is driving many of them out of business in this area. He said "Milk has risen only 39.2 per cent since prewar days," and read a long list of far greater increases in other food items.

"Milk is the very best buy of any food at today's price level," he said. He cited the following scale of prices at other cities: Boston, 22 cents; New Haven, Conn., 20; New York, 22½; Philadelphia, 21; Pittsburgh, 19½; Baltimore, 19; Chicago, 22½; Charleston, 21; Hartford, Conn., 20; Richmond, 21.

Derrick cited statistics showing

Bread Price to Rise In East Coast Cities

A one-cent-a-loaf increase in bread prices in Baltimore, New York and other East Coast cities, will be made Monday, the Associated Press reported last night.

The advance is attributed to "the all time high price of $16 a barrel for flour and $3 wheat.

Sales managers of a number of Washington bakeries last night said they had had no word of a price increase here.

Wage Raise Ends French Ship Strike

36,000 Workers Get 15 Per Cent Increase; Paris Subway and Bus Tieup Continues

Paris, Oct. 17 (AP).—Government and maritime union representatives announced tonight an agreement to end the strike which for two days had tied up all French shipping.

The five-day subway and bus strike in Paris remained deadlocked, however, as both the government and Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor stood pat.

A maritime union official said a compromise had been reached granting the 36,000 workers a 15 per cent wage increase. Strikers had demanded 20 per cent.

Cost Million a Day

The strike was estimated by maritime authorities to have cost one million dollars a day.

Parisians who have been bucking the transportation tie-up got some relief when the 24-hour taxicab drivers' sympathy strike ended.

Nearly 800 requisitioned buses and civilian and military trucks, manned by volunteer drivers, carried about 600,000 passengers yesterday, and five new bus lines were put in service by the government today in an effort to break the strike of 30,000 subway and bus workers.

Sabotage Tough

In addition, the government struggled to combat the effects of "sabotage." Special workmen rushed repairs to the machinery of the subway system's power plant, which the government said had been damaged last night.

Three persons were arrested for scattering tacks in front of buses in the emergency service. Several vehicles were put out of action by flat tires.

Doris, Daring Doe, Subs for the DTs In Yonkers Bar

Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 17 (AP).—Three men were quietly quaffing the cup that cheers today in a Yonkers bar when Doris the Doe entered—through a plate glass window.

Doris, 10 months old, then began a 15-minute rampage.

Where she came from nobody knows. A small dog chased her through the window of Brophy's bar. Then Doris jumped the bar, cleared the bar again and dashed out the door as the three dumbfounded customers huddled behind a table.

The doe raced into the Greystone Garage, then ran out while two mechanics leaped into grease pits for safety.

Next Doris tried Carroll's Bar via the doorway. Six men and a woman leaped for corners.

Bleeding and groggy by this time, Doris staggered for the door but Bartender John Moss kayoed her with a baseball bat.

The doe was bleeding so badly, she was killed with two shots.

The Gallup Poll

More Now Say Atom Bomb's Invention Was a Bad Thing

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 17.—The American public has had some second thoughts on the atomic bomb in the 26 months since Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

While a majority continue to believe development of the bomb was a good thing, the number who disagree with that conclusion has more than doubled. Significantly also, the "no opinion" answers have been cut in half.

The following question was asked of several thousand representative Americans during the excitment of September, 1945, and just repeated in a similar Coast-to-Coast survey:

Do you think it was a good thing or a bad thing that the atomic bomb was developed?

	September 1945	TODAY
Good Thing	69%	55%
Bad Thing	17	38
No Opinion	14	7

Several other observations on the public's attitudes toward atomic bombs are possible in the light of the new Institute survey:

1. Realization is growing that the bomb may be an even more effective war weapon than was originally believed. Six out of 10 people today say that they feel the destructive power of the bomb is greater than they first believed.

2. On the other hand, slightly more than half the population continues to have faith that American scientists will be able to develop a defense against atomic attacks.

3. Despite America's strong hopes for a successful United Nations, the public remains wary about placing control of atomic bomb secrets in the U. N. Security Council. Seven out of 10 want the United States and England to keep the secret as long as possible.

4. The opinion is growing that the United States should continue to produce the bombs. The following table compares answers to this question asked in May, 1946, and now: "Should the United States continue to manufacture the atom bomb?"

	May, 1946	TODAY
Should continue	61%	70%
Should not	30	26
No opinion	9	4

5. The fact that more people today think that other nations have solved the riddle may account for the growing desire for continued American atom bomb production.

In answer to the question, "Do you think any other country is already making atom bombs?" the comparative response was as follows:

	May, 1946	TODAY
Yes	42%	59%
No	40	33
No opinion	18	8

$30,000 Fine Imposed

Eugene Casey Gets 6 Months For Fraud on Income Taxes

A Federal judge yesterday sentenced Eugene B. Casey, wartime aide of President Roosevelt, to six months in jail and fined him $30,000 for income tax evasion.

A sentence of 12 additional months in jail was suspended providing the 42-year-old Montgomery County millionaire farmer pays up $282,912 in taxes, penalties and interest due Uncle Sam on Casey's income for 1941, '42 and '43.

Casey also will have to pay court costs and cooperate with Government officials in uncovering any further tax liabilities, in order to avoid spending another year in jail.

The sentence, imposed in Baltimore Federal Court yesterday, is one of the most severe ever handed down in this area for failure to pay income taxes.

The $282,912 in back taxes and assessments which Internal Revenue agents said Casey owes, is in addition to $213,084 in taxes, penalties and interest which Casey paid the day before he was indicted last December.

Washington Internal Revenue officials estimated last night that approximately one half of the levy paid and due the Government is in penalties.

Casey was tried last March for income tax invasion, but the trial wound up with a hung jury. Called to court again yesterday, the man who had served as one of President Roosevelt's six executive assistants with a "passion for anonymity" pleaded nolo contendere (no contest).

Judge W. Calvin Chestnut, after hearing new testimony from the revenue agents, retired and returned with the sentence. The jurist said Casey was "not in a position to plead either ignorance or confusion."

Therefore, in the public interest, the judge declared, he had to impose "something more than a mere fine and suspended sentence." Casey was given until Monday to start serving his sentence. A native of Washington, who through engineering, farming and real estate operations ran up a fortune of more than $2,500,000, Casey took an active role in Demo-

France Gets $100 Million in Nazi-Held Gold

Transfer Involves Board's Award to Belgium, Luxembourg

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Another 104-million-dollar prop was shoved under the French economy yesterday when the "Pot of Gold" commission arranged to deliver that amount immediately to France.

The State Department announced last night that $144,536,550 in monetary gold was being distributed immediately to countries from which it was seized by the Nazis. It later was recovered in Germany by Allied troops.

The American - British - French gold commission meeting at Brussels allotted $104,526,550 to Belgium and Luxembourg and $40,376,250 to the Netherlands. Belgium and Luxembourg have agreed to turn their share over to France, bringing to more than 247 million dollars the emergence funds which have been found for that country in the past week.

Under a 1944 agreement with Belgium and Luxembourg, France is entitled to the gold awarded those two countries. The commission said this agreement was made when France delivered to Belgium and Luxembourg funds moved to France early in the war and later captured there by the Germans.

The State Department said more than 33 million dollars was being set aside for Austria and Italy.

The distribution announced last night was described as "preliminary," since some 200 million dollars still remain in the "gold pot" to be prorated among numerous claimants. The fund remaining, aside from $29,460,375 set aside for Austria and $4,280,625 set aside for Italy, will be held until all claims have been received and studied.

Early distribution to the three countries affected by this action was the result of a request by the United States and Great Britain to speed help for France and Italy. The fund made available to France through Belgium and Luxembourg may be used to bolster the franc or may be sold for dollars at $35 an ounce. In either event, when added to funds being found for that country from other sources, it should contribute considerably to forestalling an

Citizens Food Group Headed By Colliflower

Commissioners Name Stofberg Secretary of Conservation Board

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

James E. Colliflower, veteran community drive leader, was named yesterday by the District Commissioners to head the local Citizens Food Conservation Committee.

Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, was designated as secretary. Stofberg's office at the District Building was selected as committee headquarters by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners issued a proclamation asking District residents "to take the lead in giving full support to the program of the Citizens Food Committee with special observance" of meatless Tuesday, poultryless Thursday, and bread saving.

La Falce Made Special

Colliflower, coal and fuel oil dealer, immediately held a meeting with Stofberg, Edwin M. Lewis of the District Board of Trade and Rick La Falce, executive secretary of last year's Washington Food Conservation Committee.

The genial chairman then announced that he plans an "all-embracive" committee and that letters inviting civic, service, labor, Parent-Teachers and consumer groups to designate representatives will be sent shortly.

Colliflower named La Falce, former Warner Brothers Theater public relations man, as a committee official and explained that he would be paid from the Commissioners' emergency funds. He also announced he planned to ask the District Board of Trade to designate an officer to act as his executive vice chairman.

Stofberg said the committee would meet Thursday at 3:30 p. m. in the board room of the old District Building to hear a representative of the national Citizens Food Committee.

Colliflower said he anticipated intensive committee operations "at least to the first of the year."

A native of Washington, Colliflower has a long record of community service. He has been president of the Cosmopolitan Club, the District Board of Trade, Metropolitan Police Boys Club, the Merchants and Manufacturers Associ-

Sharp Words Exchanged

High Court Justices Wrangle Over Search and Seize Power

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Supreme Court justices wrangled on the bench yesterday over a Government bid for still more power to search and seize.

Justice Black—who wants the police given a free hand to look for evidence—swapped sharp words with Justices Frankfurter and Jackson—who lean toward the civil rights side of the issue.

Frankfurter heckled Government counsel so roundly that Black accused him of arguing the case from the bench.

As usual in public, the judges didn't aim their words straight at each other; they banked them like pool balls off the lawyers in front of the bench. But not a syllable missed its target.

The case before the court grew out of a year in jail given a petty Buffalo black marketeer—but the stake was far bigger: the outcome will tell the police how far they can go in searching people.

At the height of the war, on April 14, 1944, the OPA got a tip that a man named Frank Buttitta was going to sell some gasoline coupons. Two OPA agents and a Buffalo detective trailed Buttitta's car. When it stopped they found him at the wheel and a Government informer in the back seat, with two 100-gallon coupons in his hand. He said he got these from Buttitta.

Next to Buttitta in the front seat was Michael LiRe, who had not figured in the case before.

Bakers Agree To Feature Flour-Saving Loaves, Pies

Industry Draws Up Plans to Conserve 3 Million Bushels Of Wheat Monthly

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

American housewives will be asked to buy small-sized loaves of bread and "open-faced" pies, to help feed the people of Europe this winter.

The baking industry yesterday agreed with the Citizens Food Committee upon such a program to conserve flour—enough, they predict, to provide an additional three million bushels of wheat a month for foreign relief.

An 11-point program designed to achieve that goal was adopted. The points are:

1. Bakers making different sizes of bread to "feature" the smaller sizes.

2. To use greater quantities of non-critical ingredients in baking, such as fruits, raisins and sugar in combination with flour.

3. To use non-critical materials instead of wheat flour for "dusting" specially bread and rolls.

To Bake Fewer Items

4. To cut down the number of varieties of bread, cakes, pies, rolls and other products, and stop baking items for which there is small demand.

5. To feature two-layer instead of three-layer cakes, one-crust pies, and other wheat-conserving items.

6. To cut to the limit all waste of raw materials and finished products in bakeries and in distributing methods.

7. To buy and store raw materials with extreme care to avoid waste and deterioration.

8. To plan production schedules to avoid waste.

9. To cooperate with restaurants, hotels and other public eating places to conserve bakery products.

10. To use special wrappers, urging housewives to buy wisely, and telling how to use leftover products.

11. To publicize the program through radio, newspapers, special wrappers, package inserts, truck panels, outdoor advertising and other methods.

Smaller Loaves Impractical

Plans to produce smaller-sized loaves of bread than the customary sizes were discarded because of difficulties involved. These included smaller bread pans for baking, new machinery for slicing and wrapping, and smaller wrappers. Also interfering with such plans were local and State laws fixing bread weights and labelling requirements.

The plan, Chairman Charles Luckman of the food committee said, will save 10½ million bushels of wheat a year through production and distribution safeguards, and an additional 20 million bushels by housewives who follow food-conservation methods proposed.

The bakers also estimated that 5½ million bushels more might be saved through cooperation of public eating places.

Food committee authorities thought it significant that shortly after announcement of the bakers' conservation program, wheat prices slumped for the first decline for any one day trading since margin requirements were doubled, virtually presidential order, October 6.

December Wheat Off 5 Cents

December wheat had opened in Chicago at a new high of $3.03½ a bushel. It later dropped to $2.98½. Other grains reacted with it, corn dropping 1¾ to 3½ cents a bushel and oats almost 2 cents.

Hogs also continued a downward trend, after the midweek average at Chicago had touched a new all-time high. Swine prices

Byrnes Disturbed by Stalin's Ignorance of U. N. Vote Plan

China, if it raised the question of Hongkong, would be content only with expressing opinion here. He may be mistaken. China will demand a decision in the matter and so would Egypt. Egypt will not have much pleasure in expressing an opinion that the Suez Canal should be returned to Egypt, but would demand a decision on the matter. Therefore, the matter is much more serious than merely expressing an opinion. Also, I would like to ask Mr. Churchill to name the power which may intend to dominate the world. I am sure Great Britain does not want to dominate the world. So one is removed from suspicion. I am sure the United States does not wish to do so, so another is excluded from the powers having intentions to dominate the world."

Mr. Churchill: "May I answer?"

The Marshal: "In a minute. When will the great powers accept the provisions that would absolve them from the charge that they intend to dominate the world? I will study the document. At this time it is not very clear to me. I think it is a more serious question than the right of a power to express its intentions or the desire of some power to dominate the world."

Prime Minister: "I know that under the leaders of the three powers as represented here we may feel safe. But these leaders may not live forever. In 10 years' time we may disappear. A new generation will come which did not experience the horrors of war and may probably forget what we have gone through. We would like to secure the peace for at least 50 years. We have now to build up such a status, such a plan, that we can put as many obstacles as possible to the coming generation quarreling among themselves."

THE MARSHAL: "I think that the task is to secure our unity in the future, and, for this purpose, we must agree upon such a covenant as would best serve that purpose. The danger in the future is the possibility of conflicts among ourselves. If there be unity, then the danger from Germany will not be great. Now we have to think how we can create a situation where the three powers here represented, and China—"

Prime Minister: "—and France."

The Marshal: "Yes, and we will keep a united front. I must apologize to the conference. I have been very busy with other matters and had no chance to study this question in detail.

"We are accused of attaching too great importance to the procedure 'how to vote.' We are guilty. We attach great importance to the question of voting. All questions are decided by votes and we are interested in the decisions and not in the discussions. Suppose China is a permanent member and demands Hongkong be returned to her. I can assure Mr. Churchill that China will not be alone. They will have some friends in the Assembly. That would be true of Egypt in the case mentioned."

Prime Minister: "I could say 'no.' I would have a right to say that the powers of the World Security Organization could not be used against us if we remained unconvinced."

The Marshal: "There is another danger. My colleagues in Moscow cannot forget the case which occurred in 1939 during the Russian-Finnish War, when Britain and France used the League of Nations against us and eventually expelled us and isolated us."

The President: "It is entirely satisfactory for the Marshal to have sufficient time to study the proposal."

I was deeply disturbed by the clear evidence that Stalin had not considered or even read our proposal on voting in the Security Council even though it had been sent to him by diplomatic air pouch on December 5. This was February 6, and it occurred to me that if in those 63 days he had not familiarized himself with the subject, he could not be greatly interested in the United Nations Organization. It was all the more impressive since this certainly was the only proposal on the agenda with which he was not entirely familiar. My concern remained even though at the next day's meeting Mr. Molotov announced the Soviet Union's acceptance of our proposal, which was later adopted in substantially the same form at San Francisco.

At the Yalta Conference, in February, 1945, Marshal Stalin secured agreement from President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill on his claim to separate votes in the United Nations for Byelorussia and the Ukraine. This fact became public only some months later when it was reported for the first time by the New York Herald Tribune. In tomorrow's installment of "Speaking Frankly," Mr. Byrnes reveals for the first time the full story of how President Roosevelt asked in return for extra votes for the United States. Churchill and Stalin agreed, although President Roosevelt later decided not to claim the extra votes. This story, a top priority secret at the time of the conference, is told in tomorrow's installment of this book.

Byrnes Reveals British Deal With Russia

James F. Byrnes disclosed here yesterday that the British agreed in 1944 to let Russia have "a largely preponderant voice" in Romania and Bulgaria.

The statement follows:

The Associated Press, under dateline, London, October 16, stated: "The British Foreign Office today declared 'incorrect' a statement attributed t James F. Byrnes that Great Britain and Russia agreed in 1944 to set up spheres of influence placing Greece in the British orbit and Romania in the Soviet realm."

The Foreign Office spokesman said the statement was made in "Speaking Frankly." He further said, "It is true, however, that there was some discussion in 1944 between the big powers as to how the best pressure could be brought to bear on the enemy. As a result it was agreed that, militarily, it would be best for Britain to operate in and from Greece, leaving Romania to the Russians. At best the discussions could be said to have ended in an agreement for coordinating military strategy."

In "Speaking Frankly," I said nothing about "spheres of influence.' The Foreign Office spokesman misquotes my statement on page 53, which reads:

"In the fall of 1944, Churchill and his Foreign Minister, Anthony Eden, had visited Moscow and, while there was no formal agreement, we knew they had reached the formal understanding that, if the British found it necessary to take military action to quell internal disorders in Greece, the Soviets would not interfere. In return, the British would recognize the right of the Soviets to take the lead in maintaining order in Romania."

Evidently the Foreign Office spokesman is not informed. My statement was based on a message from Prime Minister Churchill to President Roosevelt, dated March 8, 1945, in the first paragraph of which, after declaring Soviet actions in Romania, Mr Churcill said:

"We have been hampered in our protests against these developments by the fact that, in order to have the freedom to save Greece, Eden and I at Moscow in October recognized that Russia should have a largely preponderant voice in Romania and Bulgaria, while we took the lead in Greece. Stalin adhered very strictly to this understanding during the 30 days' fighting against the Communists and ELAS in the city of Athens, in spite of the fact that all this was most disagreeable to him and those around him."

It should be noted that Churchill was talking of Soviet action in 1945, not 1947.

British Say Criticism Was Based on Error

London, Oct. 17 (AP).—The British Foreign Office tonight blamed a "misunderstanding" for its criticism of James F. Byrnes' book, "Speaking Frankly."

A spokesman who said he had not read the book declared that the Foreign Office was "erroneously informed" yesterday that Byrnes' memoirs said that there was an Anglo-Soviet agreement on Balkan spheres of influence.

Eaton Hopes to Limit Hearings to a Week

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) told newsmen yesterday he hopes to limit House hearings on stop-gap European aid to one week.

Eaton, who has summoned a meeting of his foreign affairs group for November 19, said the hearings will be limited to interior aid, leaving the Marshall Plan for later consideration. He added:

"If hearings take longer than a week, there is no use fooling with them. The patioent may have died."

The New Jersey Republican declined to commit himself on a special session pending the outcome of the Government's quest for dollars and credits to keep relief pipelines full.

If the search fails to turn up enough aid to tide Europe over until February, he said a special session should be called.

Senate Majority Whip Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) told reporters he thought the question of a special session was for the President to determine.

Iowa Bees Bet Eggs Against Weatherman

Ames, Iowa, Oct. 17 (AP).—Honey bees are gambling the lives of their babies on their own weather prediction of fine fall weather for at least anohter three weeks, Floyd B. Paddock, Iowa State College apiarist, said today.

The bee expert noted the State's bees, which gave Iowa top position in honey production this year, still are laying eggs, and these take three weeks to hatch.

"Bees expect reasonably favorable weather during that period," Paddock said. "They cannot afford to miss their guess because they must maintain a temperature of 94 degrees in the hives during incubation. After that time the temperature may drop to 57."

like a hint that the Soviet Union and its satellites would boycott any such committee.

The Shawcross speech today was the first major protest in this assembly against the violence of the tactics used by Andrei Vishinsky of Russia, Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia and some of their followers. It has become such a habit to ascribe "criminal" motives to others that some delegates of the Soviet satellites themselves are troubled. There will probably be more vituperative language in a few days when the Political Committee starts debating Vishinsky's resolution to prevent "warmongering."

Sees it as Safety Valve

If the Security Council persists in its "habitual impasses," said the Briton, the result might well be "those forms of warmongering which Mr. Vishinsky would so rightly deplore."

"The existence of the suggested interim committee would provide a useful safety valve for steam which might otherwise be penned up and explode at the regular annual or some special session or in less desirable ways," he said.

Shawcross made a sedulous effort to show that his delegation had watered down the original American resolution for an interim committee, so that it would be acceptable to the largest number of delegates. Under the British proposal, he said, the proposed 57-nation committee would work by a two-thirds vote, would be barred from discussing economic or trusteeship questions, and would be unable to send commissions of inquiry abroad without the prior consent of the countries concerned.

Changes Approved

These changes already have the informal approval of the American delegation. As Shawcross describes its proposed duties, they would be (1) to prepare, by doing preliminary work on subjects to come before the regular Assembly, and (2) to follow up by disposing of subjects left unfinished by the Assembly.

He was supported by France, Argentina and Brazil.

Gromyko recalled the Dumbarton Oaks discussions of 1944, when the four major powers reached preliminary agreement on the Charter, and said such a year-round committee was never contemplated at that time.

Behind the American proposal, he went on, was the fact that the Soviet veto prevented the United States from making the Security Council "its pliable tool."

Changes in the proposed wording will make no difference, he said; the American proposal for a standing committee "has the same meaning as that of the so-called Marshall Plan or the Truman Doctrine." All of them, he charged, are attempts to split the United Nations into blocs and "to undermine cooperation," especially among the major powers.

be taken to resolve the issues between Russia and the Anglo-Saxon powers.

Last night, Zilliacus, a leader of the British Labor Party's left wing, said the United States Congress was unlikely to approve any further credits to Britain "except under intolerable political conditions."

He said recent creation of a Communist information bureau in Belgrade by the Communist parties of nine European nations was an answer to what he called the threat of American imperialism and pressure on Europe.

Zilliacus said that before seeing Stalin the group had a three-hour talk with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Zilliacus was a British intelligence agent in Siberia from 1914 to 1919.

Britain Ends Century Rule Over Burma

London, Oct. 17 (AP).—A treaty under which Britain's rule or more than a century over Burma will be terminated formally in January was signed here today by Prime Minister Attlee for Britain and Prime Minister Thakin Nu of Burma.

This was the second time Burma has received her "independence." In 1943 during the Japanese occupation—when British rule was broken temporarily—the Japanese announced the granting of independence to Burma. U Ba Maw, then puppet premier, was arrested following the assassination of Thakin Nu's predecessor, U Aung San. Former premier U Saw is now on trial at Rangoon in connection with the assassination. Both U Saw and U Ba Maw are opponents of Aung San and the present federal Burmese Republic.

Although details of the treaty were not disclosed, British spokesmen said officially it related to defense, finance, economics and other legal and contractural obligations between the two countries.

Government sources said it was likely Britain obtained rights in the defense of Burma, and possibly the right to maintain bases there.

John Freeman, parliamentary undersecretary of war, recently discussed with a Burmese defense mission in Rangoon all aspects of British-Burmese and regional defense problems. The talks ended in an agreement, the terms of which have been kept secret.

Attlee said the British government was "sorry to think that our long association with Burma as a member of the comonwealth should now be ending, but this is a matter which is for the decision of the people of Burma."

Burma's constituent assembly voted for Republican status outside the empire after last April's elections.

plete this, however, Sisto threw the locking gear out of action.

The airplane, with its nose trimed sharply down, went into a steep dive, and over onto its back in the first half of an outside loop. The 48 passengers, most of whom were not belted to their seats, were thrown to the top of the cabin and flying baggage mingled with them.

Neither Beck nor Sisto had his seat belt fastened, the CAB said, and both were thrown to the front of the cockpit. However, Logan's belt wa sfastened and he remained in his seat and rolled the airplane out of its upside-down position not more than 400 feet above the ground.

The CAB pointed out that first questioning of the crew led to the belief the maneuver was caused by a badly functioning automatic pilot. The facts were uncovered, CAB revealed, during a second investigation.

Truman Talks 'Off the Record' With Editorial Writer Group

President Truman yesterday told a group of the Nation's editorial writers that the United States is sending aid to Europe not to get credit, but "because it's right and because it's necessary."

Mr. Truman spoke in an off-the-record conference with 90 members of the National Conference of Editorial Writers, whom he met in his office. The statement was in answer to a question of one writer who wanted to know of "the United States is going to get any credit for all the help we are giving the rest of the world."

President's Statement.

The President's statement, released by the White House, was as follows:

"We are not doing this for credit. We are doing it because it's right and because it's necessary."

Besides the meeting with Mr. Truman, the writers held off-the-record conferences on atomic energy with David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and other Commission officials.

In an afternoon session, the writers heard John H. Crider, editor of the Boston Herald, discussed municipal editorial campaigns, and the efforts of the Boston Herald to clean up Boston politics.

Among other speakers were Robert Lasch, chief editorial writer of the Chicago Sun; Richard B. Fowler of the Kansas City Star; W. H. Grimes, editor of the Wall Street Journal; Donovan H. Richardson, chief editorial writer of the Christian Science Monitor; Paul H. Trescott of the Philadelphia Bulletin.

This morning the writers hear Defense Secretary Forrestal; Undersecretary Kenneth Royall, Army; J. Sullivan, Navy, and W. Stymington, Air; also W. Smith, Ambassador to Russia.

In the afternoon, election officers and selection of place for next year's conference are scheduled. At 5:30, the editors will be entertained at a reception given by the Washington Star and The Washington Post.

U. S. Submits Plan For Korea Election

Troop Withdrawal Is Conditioned on Free Government

By a Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The United States made it clear today that it would not withdraw its 45,000 troops from Korea until an independent national government had been established.

To create such a government, the United States suggested, elections for a national Korean assembly should be held in the Soviet and American zones under the supervision of a United Nations commission. The new assembly would then decide what form of government Korea should have.

The Korean government would set up its own national security forces, and the Soviet and American occupying forces would then be withdrawn.

Russia Must Agree

The American plan was embodied in a draft resolution submitted to the United Nations Assembly today. If the Assembly approves it by a two-thirds vote, the plan still cannot become effective unless Russia agrees—and the Russians have always objected to United Nations commissions in territory under their control.

Nevertheless the Americans consider it useful and important to get the support and understanding of two thirds of the United Nations for a plan to end the protracted deadlock in Korea.

A copy of the plan was given in advance to the Soviet delegation, together with a covering letter from United States Delegate Warren R. Austin to Secretary General Trygve Lie. The letter recalled that three days after the United States succeeded in getting the Korean issue on the Assembly's agenda, the Soviet commander in Korea suddenly suggested prompt withdrawal of the Soviet and American occupying troops.

Today's proposal did not constitute an answer to the Soviet request for withdrawal, but its contents will be made the subject of whatever answer the State Department decides to send.

Russian-Trained Koreans

In northern Korea, with 10 million people, the Russians have approximately 90,000 occupying troops; in the southern zone, with 20 million, the Americans have 45,000. In addition there is a Russian-trained Korean army in the Soviet zone, estimated conservatively at 125,000 men.

The American plan today said nothing about the future of this Soviet-trained Korean force, but John Foster Dulles of the American delegation said later that it might be merged with the future national army of Korea.

Dulles, explaining to the press, conceded that there probably would be different election practices in the two zones, but said it was necessary to take this risk.

The sudden Soviet request for immediate withdrawal of troops "puts the cart before the horse," former Assistant Secretary of State John H. Hilldring, a member of the American delegation, said on the radio tonight.

Appeal to U. N.

Jews Speak For Partition Of Holy Land

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 17 (NYHT).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine appealed to the United Nations today to achieve a peaceful partition of the Holy Land, but asserted that it is preparing its own administrative and military plan as a matter of self-preservation in the event of a U. N. failure and British withdrawal.

Moshe Shertok, agency political chief, told the Palestine Committee of the U. N. General Assembly, "We pray that . . . a clash may be avoided, but it is our duty to be ready for the worst. I think we shall be."

Just as the Arabs of Palestine and the neighboring Arab states have asserted repeatedly that they will neve raccept partition, so did the agency through Shertok reemphasize that the Jews will not take a Palestine political defeat lying down.

"He (the Jew) must have his own Jewish state," Shertok said. "Nothing will stifle in his soul the urge for freedom in his own land. If he is robbed of his due, he will not submit."

Tomorrow the Agency will present its last speaker, 72-year-old Dr. Chaim Weizmann, the sire of modern political Zionism, And the Arab Higher Committee of Palestine will close with an address from its vice chairman, Jamal el Husseini.

Then, on Monday, the Palestine Committee hopes to get down to business on whether the Holy Land is to be partioned and, if so, how and under what enforcement plan.

Other U. N. actions, according to the United Press, include:

The United States joined colonial powers in defeating a Russian resolution to allow colonies to participate in a U. N. Economic Commission for Asia without the consent of their mother countries. The Economic Committee rejected the Soviet move, 19 to 13, after Canada branded it a "red herring in both of its popular connotations." Arabs supported the resolution.

Britain offered, in the U. N. legal committee, a resolution to "remind" U. N. members that they are suppose dto give up war criminals for trial. This countered a Ukrainian move to send a U. N. investigating committee into Europe's displaced persons camps to search for alleged war criminals. The Soviet bloc accuses the western powers of hiding the criminals. The United States and Russia have insisted that they have given up all real war criminals, but will continue to harbor persons wanted on political charges.—Editor's notel

Enrollments Sought by Jews For Hagana

Jerusalem, Oct. 1 (U.P.).—Jewish Community councils in the main cities throughout Palestine today began a public enrollment of all male and female Jews between the ages of 15 and 50 for the underground army Haganah as a counter-move to alleged Arab roop movements on the Holy Land's borders.

Huge posters called upon men and women "who have not registered for their civil duties to do so between October 12 and October 30."

Meanwhile, the Arab extremist underground organization Jihad (Holy War), emulating Jewish underground tactics, exploded their first pamphlet bomb on the Street of Spices in Jerusalem, causing some panic. The pamphlets admitted Jihad's responsibility in the recent bombings of the Swedish, Polish and American consulates.

Arab Politicians Say Troops Camped on Border

London, Oct. 17 (AP).—Two Arab politicians said today 14,000 armed Arabs were camped on Palestine's borders, but both the British foreign office and the colonial office were skeptical.

An army source in Cairo said the Egyptian army was beginning to reniforce its garrison in the Sinai Peninsula opposite Palestine.

Drone Fly's 'Gyroscope' Discovered . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ITS SECRET OF "BLIND" FLYING REVEALED—This model of a common drone fly used by scientists of the Sperry Gyroscope Co., of New York and the Museum of Natural History shows the haltere (arrow) or "gyroscope" which keeps the fly on its course when it can't see where it's going. The tiny balancers stick out under each of the fly's wings like a pair of lady's hat pins. Through high speed photographs, the scientists discovered the fly's halteres are minute shafts which move up and down in a 90-degree arc and perform the same functions as the rotary gyroscope in a plane. The Sperry company has patented the vibratory motion of the fly's balancers hoping that further research will lead to a new and better method of aircraft stabilization, based on aerodynamics of insect flight

German Reds Balk at Order On War Plants

Berlin, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—The working committee of the Communist Party of the three western occupation zones and the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity Party of the Russian zone today announced their opposition to an Anglo-American order to dismantle 682 German war and industrial plants as reparations.

The Communist committee demanded that no peacetime production plants be dismantled and that reparations be paid from current production. It also demanded that the owners of war production plants expropriated not be compensated.

Official organs of the Soviet military administration, however, refrained from comment. One fourth of the plants are scheduled to go to Russia and Poland.

Ten Put to Death at Salonika For Slaying of Greek Airmen

Athens, Oct. 17 (AP).—Ten persons convicted of membership in the Communist organization OPLA, accused of slaying Greek airmen, were executed today at Salonika, the Press Ministry announced.

The announcement corrected earlier press reports which said 52 were executed. The condemned were accused, among other things, of bombing a Greek air force bus in which several officers and men were killed.

A parliamentary commission, meanwhile, completed the drafting of a measure authorizing suspension and confiscation of newspapers which "serve" the guerilla rebellion in the north. Some have been publicizing guerilla broadcasts and criticising the government.

Armory Blast Kills 2

Opelika, Ala., Oct. 17 (AP).—Two National Guardsmen were killed and 15 others burned in a flash fire which followed an explosion of undetermined origin in a basement locker room of the Opelika armory last night. Most of the victims were students at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

British Crown Jewels Shown To Reporters

London, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—A selected group of newspaperment was given a look today at one of the royal treasures—the British crown jewels, valued at between 40 and 80 million dollars.

They were displayed in the 800-year-old Tower of London, behind steel bars and bullet-proof glass, resting in a cage which can speedily disappear into the stone floor.

This was the first public appearance of the jewels since August, 1939, when they were remooved to a secret hiding place for safety because of impending war. It was a wise precaution, for the tower was hit by a buzz bomb.

The crown jewels represent an accumulation dating from King John, who signed the Magna Charta in 1215. His contribution is a jeweled spoon and golden hawklike bird, used tohold the holy oil at coronations.

The most magnificent piece is the imperial crown, which contains the great Star of Africa diamoond, about 3000 other diamonds, the giant Stuart sapphire and the world's most famous ruby.

This ruby was given to Edward, the Black Prince, by Pedro the Cruel in 1367 when, as the official guide remarks, British troops helped Spain out of a sticky corner."

The world's biggest single perfect diamond, weighing more than 500 carats, glistens from the head of the royal scepter. It was cut from the Cullinane Diamond, which weighed more than a pound and a half in the rough.

Women Voters Oppose Ruling On Registrants

The Montgomery County League of Women Voters is in disagreement with the Board of Election Supervisors over at least one of the registration requirements for next year's November election.

The board has ruled that 20-year-olds who will be 21 by election time must wait until after the first of the year to register. The League contends that this is a reversal of the policy of the previous board and will cause inconvenience to new voters who must go to Rockville to register.

League precinct workers say the policy is causing "considerable disappointment" to 20-year-olds attempfing to register now. Richard M. Lansdale, chairman of the board, denied that the policy had been changed.

Justices Swap Sharp Words

Searching DiRe three times, the police found more than 100 forged gas coupons, and for having them he got a year in jail and a $100 fine.

The Second Circuit Court of Appeals set the sentence aside by a 2-to-1 decision. Judge Learned Hand—the famous, 75-year-old liberal—said if people could be jailed on evidence found in such lawless searches, our liberties were in danger.

Frederick Bernays Wiener, assistant attorney general, argued yesterday that Judge Hand was wrong, that it was lawful to search DiRe, first because he was lawfully arrested, second because it was lawful to search the carfi and that must mean it was lawful to search whatever was in the car, in this case Di Re's person.

Frankfurter, who brought his classroom manner with him from Harvard law school, and grills lawyers as he used to quiz students, harried Wiener all through his argument.

Harries Lawyer

Did the police tell DiRe why he was being arrested?

No, Wiener said, but the man was not mystified. Wiener said DiRe must have known what was going on. "Criminals," he said, "do not customarily operate their enterprises as spectator sports. Their financial success generally is in inverse ratio to the attention they provoke."

Frankfurter pointed out that in New York an arrest is void unless the prisoner is told what it is for.

Black asked Wiener whether he was going "to file a brief in reply to Justice Frankfurter's arguments."

"Not arguments, suggestions," Frankfurter snapped, turning to Black, who sits next to him, at his left.

Will File Brief

Wiener plans to file the brief.

Charles J. McDonough of Buffalo argued the case for DiRe. Black asked him a line of questions. One was whether a search warrant for a house would not give a right to search the people in the house.

McDonough said he was not ready with an answer; that the Government hadn't raised the point, and he came here to answer what the Government did raise.

As Wiener closed his case, Jackson asked him whether the Government's search and seizure doctrine would not make it legal to search not only those in a house, when the police had a search warrant, but also guests and visitors.

Would Avoid Extremes

Wiener said the Government did not mean to go to "such flamboyant extremes."

"Why not?" asked Jackson, pointing out that guests might hide things in their pockets. Jackson then reminded the court of Justice Cardozo's warning that we must look for legal principles to expand to their logical limits, so we had best be careful about adopting them in the first place.

When the justices get through disputing the issue among themselves, a decision—and probably a dissent or two—will be handed down, probably several months from now.

308 More Egyptians Die in Cholera Epidemic

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—The cholera epidemic struck unusually hard during the past 24 hours, killing 308 persons and sending 733 to hospitals, the ministry of health communique said tonight. A total of 1574 Egyptians have died of the disease in three and a half weeks.

cratic politics, particularly as a New Dealer. He is the most prominent national figure in the past decade to be found guilty of income tax evasion.

Casey operates six farms in adjacent Montgomery County, and lives on one, near Gaithersburg, with his wife and five children. At one time deputy governor of the Farm Credit Administration, he resigned to stump the country for a third term for Roosevelt. He was active in the unsuccessful move to "purge" Senator Millard Tydings in 1938.

He served as presidential aide from 1941 until late 1944, when he entered the Navy, served at sea in combat areas, and came out of the war as a lieutenant commander.

At his first trial, Casey admitted short-changing the Government $70,000, but said the "mistake was not of intent or fraud."

Casey also offered as a defense the plea that he had left the filing of his income taxes to a Montgomery County school teacher, while making trips around the country on errands for the late President.

"Thank God," he declared, "I am one man who has come out of this Administration and this war period without a suspicion of tainted money."

dropped 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds.

But the market news was not all good. The Agriculture Department's review of milk prices for October said the present average retail price was the highest of any month on "record extending back through 1919."

Prices of milk delivered to homes in 24 cities averaged 19.4 cents a quart for early October, compared with 19 cents in September and a five-year October average of 14.5 cents a quart.

(Washington milk prices of 19.5 cents a quart were still above the Nation's average, in spite of the District's location in the heart of one of the most productive dairying sections of the country. The highest prices recorded were in Miami, at 24 cents a quart.)

Butter, Egg Futures Up

In contrast to grain and hogs, butter and egg futures made strong gains in both Chicago and New York markets.

Another possible response to the food conservation drive was shown in a report by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics that poultry producers are cutting production. Only 32 million chickens were hatched in September, compared with a 1941-45 average of 36 million, although well above last September's 29 million.

The grain conservation program by the bakers, added to the prospective programs by the Nation's brewers and distillers, should make available about one fourth of the 100 million bushels of grain the Government is trying to raise for winter relief in France, Italy and Austria.

Vandenberg, Rested, Leaves Hospital

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 17 (AP).—Senator Arthur W. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), President Pro Tem of the Senate, left Blodgett Hospital today after 11 days' hospitalization for a physical checkup and what his physician described as "a good rest."

The Senator's wife, who recently underwent two operations, remained in the hospital for further treatment.

Man Held in Slaying Of Illinois Woman

Chicago, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Wallace Beardon, 49, wanted for questioning about the mutilation murder of Mrs. Katherine M. Wasil, 35, whose body was found Wednesday in the trunk of her automobile, was arrested at nearby Wheaton today.

Deputies said Beardon, who allegedly stayed with Mrs. Wasil in a tourist cabin the night before, was picked up while walking along a highway. Mrs. Wasil's body was found after the cries of her 16-month-old baby prompted a truck driver to inspect her car.

Brazil, Red Break Seen on Slur of Dutra

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 17 (AP).—A high government source said today that Brazil will break diplomatic relations with Russia as a result of Moscow's failure to apologize for an attack in the government newspaper Izvestia upon President Eurico Gaspar Dutra.

Dutra

Izvestia recently declared that Dutra was subservient to the United States. The Moscow Literary Gazette said Dutra was a "crab with claws" who followed the lead of "the United States horse with hooves."

The informant said an announcement of the break could be expected within 72 hours.

Well-informed diplomatic sources said other American nations may adopt a similar attitude to emphasize their solid support of Chile who recently expelled two Yugoslav diplomats, charging they were fomenting strikes in Chile as part of a Belgrade-directed campaign of the new Communist international information bureau. As a result, Yugoslavia severed relations with Chile.

The informant said the Brazilian government would hand passports to Soviet charge d'affaires George Sokolov and six other Russian officials, including Jorge Kalugan, Tass representative.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Suritz and his family left Brazil recently after the Brazilian government had outlawed the Communist Party, largest in South America.

Red Youth Program Likened to Hitler's

London, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison tonight likened the Communist Youth Movement to Hitler's juvenile Nazi program in an address to a large Labor Party League of Youth meeting.

"Hitler youth not only accepted everything that Hitler said, but sought to punish anybody who did not. Communist youth swallow what is known as the 'party line' from the political bureau and from abroad without argument," he said.

Prescription: Autumn

We can think of no time when an occasional respite from worldly worries has been more welcome than now. Nor can we think of any better tonic for the soul than the one nature itself has provided in the glories of autumn. Autumn is never the same, and this year it is providing new vistas of color and imagery for the crisis-jaded brain. This is the time when the fullness of plenty is on the land. Neat shocks of corn and rich brown and gold tonal effects in the fields tell of the amazing bounty that is America's. This is also the time when the purple majesty of the Blue Ridge is at its zenith, when an hour along the Skyline Drive provides a sensation like riding on a polka-dot magic carpet. The experience lulls the mind into fantasy. Nor does nature restrict its largesse to those who have automobiles. The same democracy of nature extends to Rock Creek Park and other areas of Washington's magnificent recreation system. A stroll along a rolling country lane in nearby Maryland or Virginia, easily accessible from Washington, will give the same refreshment. Fallen leaves are turning the earth into a Persian rug, yet the most brilliant colors are still on the trees. These are particularly striking at sunset, when the glowing yellows of the treetops seem to blend with the horizon. An afternoon of autumn air these days provides inspiration and vigor for the common task.

Majority Tyranny

The AFL is preparing to levy special assessments on its members to finance a campaign against the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and work for defeat of Congressmen who voted for it. In Senator Taft's opinion, this proposal violates the provisions of the law forbidding the use of union funds in political campaigns, and subjecting violators to fines and/or imprisonment. The issue is one to be decided by the courts, of course, since the language of the act lends itself to varying interpretations. But, in our opinion, there is no questioning the essential inequity of a proceeding that forces all members of a labor union, regardless of their political convictions, to contribute to a campaign of this sort. As Tocqueville pointed out in his classic book, Democracy in America, the tyranny of the majority is one of the greatest dangers of our form of government. Powerful labor organizations are unquestionably guilty of such tyrannical practices when they compel a minority of their members, on pain of expulsion, to support political causes in which they disbelieve.

So long as unions remained purely voluntary associations that men and women were free to join or ignore as they chose, the question of fair treatment for minorities did not arise. Today, however, a worker may be forced to join a union, if the employer has agreed to accept a union shop contract, in order to retain his job. In any case, if the employer enters into a contract with a union, the nonunion employe is, under the law, represented by that union as an accredited bargaining agency and is compelled to accept the terms of the negotiated agreement. Obviously such an outsider has an interest in joining the union in question and seeking to influence its decisions regarding wages and other demands. But if the union also engages in political activities that run counter to his convictions, he is faced by the disagreeable choice of remaining an impotent outsider or becoming an unwilling contributor to political causes of which he disapproves.

The Federal Bill of Rights provides protection against the tyranny of majorities by guaranteeing to individuals (not to majorities) rights of free speech, freedom of religion, peaceful assemblage, etc. Yet Senator Pepper has the temerity to declare that legislation preventing labor organizations from levying political assessments on their members would be "a denial of the right of freedom of appeal, freedom of speech and civil liberties." Regardless of whether the Taft-Hartley Act affords a legal method of suppressing arbitrary exercise of political power on the part of unions, the practice itself is utterly indefensible as an assault on the right of the individual to make his own decisions on political issues and throw his support to candidates of his own choosing. The muzzling of free speech and the deprivation of liberties of which Senator Pepper complains are not due to legal restrictions on the right of unions but to the absence of restrictions, legal or customary, that would put a stop to such iniquitous practices.

If individual members of labor unions choose voluntarily to finance union-approved political organizations that work for the repeal or passage of labor laws or seek to elect or defeat certain candidates for office, they are, of course, free to do so. That is a democratic method of procedure that enables like-minded individuals to make their political influence felt. But labor organizations that recruit their members from individuals belonging to different political parties and holding divergent views on political questions grossly abuse their power when they force a dissident minority to join the majority in financing political campaigns unacceptable to that minority. To tolerate such practices is to encourage the growth of a political labor movement that would undermine the foundations of our form of government, which rests on the freedom of the individual to think for himself and support the causes in which he believes.

Claims Of China

During the war one of the greatest battles of words was over the problem of whether to beat Hitler first or the Japanese. The preference, in a decision which attested Mr. Roosevelt's courage and wisdom, was given to Hitler. Now a similar argument is brewing over whom to save first from Soviet imperialism: China or western Europe. It is felt by some of the enthusiasts with more sentiment than judgment about China that China should have precedence. Others, with a lack of appreciation of the urgency of our peace tasks and of our limited resources for undertaking them, want equal consideration for the two menaced regions. One or other school thinks that General Wedemeyer, who is just back from his mission to China, is on its side; hence the demand that his report to the State Department be published. Whatever this contains, he is said to be expressing himself pretty freely around town that by February communism will have swallowed China. Mr. Bullitt has put forward the claims of China in a piece in Life which attests not only his personal opinion but also the influence of Time-Life-Fortune.

Assuming that we can't save everybody at once, let us bring to the problem the same criteria that were adopted during the war. Where is our present and greater danger? Where is our rival power focused? Where are we likely to pick up more strength in the world struggle on which we are freshly embarked? The answer lies, we submit, in western Europe. Here is the very fount of Western civilization, the area where freedom still reigns, the part of the world against which international communism and Soviet imperialism have mobilized themselves. There is another reason why western Europe deserves our concentrated attention now. In western Europe there are seats of empire as well as friends and allies in the fight for freedom whose collapse would make vacuums outside as well as within their domestic jurisdictions. The 270 million people of the "Marshall" countries believe in our way of life, and, when they have recovered their vitality, are most likely to be on our side in the world-wide struggle for it. In the circumstances the most prudent course for our statesmanship is to concentrate on western Europe.

The notion that we could put the subcontinent of China on its feet with a billion dollars or so and a flock of American advisers is absurd. China is going through one of her historical travails which do not yield to quick, and certainly not to foreign, solutions. The Bolshevists discovered this in 1927. When the Russian-led armies, with Chiang Kai-shek in command with the Russians, swept through a province, the Chinese, like Markham's man with the hoe, looked up and went back to work again. And Chiang Kai-shek, once astride the Yangtze, threw off his Russian yoke, and emerged as a Chinese. The fear that if aid is not rushed to Chiang Kai-shek in his new extremity communism will have swallowed China by February is likewise baseless. We dare to say that Stalin, after tasting the bitter tea of 1927, would not trust the Chinese Communists (who are heavily infiltrated with mere anti-Chiangites, anyway) outside his own vision. Chinese Communist leaders would be guilty of an egregious blunder if they thought they could control China in years let alone months. China is not that controllable, as Chiang has discovered, for his greatest error lay in his attempt after the war to unify or control China. After the war he sent carpetbaggers all over the territories hitherto occupied by the Japanese, and the local populace regarded them as simply another breed of outlanders. Particularly has he had to pay for that mistake in Manchuria, which is more particularistic than other parts of China. The central fact of the Manchurian situation today is that the Manchurians are just about as anti-Chiang as the Communists themselves.

We shall never understand what is going on in China unless we appreciate this great subcontinent against the background of its history. Its present travail goes back all the way to the 60s, when the foreign powers, with a vested interest in the status quo, helped the effete Manchu dynasty to crush the rebellious T'aip'ings. Forty years later, when the Boxers went on the warpath, we saved the crumbling dynasty again. In 1911 it simply expired before we had a chance to prop it up. Shall we repeat the same mistake of trying to shove up an administration which, in much of China's opinion, has exhausted its mandate? In diplomacy one must ride out risks as well as take them, and China is in the former category, if for no other reason than that there is no native leadership to work with or through. If, however, the do-something school must be satisfied, let us undo one of our classic mistakes in China, and, as we have previously suggested, put China back on the silver standard.

Police State

The President's reference to price control and rationing at his news conference on Thursday as essentially police state methods is as astonishing as it is mistaken. This is not the first time Mr. Truman has revealed this confusion. In his broadcast to the Nation inaugurating the food-conservation program—which may be quoted directly, although his news conference remarks may not—he said: "The voluntary program is the best way for us to do the job. We believe that self-control is the best control."

We believe nothing of the sort, of course. When we want to raise revenue for the operation of the Government, we do it by taxation—not by soliciting voluntary contribution to the Treasury. When we wanted to raise an army, more than a year before we went to war, because we recognized the existence of an emergency, we did it by conscription—not by urging voluntary enlistments. When we wanted to distribute scarce supplies equitably and keep prices at reasonable levels during the war itself, we did it by a price control and consumer rationing law—not by exhortation.

These were police methods, if Mr. Truman likes, in the sense that governmental enforcement of them was authorized by the representatives of the people in Congress. But they had no more to do with the methods of the police state than the enforcement of traffic regulations or pure food and drug laws. On the contrary, they constituted the only genuinely democratic means of dealing with the conditions they were designed to meet. They provided for equitable apportionment of the load among all the people, forbidding a few to profit at the expense of the many.

The voluntary program may be, as Mr. Truman believes, the best way for us to save the wheat needed for the immediate relief of Europe; at any rate, they deserve full national support. Perhaps price control and consumer rationing are too cumbersome and would take too long to reestablish. Self-control may, then, be the best control in the circumstances. We gravely doubt, however, whether the food saved through voluntary conservation by millions of Americans will reach its intended destination unless the President secures from Congress the allocation powers necessary to keep it from being fed to livestock or otherwise dissipated. And we continue to believe that if price control and rationing had been maintained we should not now be in the grip of an inflation which much more seriously threatens establishment of the police state.

Living In A Crowd

About the only practical approach to the housing shortage we have heard of is a course at City College, New York, to teach how doubled-up families can avoid rows. It is known by the high sounding name of "family relations," but its primary purpose, we understand, is to decrease tensions caused by crowded living. For the benefit of our readers who can't take the course, we are passing on what has been found by the teacher, Psychologist David Goldman, after a four-year study of family problems, to be the basic formula for life in a crowd. It is: Avoid each other as many hours of the day as possible.

For example, a young married couple living with in-laws could arrange to go to the movies or sit on a park bench when the mother-in-law is holding forth in the home. Or they could cultivate friends in whose homes they could park themselves, assuming of course the parents of their hosts were at the zoo, the bowling alley or hiding in a closet. Older couples also would be expected to cultivate outside activities as clubs, lodges, squirrel feeding, or chowder and marching societies. Children, Professor Goldman advises, should be engaged in outside activities as much as possible so as to avoid the effect of family tensions. He also suggests that a rigid schedule of absentee hours be worked out and adhered to—which would seem to offer endless opportunities for chart making and time keeping.

We hope the course goes far enough to prescribe behavior for family members on those occasions when they can't avoid seeing each other—unless they wear false faces—as at mealtime, and when they all by some mysterious telepathy converge on the bathroom at the same moment. However, we heartily indorse Professor Goldman's non-contact program both for dwellers in doubled-up and single homes, especially since we are told by real estate dealers and home builders that housing may not increase greatly for a long time to come, and that, anyway, people are occupying more housing space than they should. In fact, we believe the program should be extended further to offices, stores, streetcars, cocktail parties, all sorts of places, if population continues to increase at its present speed and if the wide-open space continues to diminish. For there is no doubt that as, Samuel Goldwyn is credited with saying, "People are getting tired of people."

KINSMAN TO THE EARTH

When I am lonely, and the night
Is far advanced and still,
I leave my house, and walk alone
The path that climbs the hill.
The sky is clear, the moon is gone,
But like old friends I mark
The steadfast constellations shine
Against the outer dark.
I never lack for company
With such a host nearby,
For I am kinsman to the earth
And neighbor to the sky.

Congressmen Abroad

The statement made by Congressman Taber to reporters in the midst of the appalling desolation of Berlin that he had not seen any undernourished people in Europe is alarming and astounding.

As one who has recently visited Europe I might also make a similar statement, but it would constitute a confession that I had not made the effort to go into bare, unheated homes where whole families without food, or work, are too weak to roam the streets.

When one is rushing from country to country by airplane it is obviously not easy to investigate actual living conditions among the masses of the population. Occasionally, however, one gets revelations of distress through confidential conversations with persons too proud to display their extreme suffering. A friend of mine, a university professor, confessed to me that he was trying to support himself and family on a salary of $1.50 a month!

The inflated currency, the high cost of living, the low food rations, the occasional bread riots, and the greatly reduced production in basic industries, notably in the coal mines of the Ruhr, are all sufficient evidence of the desperate conditions prevailing practically all over Europe.

What makes the statement attributed to Congressman Taber, who is also chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, most alarming is the discouraging effect it undoubtedly will have on the despairing people of Europe who look to us as their sole hope to save them from economic collapse and Communist domination. And this statement may dissuade the American people from giving generously and immediately before it may be too late the help so urgently needed.

I had the privilege of attending a conference at The Hague between a congressional delegation and representative public men and journalists of Holland. In this delegation were Senators Barkley, Hatch, Hickenlooper, Congressmen Mundt, Jarman, Judd and others. I was greatly impressed by the thorough and fair way they conducted this investigation of conditions in the Netherlands. I am sure they will tell the facts to the American people in so convincing a manner as to arouse public opinion to the pressing necessity of saving Europe.

"Hypodermic Gun"

Your statement in the editorial "Hypodermic Gun" of October 13 intimating that the National Rifle Association is promoting marksmanship and fighting absurd gun laws merely to permit Americans to "pop one another off at will" is certainly deliberate misrepresentation either in bad taste or ignorance. A comparably inappropriate statement would be to the effect that the American Automobile Association "stands foursquare for the right of Americans to injure and kill one another at will on the highway"; when in fact, as everyone should know, the American Automobile Association is one of the most potent forces behind uniform traffic laws and traffic safety.

The National Rifle Association has consistently fought the various types of absurd gun laws periodically advanced by crackpots; by lazy and inefficient agencies who mistakenly believe that they can, prohibition-wise, legislate firearms out of existence, and advanced by subversive elements, or their dupes, who recognize the potential military value of citizens trained in small-arms marksmanship.

The National Rifle Association, with its war record and the war records of the individual members, its long campaign for uniform and workable firearms legislation, and its long history of assistance and encouragement to law-enforcement agencies and police officers, is certainly not deserving of the gratuitous insult of your allegedly humorous remarks.

French Workers

As a Frenchman, I wish to state that I am not in accord with and object most strongly to the statements made by Mr. Drew Pearson in his article which your paper published on October 7 regarding the amount of work which the French are supposed not to do.

Americans who are not acquainted with the truth might infer from this article that stores and offices are closed from 11:30 a. m on Saturday until Tuesday morning. If Mr. Drew Pearson has ever been in France, he ought to know that this is not true. It was not even true in 1937 when the Popular Front was in power, since he refers to that period.

I lived in Paris without interruption until September, 1939, and I know that I always worked 5½ days a week, that the weekend started at 1 p. m. on Saturday—not at 11:30 a. m. as stated—and ended on Monday morning. Since the war, this custom has been continued and there are millions who still work six days a week. The American Saturday—which for many starts at 5 p. m. on Friday—is unknown in France.

If Mr. Drew Pearson had sometimes left the comfort of the Hotel Crillon and the tables of the Champs-Elysees cafes, he might have also found out that the peasants work on the land from sunrise to sunset, that they never knew the meaning of a weekend, that they are even prepared to work on Sundays. A day of 15 hours means nothing to them, and this without mechanical implements.

If the French people adopted the American week and the amount of work it represents we would be still farther from recovery. If they followed the American example of waste of light and heat they would simply never recover at all. Has it ever struck you that central heating in the houses in September with an outside temperature in the shade of 82 degrees is unnecessary under any circumstances and that office buildings ablaze with light at 9 p. m, when they have been empty since 5 p. m., are a luxury which we do not know and which I hope we will never know. Instead of that we have in Paris two days a week without electric current and most people will think themselves lucky if they are not condemned to freeze to death in their homes next January.

"None So Blind"

Apparently as a result of seeking to shorten my letter under the heading above, the payroll record of eight terms for Congressman Dondero is wrongly given as applying to Congressman Taber in my letter as published in The Washington Post of October 9.

The record of the latter is 13 terms. Both records are long enough to suggest that blindness as to the realities of our "One World" might result from the fatigue of long office-holding.

Public Assistance

I read with interest Commissioner Mason's statement that an overwhelming majority of witnesses at last Thursday's hearing were in favor of slashing the proposed budget estimates for 1949. I also noted that several high District officials termed as "fantastic" the budget estimates presented by all department heads.

I hope that Commissioner Mason was impressed as I was with the fact that social workers and others who testified on the public assistance budget were unanimous in emphasizing the fact that the Board of Public Welfare was too conservative in its estimate for public assistance in respect to the numbers who will possibly need assistance and the amount required to meet the need. Is it "fantastic" to propose to base 1949 relief grants on May, 1946, cost of living, or should it remain as it is now, at the woefully inadequate 1942 level?

I hope that Commissioner Mason pointed out to President Truman in his recent conference the other very important point stressed by all of the witnesses mentioned above, namely, the false economy of cutting public assistance appropriations.

Dorothea Andrews in her excellent and well-documented article in The Washington Post of October 12 states that as a result of the present cuts in public assistance, private welfare agencies have been forced to drain their resources to a point where they believe they will not have sufficient funds to finish out the year. Hospital admissions are reported to be increasing due to the elimination of any allowance for special diets to tubercular, diabetic, and other ill persons receiving assistance and also as a result of other cuts that the Public Assistance Division has been forced to make due to lack of appropriations.

Surely the Commissioners are far-sighted enough to realize that the eventual cost to the taxpayers in terms of institutional and custodial care, long-time social problems, and bankrupt private social agencies is far more expensive to the community than an adequate public assistance program.

Indian Bureau

This country is spotted with Indian "reservations"—like festering sores upon the body politic—from the Passamaquoddy in Maine to the Klamath in Oregon.

Some are allotted to individuals, some are tribal lands as they were left to us by former wars and treaties. Where they have been checkerboarded by allotments the whites have gotten the best parts and have moved in to control our councils and contaminate our villages. The heirs of some of the original allottees have scarcely room to pitch a tepee on. This has resulted in the spending of large sums of our tribal money to buy more land to starve on.

The reservation Indians are governed by a bureau which consists of about 14,000 people whose jobs are to govern the daily lives of about 400,000 Indians, or one governor to about 30 Indians. A reservation Indian cannot make a lease. The "agent" must make it for him. He cannot buy or sell cattle, but the bureau must have a hand.

My people have become tired of their nurseries. They are sick of being treated like papooses. They do not believe in bureaus. They have long been convinced, through their sufferings, that the power to think and act should be wrested from the bureaus and—to the saving of the 'taxpayers' millions—returned to the hands of local communities, both red and white, where it has always belonged and where it can be done much better than it is done now.

Fanatics in The Making

By Malvina Lindsay

Spil for "Isms"

THE WESTERN European visitor to this country, a woman attorney, had seen unhappy associates before the war "take up" nazism. Since the war she had been seeing greater numbers of unhappy persons turn to communism. What did she think made human beings respond to these nostrums of the extreme Right and Left, which Americans so feared?

There was no blanket explanation, she felt—except possibly unhappiness. She had found that persons were especially likely to turn to nazism—the form of fascism with which she was most familiar—when they were personally frustrated and maladjusted. And, of course, opportunists were always ready to tie up with what seemed to be a winning cause.

"Just before the war," she said "many disappointed people even outside of Germany were becoming Nazis. I knew some of them well. Often they were well to do but unhappy in marriage, or in their jobs, or just unhappy in general. Others had trouble getting along on their small incomes. Some were jobless. They were people generally without religion, and superficially educated. They were resentful against their governments, against life."

NAZISM, she believed, had appealed not only through its promises of security, order and a new world, but through restoring self-esteem to many suffering from a sense of inferiority or inadequacy. In that way its appeal was more personal than that of communism. But to prepare people to withstand either, it was necessary not only to give them economic opportunity but to help them attain emotional adjustment to life.

Throughout the war, as a member of the underground, she had worked with Communists, and in the lean, disrupted days that followed peace had seen them expand their numbers.

"Their appeal is primarily an economic one," she pointed out, "and it is easy to understand how it reaches people who lack shoes, blankets, clothing, fuel, decent food. Parents who are seeking safety and a better way of life for their children are likely to turn to those who promise these things."

Well-fed Americans, she realized, might find it hard to understand how cold, hungry and hopeless people could be unconcerned over such abstract things as human rights and democracy. But successive winters of privation have made many of Europe's poor easy converts to a doctrine which promises less suffering and more security.

However, it was not through material promises alone that communism had made its progress in Europe. To many of the young particularly it had the emotional force of a religion. "Young students and workers," she related, "will have their walls covered with Communist posters and mottoes, and with pictures of Stalin. It offers a positive creed to those who have no creed, or who have been disappointed in creeds. Some are drawn to it by economic idealism."

HUMAN DISLIKE for responsibility, this observer of ideologies believed, had helped nazism rise, and is now giving impetus to communism. When people are too tired and anemic to think vigorously, too hard pressed and uncomfortable to make political decisions, they are the more likely to welcome parties and governments that tell them what to believe, what to do. Hence any political explosions that may take place this winter in Europe—if it gets colder and hungrier—may be counted upon to have one certain result, the turning of confused, miserable people to dictatorial leadership of one form or another.

That is why the visitor was alarmed by talk she heard in this country that the "freedom loving peoples" of western Europe with their strong democratic traditions would never submit long to any form of totalitarianism. She remembered well how a small group of well organized, disciplined Nazis in her own country with armed help from outside, had taken over before people generally realized what had happened.

"And after they are once intrenched how do you rise up against them?" she asked. "How can you rise up unless you are organized, and how can you organize in a police state?"

Also, she might have asked: How, when you are weak, cold, hungry and hopeless can you be expected to have much fight in you?

Using Bread-Ends

I suggest that Mr. Luckman and his committee publicize the habitual waste of bread ends and make the public critical of drug store and restaurant proprietors who do not cooperate. Here are a few suggestions for food-serving establishments:

1. Give a 5 cent reduction to customers who allow their toast or sandwich to be made of bread ends. (The proprietors will still make money)

2. Put on a special platter sandwiches mistakenly made and sell at a discount. (This may call to proprietors' attention another way their money goes into the garbage pail.)

3. Let restaurants serve bread-ends along with other bread. Some people like the butts.

4. Let restaurants serve in baskets so that none is thrown out if not eaten—instead of the common practice of serving two pieces of bread automatically on every butter plate.

5. Let luncheon counters and restaurants put unused butts in baskets, furnish paper bags, and put up a sign "Free—Take Home As Much As You Can Use".

Food As A Weapon

By Barnet Nover

Russian Grain And Soviet Policy

THE SOVIET State Planning Commission has announced that the grain crops in the USSR during 1947 were greater by 58 per cent than the grain crops of 1946.

NOVER

In a well-ordered world, this would be the occasion for universal and unrestrained rejoicing.

The world's food situation is desperate. Even if all the nations pooled their food resources and saw to it that they were distributed equitably, it would still be impossible to avert widespread starvation.

Every ounce of food that can be exported from countries with surpluses to countries with deficits is a weapon in the fight against hunger.

SIR JOHN BOYD ORR, director general of the U. N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization, has underlined the gravity of the situation with frightening directness. He told a committee of the General Assembly the other day:

"The number of people in Europe and Asia who will die from the direct or indirect effects of food shortages in the next 12 months will be greater than the number who were killed in the fighting or in the bombing in any year of the war."

Just how much grain Russia will now be in a position to export is not clear from the statement of the State Planning Commission, which deals with a percentage increase rather than with actual figures.

American food experts believe, however, that in the year ending June 30, 1948, Russia will be able to export around 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 tons of cereals.

Were Russia to add that volume of exportable breadstuffs to the European pool, the meager bread rations in most European countries could be maintained. But the Soviet government has never in the past shown any disposition to join in any international pooling arrangement and is unlikely to do so now.

There is every reason to believe that Russia's exportable surplus of bread grains will be distributed abroad with a sharp eye on the political advantages to be gained by such exports.

THIS IS EXACTLY what happened last year when Russia really had no exportable surplus at all. Nonetheless, in what was an obvious effort to improve the electoral chances of the French Communist Party, a shipment of Soviet wheat arrived in France on the eve of the June elections.

Tremendous publicity attended this move. The impression given was that Russia, out of the goodness of her heart, had come to the rescue of the hungry French people. Actually, the Russians were paid for every ounce of grain they had sent to France and the total sent was only a small fraction of what had come from the United States.

France is again short of wheat. Indeed, her deficit is today greater than it was a year ago because of bad winter weather, spring floods and drought.

Recently Russia announced her readiness to consider the French request (made last August) for 1,500,000 tons of Soviet grain.

It was probably no coincidence that the Russian announcement occurred only 10 days before the important municipal elections.

SHOULD RUSSIA export her entire disposable surplus during the next months, the total would only be between 10 and 14 per cent of the amount of grain the United States has shipped and intends to ship abroad by July, 1948.

Yet, unless we are wiser in our operations than we have been, the fanfare over the arrival of Russian wheat to France or any other western European country is certain to be infinitely greater than the very much greater effort this country will make in the way of fighting world hunger.

We have, in this respect, been penny wise and pound foolish. We have sent billions abroad, but have cut down on the State Department's efforts to inform the world of what we are doing and what we stand for.

It is not merely a question of getting due credit for good works, although there is no reason why we should not get that credit. But in the acute struggle now raging between the two world systems, it is a monstrous mistake to let this country's opponents win its propaganda battles by default.

It is to our enlightened self-interest as well as our humanitarian concern to do all in our power to build barriers to keep down the rising flood of famine. It is no less to our self-interest to see that the facts regarding our contribution are made known to the world.

Group Told Of Attack on Cooperatives

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (U.P.).—The touring House Agriculture Committee was warned by a Southern farm cooperative leader today that the Southern farmer's biggest worry is "business interests that are trying to destroy cooperatives."

W. G. Wysor, general manager of the Southern States Cooperative Association, told the committee that the 200,000 farmer members of his organization are "willing to produce to abundance" to meet foreign and domestic needs.

But, he said, they are worried about what "certain business interests and Congress" will do.

Cooperatives Attacked

"Certain business interests that are attempting to destroy farm cooperatives," Wysor told the Congressmen, "are trying to secure the passage of legislation in Congress that would hurt us all."

The committee, headed by Chairman Clifford R. Hope (R., Kans.), made Richmond the first stop in its bus tour of the country. They are seeking "grass roots opinion" from the Nation's farmers on the food crisis, farm problems and what the country wants from Congress.

Wysor, who retired from farming several years ago to manage the cooperative, said his members in six States feel they "have the right to choose their own methods of marketing and buying."

"If that right is denied," he told the committee, "it constitutes a threat not only to the economic freedom of farmers, but to the freedom of the whole country."

Cooperative officials, dining with the committee, and Virginia's Gov. William M. Tuck, nodded in agreement as Wysor declared the "attack" on cooperatives was taking two forms.

"They are trying to convince the public that we are pinkish, socialistic or even communistic," he said, "and they are trying to claim that we operate on an unfair basis because we have a tax exemption."

Wysor called the first charge "ridiculous," because "everybody knows that farmers are the backbone of individualism."

And he said the second charge meant "practically nothing" because "no cooperation that is a real cooperative has very much to tax."

Wysor said he thought the tax exemption feature had cost the organization "more in bad public relations than it has ever been worth in dollars and cents."

(Farm cooperatives are permitted certain tax exemptions on profits they hold as a reserve.)

Worried Everywhere

Wysor told the committee he had been in touch with cooperatives all over the country, and he claimed they were all worried about the situation.

He said farmers everywhere be.. cooperatives are "essential to reasonable prosperity" because they permit farmers to get "an adequate return for their products and encourage them to produce an abundance of food."

"And I believe," he continued, "that ours is the only free Nation in the world today because we have an abundance of food."

Wysor told the committee farmers are looking to the House and Senate Agriculture Committees to defend their right to perform services for themselves on a "cost of business" basis.

"We feel that you are our legislative defense," he said.

ITU Offers To Resume Contract Talk

Baltimore, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Baltimore Local 12 of the International Typographical Union, acused of violating the Taft-Hartley Labor Law, offered today to resume contract negotiations with the Baltimore Graphic Arts League and asked that a Government representative sit in and observe its "good faith."

Sidney Barban, attorney for the National Labor Relations Board, refused and said it is not the NLRB's function to participate in negotiations.

The union accompanied its offer with a plea for a delay in the hearing now going o nbefore an NLRB trial on charges it has failed to bargain in good faith with the league, a group of 22 Baltimore printers.

Earle K. Shawe, attorney for the league, objected to any delay and said if the negotiators get together "it will have to be in Baltimore tomorrow and Sunday."

Earlier, the Government contended before the trial examiner that the ITU and its locals planned to get around the Taft-Hartley ban on closed shops by insisting on 30-day cancellation clauses in any new contracts they sign.

Over union objections, the Government succeeded in getting into evidence what it said was a memorandum in which the international advised its unions how to avoid "destruction" under the Taft-Hartley law.

The memorandum suggested the locals submit to employers a new form of contract which would include a 60-day termination clause. This, it pointed out, would confront an employer with the prospect of being without union employes if he hired nonunion men and "protect against an employer bringing in nonunion matter for you to work."

The tactic, the memorandum said, would comply "even with the ideas of Robert N. Denham," new general counsel of the NLRB.

U. S., British Held Agreed On Tariff Cut

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—A British spokesman announced tonight that the United States and the United Kingdom had agreed on "major points" for a reduction of tariffs.

"A number of matters still outstanding require consultation with British Empire governments overseas," he said. "Until their replies have been received it is not possible, and it would be improper, to say that a final agreement between the United Kingdom and the United States had been reached."

Winthrop Brown, chairman of the Trade Agreements Committee of the United States State Department, heads the American delegation.

The impasse in Anglo-American negotiations developed after Australia asked for American reductions in wool tariffs and the United States in turn asked for concessions under the empire preferential system.

The President's Calling List

Strikes Peril French Help, Bridges Says

Paris, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) told a news conference today that a wave of Communist-inspired strikers at a time when maximum production was needed urgently would shake the United State's belief in Europe's desire to help itself.

The Senator, Chairman of the United States Senate Appropriations Committee, is making an investigation tour of Europe, with members of the group.

He said his view was conveyed to Premier Paul Ramadier, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Finance Minister Robert Schuman.

Reds Foment Strife

"These governments must be strong in dealing with strikes inspir bdey Communists," Bridges said, declaring the Communists were fomenting industrial strife to hamper recovery, and lessen American support for the Marshall Plan.

"They cannot temporize. If they want help, they cannot have the production hauled down. The average citizen must realize that when the Communists inspire strikes, they are harming France and all countries."

Bridges said his group had sought "general assurances" that the Communists would not "gain an ascendency" in France.

"We certainly told them that we did not want a government controlled by the Communists," he said.

French Leaders Hopeful

Ramadier and Bidault replied, Bridges said, that if current plans materialized, and United States cooperation was secured, they should be able to maintain a stable government and keep the Communists in the minority.

Hesaid evidence to date had not inclined his bipartisan group to the conclusion that a special session of Congress was necessary for action on interim aid to western Europe. He said Communist sabotage was one of the greatest dangers to the Marshall Plan.

Senator Russell (D., Ga.) predicted most Americans would indorse the Marshall Plan enthusiastically if they were convinced it would insure stable democracies in Europe. Senator Green (D., R. I.) said many eastern factory workers were disturbed by reports of strikes in Europe, and were asking why Americans should help people who were not working for themselves.

Hoag to Head Air Force Mission to Turkey

Assignment of Brig. Gen. Earl S Hoag of Sioux City, Iowa, to be chief of the United States Air Force Group in the American military mission to Turkey was announced yesterday.

The Air Force said the purpose of the group is to "increase the effectiveness of the Turkish air force by more modern training and equipment."

Truman Remark Linked to Plans For Convention

A caller quoted President Truman yesterday as saying he expects to be pretty busy next June.

The Democratic National Convention will be held about that time and that fact immediately came to the minds of reporters when Edward Phelan, director general of the International labor office, reported the comment.

President Truman has never said for the record that he will be a candidate next year.

Phelan said he invited Mr. Truman to attend the general meeting of ILO in San Francisco next June and got this reaction:

"The President laughed and jokingly remarked that he expected to have a very busy program at that time."

Phelan said he discussed ILO matters with the President.

Senor Don Jorge Garcia Granados, the Guatemalan Ambassador to the United States will speak at the Louis D. Brandeis Zionist District installation dinner at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Joseph Cherner, newly elected president of the organization, and other officers will installed. Tribute will be paid to past President Rabbi Isadore Breslau.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Britain's Deepening Crisis

LONDON—Anyone who travels across Europe today must, if he looks at the facts, come to at least one conclusion: the tides of political and social change cannot be reversed by any fiat laid down in America.

Childs

Here in the home of the mother of parliaments and the mother of parliamentary socialism, that becomes even more obvious than it is on the continent, millions of Britons have grown up to believe that socialism will bring greater rewards and satisfactions than capitalism ever could. Other millions of Britons believe their fellow citizens have a right to choose socialism if they are in the majority.

Shortly before he left for home, Congressman Christian Herter, chairman of the important House committee surveying Europe's resources, called on three leaders of the Conservative Party—Lord Woolton, Anthony Eden and R. A. Butler. The latter is the author of the party's official program, so far-reaching in terms of social responsibility as to scare so-called conservatives in America out of their wits.

Herter asked all three men the same question. What would be the effect on the Conservative Party of a provision written into the Marshall Plan forbidding further nationalization?

THEY ALL gave the same reply—it would be absolutely fatal. The Conservative Party could not support the plan if it contained such a provision, even though the Consevatives here at home are violently opposed to any more nationalization. Such a provision would be taken as a barrier to the sovereign right of the free British citizen.

The word of Woolton, chairman of the party, and Eden, former Foreign Secretary and one of the most influential Conservatives, can hardly be challenged. It therefore becomes clear that any attempt to write in a provision forbidding nationalization will be in reality an attempt to defeat cooperation between Europe and America.

On the other hand, this does not mean that the United States will be powerless to influence European economic policy in the spending of American dollars for American commodities. But the influence must be indirect rather than direct.

Thus, conditions might be laid down in the Marshall Plan law specifying definite increases in production from year to year. It could be made perfectly plain that, in the American view, further nationalization would interfere with increased productivity.

Some such reasonable approach, satisfactory to the American taxpayer, can be worked out. Any arbitrary dictate is certain to mean the death of all hope of cooperation for recovery and reconstruction of the west. This is precisely the opportunity that the extreme left wing of the British Labor Party and the Communist Leftists on the continent of Europe are praying for. They are prepared to exploit it to the fullest to isolate America, both economically and politically, from the rest of the world.

BOTH IN Britain and the United States, the actuality of Britain's plight is too often ignored or it is deliberately obscured. It happened that a Socialist government came to power at the very moment of the gravest British economic crisis of the last 125 years.

When the Conservative Party went down to defeat two years ago, a colleague is said to have remarked to Winston Churchill that it was a blessing in disguise, since whatever government was in power would be faced with the cumulative troubles of a century or more. Churchill is reported to have replied that, so far as he was concerned, the disguise was complete.

To many the disguise is complete. This includes many who want to exploit the crisis to discredit the Labor Party. But the fact is that Britain's economic Dunkirk has little to do with socialism or the triumph of the Labor Party.

The causes of that crisis are complex and varied. They extend back to the time when England was at the peak of her economic and military power at the end of Queen Victoria's long reign. During that long period of power and prosperity, Britain had built up an economic umbrella consisting of investments held in various parts of the world particularly America.

THE REVENUE from those investments, along with other sources of income such as merchant shipping, paid for the food and raw materials imported into this tight little isle. Two world wars and especially the second, which nearly brought Britain down, reduced the overseas investments to a small fraction of what they had been. A huge debt to India and other commonwealth nations was added.

This is the real origin of the crisis. It would be just as grave if Winston Churchill instead of Clement Attlee sat in 10 Downing Street. No political party has any easy prescription for its cure. That is the important thing to remember as the crisis deepens with the approach of winter.

U. S. Troops Invited, China Announces

Nanking, Oct. 17 (A.P.).—A formal statement that China invited American armed forces now in China and welcomed their presence has been given the United States Embassy in response to an Embassy request, the foreign office informed the state council today.

The Embassy asked the statement as the result of a United Nations resolution that member nations withdraw armed forces from all countries which failed to indicate formally that they welcomed the presence of such forces.

Veterans Win Ruling on Back Pay

A FEDERAL judge has decided that veterans who are either unlawfully demoted or fired and who win appeals to recover their old jobs are clearly entitled to back pay. He added the authority to order loss of pay to the veterans rests with the Civil Service Commission, which has ruled otherwise.

Kluttz

However, the judge, Charles E. Wyzanski, jr., of the United States District Court in Boston, refused to consider the controversial Veterans Preference Act of 1912 in dismissing the cases of several veterans who had been ordered demoted at the Boston Navy Yard. That act, he said, was "irrelevant" to their cases.

A score of veterans who have either been fired or demoted have appealed to the courts to restore them to their old jobs under that act. Several cases are pending in the District Court here. If the courts finally decide in favor of the veterans, the Government's system of making layoffs and demotions must be revised to provide for the firings and demotions of career nonveterans before temporary and war service veterans in similar jobs could be touched. Such a ruling would bring administrative chaos in the Government.

ON THE back pay provision, Judge Wyzanski, a former Labor Department solicitor, was outspoken. He wrote:

"The Civil Service Commission may order the department to award the veteran back pay for any loss he may have sustained from an unwarranted demotion. Perhaps, though some authorities ruled otherwise, the commission was given that power under the original 1944 act.

"At any rate, the 1947 amendment certainly confers that power, if it did not exist previously. The language of the amendment broadly authorizes 'corrective action.' And back pay is a usual type of corrective action where an employe has been unlawfully demoted or dismissed.

"Moreover, the 1947 amendment makes it clear that once the Civil Service Commission issues an order of reinstatement or reparation the department is under a legal duty to obey. It can hardly be supposed that the Secretary of the Navy or Comptroller General would attempt to block the performance of such a duty, or, if he did, that the courts would acquiesce. Presumably, if necessary, a writ of mandamus would lie."

In view of the ruling, the Civil Service Commission has ordered its legal staff to restudy the 1944 Veterans Preference Act and its 1947 amendment which gives it power to require agencies to restore veterans to their old jobs when they win appeals. It's entirely possible that the commission will now order back pay for the veterans.

JUDGE WYZANSKI'S reference to the act of 1912 was brief and inconclusive. He quoted a section of that act which provides for the establishment of an efficiency rating system for classified employes in this city. The judge then pointed out that the veterans involved were neither in the classified service nor employed in the District of Columbia. But he added significantly that the act did not give the veterans "at this stage, if ever, a cause of action in this court."

Among other things, the 1912 act provides that no veteran with a good or better efficiency rating may be demoted or fired before a nonveteran in a similar job. The act, of course, did not distinguish between career, war service and temporary employes—classes growing out of World War II. It had been presumed that the main part of the 1912 act had been superseded by the Veterans Preference Act of 1944. But war service and temporary veterans who have been either fired or demoted before long-service career nonveterans are going to court the country over to test that old law.

BASICALLY, Judge Wyzanski dismissed the case of the demoted veterans on the ground that they had not exhaused possible administrative remedies such as appealing their cases to the Civil Service Commission.

The veterans claimed that Boston Navy Yard officals had "conspired" to nullify the Veteran Preference Acts; that they had not kept proper records of the hearings before them; that they (the veterans) had been given "false" efficiency ratings, and that they will be demoted regardless of any appeal to an administrative body.

In brief, the justice told the veterans to tell their story to the Civil Service Commission. He said the law requires the commission to investigate and consider all evidence presented, and that it need not "believe the Navy record or give it any particular weight."

The judge said if he were to issue a temporary injunction stopping the demotions, "it would, in effect, be inconveniencing the Navy by requiring it to postpone reductions in payroll which I cannot arbitrarily assume to be unlawful."

Boy's Life Shortened

Rattigan Prunes National's Play

By Richard L. Coe

THITTAH PEOPLE ON THE LOOSE: Terence Rattigan, who looks more like a juvenile lead than a mere playwright, has clipped a word here and a word there from "The Winslow Boy," whittling down its running time by 10 minutes . . . He wrote the play just to prove it could be dramatic material . . . While the Lunts were playing his "O Mistress Mine" in London (there it was called "Love in Idleness)" they gave him the last book by their good friend Alexander Woollcott . . . In it he first came across the Archer-Shee case (an Englishman learns about England from the Yanks!) and thought it had picture possibilities . . . The British picture folk said no . . . So he wrote a play to prove it could be done and what a grand play it is . . . It will be a British movie . . . Alexander Korda will produce and it looks like Robert Donat for the icy lawyer, Ralph Richardson for the father and Celia Johnson for the daughter . . . Rattigan's the most peripatetic of playwrights . . . Four weeks ago he was in Paris, where he found the rich French live very well at enormous cost . . . In contrast he remarks that even the well-to-do Londoners have to get along on much the same fare as the poorer. Democratic integrity in action . . . Terry thinks intermissions in the theater are absurd . . . "You sit all the way through a movie, why not a play?" . . . Next spring in London, John Gielgud will do two Rattigan plays stemming from this idea . . . One long play (an hour and 40 minutes), an intermission, and a short play.

JOHN C. WILSON, in from Chicago, where Tallulah just reopened . . . she'd been ill and "Private Lives" had to suspend. . . . "I'm living on trains these days," says Jack, "Saturday to Detroit to 'open up the Lunts.'" . . . He's looking forward to settling down someday in his neat Rockefeller Center office and has a new venture upcoming. This is "The Power and the Glory," for which he'll be off to London soon. . . . Jack's delighted that he and Gertie Lawrence have talked Noel Coward into directing her in "Tonight at 8:30," which looks less like coming this way than ever.

DR. JOSEPHINE McGARRY CALLAN of the Catholic University staff, mightily pleased that so many New York reviewers commented on the efficiency of the speaking chorus in "Allegro." . . . She was called in to train it . . . a feather in her cap and also C. U. speech and drama department's.

JANET CLAPPER HANSL in an admirable tizzy about the second season of the Children's Theater of Washington, sponsored this year as it was last by the District Recreation Board. . . . The group plans a luncheon October 28 at the Willard for an advisory committee. . . . This year's ideas include "Peter Pan," a children's ballet and a marionette show. . . . More details in time.

ZASU PITTS flying through on the way from Norfolk with Guy Kibbee for two performances at the Naval Air Station of "The Late Christopher Bean" . . . That was the play she set an Olney record with last summer and it did similarly well everywhere else . . . So Michael Meyerberg and the original producer, Gilbert Miller, are taking the summer success seriously . . . The comedy opens in Chicago Monday night.

JOSEPH CUNEEN, former Catholic University student, all set for a long-planned trip to Europe when he got an offer to go into "All Gaul Is Divided" . . . This is the Catholic University Playwrighting Festival comedy by John McGiver which opens its professional career in Detroit tomorrow night, with Walter Kerr directing . . . Did Cuneen give up his trip to Europe? . . . You betcha . . . From Detroit the play goes to Chicago.

IMOGENE COCA, without her dog (it's home in Philadelphia), fretting about "The New Yook" . . . In her wondrous funny sketches in the 400's new Fame Room, Coca's using a shaggy, blanket-like coat which was riotously comic two months ago . . . Now, wails Coca, the new fashions are making the darned thing look, not funny, but the glass of fashion.

SNAPSHOTS: Brian Watts and the National's "Winslow Boy," Michael Newell lugging Mike's portable radio down E st. Brian's Mike's understudy, not Brian Nissen, as we erroneously reported last Sunday . . . Unbelievable lines at the National for the "Rose Marie"-"Merry Widow" fortnit . . . Glen Byam Shaw, director of the Old Vic's acting school, another quick visitor, checking on "Winslow Boy" audibility; he arrived Thursday and flies back to England tomorrow . . . Philip Murray Starts 8th Year as President of CIO

Boston, Oct. 17 (AP).—Philip Murray started his eighth year as head of the CIO today by challenging the Nation's leaders to jail profiteers and inviting American employers to bargain without Federal intervention.

Reelected by cheering, shouting delegates of the six million member congress, Murray said he "prays" for labor unity. He discounted any immediate hope for it, however, and turned sarcastic words toward AFL President William Green and his own onetime associate and the original CIO leader, John L. Lewis.

The convention has pledged itself to "unprecedented" electioneering for labor in 1948.

The 61-year-old leader, once a Scotch immigrant coal miner, was returned to the presidency in an election which saw only one change among the nine vice presidents, the naming of O. A. Knight, president of the Oil Workers International since 1940.

Knight won office after R. J. Thomas, vice president of the Automobile Workers, declined nomination for reelection just as Murray was preparing the convention to vote.

Returned to vice presidencies were L. S. Buckmaster, president of the United Rubber Workers; Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the United Electrial Workers; John Green, president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers; Allan Haywood, CIO director of organization; Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers Union; Walter P. Reuther, president of the Automobile Workers, and Frank Rosenblum, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Four newcomers named to the executive board were Edward Hughlett of the Brewery Workers, Jack Clark of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, Harry Martin of the American Newspaper Guild, and A. R. Kinsley of the Oil Workers.

AFL Council Lays Campaign Groundwork

San Francisco, Oct. 17 (AP).—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in a post-convention meeting at which John L. Lewis was not present, today laid preliminary plans for a 1948 political and educational campaign against the Taft-Hartley law and its congressional enactors.

President William Green announced the council had called a meeting of the Federation's 105 national and international presidents to meet in Washington December 5 and 6 to follow the convention's directive in creating "Labor's Educational and Political League."

Although the convention authorized an increase in per capita assessments estimated to approximate three million dollars, Green said he had no idea of the amount which would be raised or which would be required.

Senate Probe Of Sky Queen Crash Called

By the United Press

A Senate investigation of the near-tragic crash of American International Airways' Sky Queen in mid-Atlantic was ordered yesterday after the Civic Aeronautics Board grounded the company's aircraft.

The inquiry was ordered by Chairman Owen Brewster (R., Me.), of the Senate Commerce Subcommittee on Aviation. He protested that a double standard of safety requirements for scheduled and non-scheduled airlines forces "hundreds of passengers to gamble with their lives."

The Sky Queen, with 69 persons aboard, was forced down at sea October 14 on a flight from Poole, England, to New York.

All of the passengers and crew were rescued by the Coast Guard cutter Bibb after a perilous night afloat.

"Willful Violations"

The CA, accusing the airline of knowing and willful violations" of the Civil Aeronautics Act, issued a temporary order banning it from "engaging in any form of air transportation."

It also ordered the company to show cause why its flight permits should not be revoked permanently.

The board said the airline had engaged in the overseas transportation of passengers despite the fact that its registration as a non-regular carrier made no provision for such traffic.

Brewster said the Bibb's "remarkable and daring rescue operations must not prevent action before another accident results less fortunately."

Immediate Inquiry

Brewster instructed Carl Dolan of New York, the committee's legal adviser, to begin an immediate inquiry, and report back "at the earliest possible moment."

Meantime, the captain and crew of the Bibb were receiving congratulations from Congressmen and others for the heroic rescue.

Chairman T. Millet Hand (R., N. J.) of the House Merchant Marine Subcommittee of the Coast Guard, telegraphed Coast Guard headquarters here that the ship's personnel had won the country's admiration for the way they "faced their task against almost impossible odds and brought it to a successful conclusion."

His message was sent to Armiral Joseph F. Farley, Commandant of the United States Coast Guard.

Pilots Return To Work on Overseas Line

By The Associated Press

The National Mediation Board announced yesterday that striking pilots of American Overseas airlines will return to work at 10 a. m. (EST) today. Negotiations between the union and the company will be resumed in New York.

The company's service over routes to London, north Europe and Scandanavia has been tied up since September 30 when the pilots walked out in disagreement over a working rule provision in the proposed contract.

The strike involved 173 pilots. Seventeen big plane were grounded, and the company furloughed approximately 1400 employes.

The disagreement concerned the length of time the pilots are to be available for call in advance of the end of rest periods.

There also was dispute over wages.

Both sides conferred last week with Francis A. O'neill, jr., a member of the mediation board, without reaching a basis for resuming negotiations. The company took the position that it could not negotiate while the pilots were on strike.

Chairman Frank P. Douglass of the board secured the agreement for negotiations after a new proposal by the company that the pilots resume work today.

Negotiations will take place in the company's offices with the mediation board members present, the announcement said.

Judge Miller Named by Tuck To Virginia Court of Appeals

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Governor Tuck announced today the interim appointment to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals of Judge Willis D. Miller of Richmond Law and Equity Court.

Judge Miller, 54, will fill the vacancy created by the death October 3 of Chief Justice Henry W. Holt of Staunton. Justice Edward W. Hudgins of Chase City automatically became the chief justice as the senior surviving member of the court.

Governor Tuck said his choice was made "after the most careful consideration."

Judge Miller has been judge of Richmond Law and Equity Court since 1936, when he was elected to the office by the General Assembly.

He was graduated from the University of Richmond Law School in 1914 and entered the practice of his profession. In 1924, at the age of 31, he revised the Richmond city code single-handedly, and the following year became Commonwealth's Attorney for South Richmond.

During his nearly 12 years on the bench of law and equity court, Judge Miller has entered final orders or decrees in approximately 6000 cases and on appeals has been reversed only six times by the Supreme Court of Appeals.

Judge Miller's appointment is made for a period extending until 30 days after the convening of the next session of the General Assembly, which fills such vacancies. Chief Justice Holt's term expires February 1, 1955. If the General Assembly follows its usual custom, Judge Miller will be elected by it next January for the remainder of Chief Justice Holt's term.

Motorman Freed In Kindell Death

Lakeshore, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—Magistrate Hugh K. Holmes acquitted Howard Willett, a Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad motorman, today of manslaughter charges in the death of George E. Kindell, 17, Severn School student, October 3.

Kindall's body was found along the B. & A. Railroad track near the Severna Park Station after he had taken a walk following football practice at the school. Willett testified he knew nothing of the death of the youth until the day after it.

Kindell was the son of Capt. N. M. Kindell, attached to the Bureau of Aeronautics at Washington.

Report Due Thursday On Fisheries Waste

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—A report of available fisheries wastes will be presented by Gilbert H. Moore, chairman, at a meeting of the Maryland committee for utilization of fisheries byproducts Thursday at the office of the Board of Natural Resources.

It is estimated 10 million pounds of byproducts are lost each year through present packing and selling methods in the fishing industry.

Fourth Hurricane Reported Brewing in Puerto Rico Area

Miami, Fla., Oct. 17 (AP).—A new tropical storm probably reaching hurricane force within the next 12 to 18 hours was centered in the Atlantic 180 miles north of Puerto Rico and 575 miles east southeast of Miami late today.

The storm, the fourth within a month, contained winds of 50 miles an hour in squalls extending outward for 100 miles in a northern semicircle, the Weather Bureau said. It said it was "too early" to tell what path it would take as it came closer to the United States.

Tokyo, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Army and air force personnel on Iwo Jima, battered last week by a typhoon which destroyed most of the installations on the island, were warned today to be on the lookout for another typhone, reported 430 miles northeast of Guam and moving toward Iwo.

Two Ships Collide Off Virginia Capes

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 17 (U.P.).—The Coast Guard today reported that a Liberty ship being towed to a reserve anchorage was struck during a dense fog by a Greek freighter off Cape Henry, Va., last night but no one was injured and neither ship was badly damaged.

The Greek freighter Demosthenes limped into Hampton Roads early today under her own power for minor repairs. The Liberty ship, SS Joseph Gale, was being towed to Wilmington, N. C.

2 Peronist Deputies Duel; Neither Hurt

Buenos Aires, Oct. 17 (AP).—Two Peronist deputies duelled with pistols today and left the field of honor uninjured.

The clash grew out of an exchange of letters between Deputies Oscar Abrieu and Lieut. Col. Rodolfo Mujica. Although both support the government of President Juan D. Peron, they head separate factions. It was reported each fired two shots into the air.

Disciples Crusade To Be Held

A mass meeting tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. in National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, will inaugurate a visitation evangelism crusade of greater Washington area Disciples of Christ Churches.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be Dr. Howard Thomas Wood, pastor of the Linden Avenue Christian Church, Memphis, Tenn., who will direct the crusade here—a phase of the national Disciples "crusade for a Christian world."

Disciples' ministers will hold seminars with Dr. Wood on Monday through Thursday mornings at Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park rd. nw. "Membership day" will be observed in Disciples' churches October 26. Goal of the national three-year "crusade" is 450,000 additions by restoration and transfer of membership and 450,000 additions by baptism.

Dr. Wood also will address services tomorrow at 10:50 a. m. at National City Church.

Fellowship Service

The Rev. Asbury Smith, pastor of Baltimore's Walbrook Methodist Church, will address an Interchurch Fellowship service tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, 15th and R sts. nw.

'Whistling Evangelist' Appearing at Revival

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

A "whistling evangelist" from the South is among the personalities participating in the city-wide Baptist evangelistic campaign.

He is the Rev. W. Hines Sims, associate secretary of the church music department, Sunday School Board, Southern Baptist Convention, Nashville, Tenn., who says he has been whistling religious and classical and popular songs for 39 of his 40 years.

This husky, handsome evangelist recalls that as a boy he accompanied his preacher-father on revivals and led the congregational singing with whistling and vocalizing. He doesn't expand his cheeks when he whistles. Rather, he uses a tongue-teeth-lip technique that produces a "nightingale" effect. One of his favorite selections is the 103d Psalm sung to the tune of "The Sextette From Lucia." He can imitate various bird calls. Also a talented vocalist, he is appearing daily and Sunday at 8 p. m. and Sundays at 11 a. m., through October 26, at Second Baptist Church, 17th and East Capitol sts., of which the Rev. J. Ray Garrett is pastor.

Totalitarian Rule Censured By Unitarians

By The Associated Press

Unitarian Church delegates condemned totalitarian governments yesterday, but declined to approve a resolution criticizing the United States and Russia.

An original resolution by the Rev. Stephen H. Fritchman of the Jamaica Plain, Mass., Unitarian Church, contained no reflection on Russia, but said:

"We especially repudiate efforts by some sections of our Government and many sections of our people to use American dollars to determine internal political and economic policy in countries seeking aid for their war devastated people:

"And we insist upon the right of nations to choose governments of their own preference, whether based upon theories of private enterprise or some form of socialist organization."

Clauses Added

The business committee of the American Unitarian Association added clauses to the resolution, which said effective use of the United Nations to prevent domination of "various countries" by "totalitarian methods is blocked by "misuse of the veto power."

It added that "we especially condemn Russian use of the veto power to block effective action by the Security Council of the United Nations in preventing external domination of eastern countries."

The Rev. A. Powell Davies of Washington, D. C., and a group of other ministers offered a substitute resolution for expanded American support for the United Nations. It eliminated the clauses added by the business committee and the Fritchman clause criticizing the United States Government and the press.

Totalitarianism Hit

The second resolution said: "We are expressly opposed to any form of government dominated by totalitarian methods."

This resolution was approved. A motion to call out the original resolution for a vote failed to carry.

The delegates, attending the general enference of the American Unitarian Association also recommended that directors appoint a committee, "carefully chosen to represent the varied view within the denomination," to create a "long range program" for the church publication, the Christian Register.

Fritchman formerly was editor of the Register. It was publicly criticized, both inside and outside the church, on the grounds it "overemphasized" leftist viewpoints.

Cornerstone Laying Set

The cornerstone of the new $200,000 edifice of St. John's Episcopal Church, Wisconsin ave. and Bradley lane, Bethesda, will be laid tomorrow at 12:15 p. m., after the morning service.

Participants will include the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington diocese; Dr. John Wallace Suter, dean of the Washington Cathedral; the Rev. William F. Creighton, rector of St. John's.

A drive is now under way to raise the $75,000 to furnish and equip the new church, expected to be completed by next spring.

WCTU to Hold Rally

The District of Columbia Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its fall rally October 23 and 24 at Calvary Baptist Church, 9th and H sts. nw.

Presbyterian Dedication Set For Tomorrow

President Truman and other dignitaries will attend services tomorrow, marking the formal dedication of Covenant-First Church as the National Presbyterian Church.

Ceremonies will be held at 4:30 p. m. at the National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., and at the base of the John Witherspoon Monument at the 18th st. and Connecticut ave. triangle. Dr. Witherspoon, a Scotsman, was the only clergyman-signer of the Declaration of Independence.

President Harold W. Dodds, of Princeton University, will lay a wreath at the foot of the monument on behalf of Princeton University Alumni. A plaque will be unveiled at the church's corner entrance. Wilbur LaRoe, jr., moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly and an elder of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will speak.

Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, former chaplain of the Seventh Army and the 21st Corps, is pastor of what has been known as Covenant-First Church, representing a merger in 1930 of Covenant and First Churches.

Covenant-First Church is being constituted the national church of the Presbyterian Church, USA, in accordance with a resolution passed at the 159th General Assembly of the church last May at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sermon Series

Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st., tomorrow at 8 p. m. will begin a sermon series on "The Meaning and Message of the Book of Revelation." Tomorrow's theme will be "The Book for a Day of Crisis."

Masons to Present Statue

The Supreme Council of 33d Degree Masons of the Southern Jurisdiction will present a marble statue of George Washington to the Washington Cathedral at ceremonies there tomorrow at 5:15 p. m.

The statue, the work of Lee Lawrie, now stands in the Cathedral North Transept, but eventually will be placed at the westernmost end of the nave.

John H. Cowles, sovereign grand commander of the Supreme Council, will present the statue, and the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, will accept it. Luther A. Smith, Supreme Council Grand Orator, will speak.

The Huguenot Society will hold its annual commemorative service tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the Cathedral.

Church to Mark Cornerstone Date

The fiftieth anniversary of the cornerstone-laying of the North Carolina Avenue Methodist Church, 8th st. and North Carolina ave. se., will be commemorated at services tomorrow at 11 a. m. and Tuesday at 8 p. m. Bishop Charles W. Flint of the Washington Methodist area, will preach tomorrow, and the Rev. E. A. Wilcher, pastor, will preside.

Student Named Corespondent In McDonnell Divorce Suit

Ralph P. S. McDonnell, 35, Warrenton and Washington socialite yesterday filed suit for divorce against his 28-year-old wife, Elizabeth Ann.

McDonnell, a member of the Virginia bar and former executive vice president of the Tucker Motor Car Co., Chicago, named as co-respondent, Jorge Fidel Clare, 28, wealthy Costa Rican, studying engineering at Catholic University.

According to the suit filed in behalf of McDonnell by Attorney Louis Shapiro, the McDonnells were married in Washington, December 26, 1946.

McDonnell, whose address was given as 1701 Massachusetts ave. nw., attended Yale Law School and the Harvard School of Business Administration.

He is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Chevy Chase Club, Army-Navy Club, Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Delta Chi and the Metropolitan Club.

Mrs. McDonnell, the former Elizabeth Ann McGrath, came to Washington with her parents from Puerto Rico several years ago. Her current address was listed in the suit as 1735 New York ave. nw.

New Hospital Sketch Ready For Future

A rough sketch of the District's proposed 1500-bed hospital center has been completed as a basis for future planning, the Federal Works Agency said yesterday.

The new center, authorized by Congress last year, will contain Emergency, Episcopal and Garfield Hospitals and Warwick Clinic. It is planned to erect it on the Naval Observatory grounds.

Although the FWA declined to release a copy of the first rough sketch of the center for publication, the general outlines were disclosed.

The preliminary plan calls for a single large building containing long lateral corridors with three wings on one side and another at each flank. Each of the five wings would contain about 300 beds.

Other features of the preliminary plan included a central kitchen to be used by all of the institutions in the center, a single nursing school and a parking area to accommodate 1000 cars.

Wherry's Son To Marry Here This Afternoon

By The Associated Press

Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) announced yesterday his son, David, 20, will be married this afternoon to Miss Phyllis Morehead, his childhood sweetheart.

The ceremony will be in the Lincoln Chapel of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church here. The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall will read the vows. Only members of the immediate families will be present.

Miss Morehead, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morehead, Pawnee City, Nebr., has worked for the past year as a clerk of the Senate Rules Committee. She attended the University of Nebraska and George Washington University.

Young Wherry resigned Monday from the Naval Academy at Annapolis after two years there and has enrolled in a pre-medical course at George Washington.

After the ceremony Senator and Mrs. Wherry will be hosts at a reception and dinner. The young couple plan a honeymoon trip to a Virginia mountain resort.

Klingle Rd. Bridge To Be Ready for Traffic on Nov. 8

Kingle rd. bridge in Rock Creek Park will be opened to traffic November 8, Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst announced yesterday.

Traffic will move crosstown from Conecticut ave. nw. to Adams Mill rd. via Porter st., the new bridge, and the section of Klingle rd. east of the bridge, Whitehurst said.

Kingle rd. west of Rock Creek will be opened at a later date when work is completed on a retaining wall and sewer installation.

Completion of the bridge has been held up several months by difficulty in obtaining steel guard rails, Whitehurst explained. Temporary rails will be installed so the bridge can be used pending arrival of steel fixtures and lighting equipment.

135 Lawyers Admitted to Practice in D. C.

Bushrod Corbin Washington, jr., a grandnephew of Geoorge Washington, was among 135 lawyers who were admitted to practice in District Court yesterday.

Also in the group was Frank L. Dennis, assistant managing editor of The Washington Post.

Washington, a graduate of George Washington University law school, is a desiendant of Bushrod Washington, a nephew of George Washington who was appointed to the Supreme Court by President John Adams in 1798.

Ethics of the legal profession were stressed by Assoliate Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut, District Court, and Walter C. Clephane, chairman of the court's committee on Admissions and Grievances, in brief talks. The oath was administered by Harry M. Hull, District Court clerk.

"Show-Windows-on-Wheels" Carry Washington's Biggest Daily Audience

Every public transit vehicle in Washington is a "show window on wheels." Each one displays a full complement of colorful, interesting Transitads (car cards).

To hundreds of advertisers these Transitads are the "show-windows" in which they can display their goods or services to the biggest, day-after-day audience in Washington.

Each Transitad, multiplied many times to appear in every Washington transit vehicle, is shown before a Washington audience that averages 1½ million riders per day. This immense audience, that gathers in Washington transit vehicles over every 24-hour span, stays "put" for an average 27 minutes per ride.

Next time you board a street car or bus, you'll be part of that audience. Remember the "show-window" overhead . . . and window shop as you ride.

Lanston Stock Raised to $2 Annual Basis

By S. Oliver Goodman

Directors of Lanston Monotype Machine Co. have declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a common share, placing the stock on a $2 annual basis, according to Chairman of the Board David S. Hendrick of Washington.

Previously, Lanston stock was on a $1 annual basis and last year a 50-cent extra was paid.

Hendrick reported that net income for the first six months this year was equivalent to $1.68 a share, while net for all of 1946 was equal to $1.39 a share. Earnings were adversely affected last year by a strike during the second quarter.

The latest dividend is payable November 29 to stock of record November 19. Lanston stock, widely held here, is traded on the Washington Stock Exchange. Yesterday's bid price was $22 a share.

TAX DISCUSSIONS: The first of eight seminars on Federal taxes will open on October 22 under the direction of Dr. Fritz Karl Mann, professor of public finance at the American University. Round table discussions and lectures by more than 70 tax experts will help to clarify controversial subjects. The meetings will be held in the United States Chamber of Commerce, 1615 H st. nw., and the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants will cooperate with American University in their sponsorship. Tax practitioners and others interested in keeping up with changing tax laws may obtain further information from Dr. Mann at American University.

Dr. Mann

17-YEAR RECORD: The Association of American Railroads reported number of freight cars loaded in week of October 11 was highest in 17 years and estimated that the actual movement of freight was about 70 per cent greater than in the peak 1930 week. Loadings for the week of October 11 totaled 956,362 cars, highest since 984,510 cars were loaded in the last week of August, 1930.

ODD LOTS: More than 28,000 auto workers who have been idled because of steel shortages were instructed yesterday by Briggs Manufacturing Co. and Chrysler to return to work Monday . . . Don't be alarmed if your fourth-quarter dividends are later than usual. Some may be delayed until early part of January so that stockholders can benefit from any possible tax reduction next year. This will apply particularly to extra payments . . . General American Transportation Corp. registered with SEC 150,000 shares of no-par series A cumulative preferred stock to be offered by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. group . . . Tubeless tire for autos will be placed on market before end of this year, B. F. Goodrich indicated after more than five years' research.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended October 11 showed 9 per cent rise over same period last year and were 12 per cent higher in four weeks ended October 11 than in like 1946 period. Regionally, department stores in Fifth Reserve District displayed 6 per cent gain for week and 7 per cent increases for four-week period. Figures were reported yesterday by Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

G. W. Faces Wake Forest Powerhouse

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DURHAM, N. C., OCT. 17.—Justice is either going to be done, or done in, tomorrow in this little Southern Conference town. The four-man football council of the conference will meet in solemn conclave in the morning and then hand down a ruling on Charley Justice, the North Carolina University halfback, whose eligibility is under fire.

POVICH

Young Mr. Justice is over at Williamsburg, Va., at this time, with the Carolina team that is playing William and Mary tomorrow, but he can be taken out of the play before the opening whistle if there is an adverse ruling by the conference council.

The entire conference is cocking an ear for the word that will come out of tomorrow's session. Carolina is going to be a very much de-fanged footbtall team if Justice gets the heave, and there will be no shedding of tears anywhere except at Chapel Hill. You can almost hear the greedy scraping of palms at the prospect that the other conference members won't have to contend with Justice when they play Carolina.

THE RHUBARB OVER Justice stems from the fact that he signed an agreement to play with the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League when he was a high school graduate of 19, back in 1943, and playing football then for the Bainbridge, Md., Naval Base team. That, supposedly, stamps him as ineligible for Southern Conference play, but all the arguments haven't been heard yet.

North Carolina, worse luck, isn't represented on the four-man football board that decides eligibility matters for the conference. But a couple of the Tarheels' future foes, North Carolina State and Maryland are. The other members of the board are delegates from V. P. I. and the Citadel, with William Cooper of V. P. I. presiding.

The chief point of the defense for Justice is North Carolina's claim that he actually signed no contract with the football pros—that it was merely an agreement that later was voided. In signing the agreement, Justice accepted a $250 check from the pros, but Elmer Layden, then commissioner of the pro league, declared the agreement void on the grounds that the pro rules forbade a club to sign a high school player. North Carolina now points out that Justice returned the $250, and that he cannot be accused of signing a contract that was voided and never honored.

THE CONTROVERSY OVER Justice commenced after the conference declared ineligible a Richmond University halfback named Vernon Morgan. Morgan, it was charged and proved, had signed a professional baseball contract when he was 15. The conference threw him out. Then charges against Justice were preferred.

Specifically stated in the conference rules is that (1) no college student who signs a professional contract shall be eligible and (2) no student who has signed a baseball contract with a professional team shall be eligible. The first provision apparently applied to only college students, and Justice at the time he signed was not a college student. The second clause merely states "student" without respect to college or high school status.

A strict interpretation of the rules bodes ill for Justice, but worse than that is the fact that North Carolina State is represented on the board. State and North Carolina have long been feuding in football matters, and it is presumed that the State representative will feel no compunction at all in giving the heave to Justice. State has to play North Carolina later in the year, and so does Maryland. The Citadel and V. P. I. don't.

IT WOULD BE A BRUTAL blow to Carolina if Justice were declared ineligible, and a tough break for the kid, too. He's only in his second year of varsity football, despite the fact he is 23, and the pros won't take him until his class graduates, which would be three seasons hence.

Anyway nobody ever accused the Southern Conference of being the purest circuit in college football. Their teams play Southeastern Conference and other schools who openly admit to subsidizing their players. There's no great call for them to crack down now, against a kid who like many another boy in the service did perhaps the rash and ill-advised thing.

There's precedence for his ouster from Southern Conference football, though. Some years back, Duke had what it believed was a good young football player in young Mickey Cochrane, brother of the famed big league catcher. But he was declared ineligible because he once signed a pro baseball contract. But in Justice's case, there's no call to be too harsh. He was in the service of his country when he made what apparently was his mistake. He needed the money for cokes, perhaps. He could be defended, with justice, I think.

Anacostia Wins Race With Clock By 13 to 7

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Anacostia's Indians, backed to their own five yard line by a Wilson aerial drive in the closing seconds of play, bolstered their sagging defense and emerged 13-7 victors in an interhigh football thriller at Wilson Stadium yesterday.

The Indians' win, before some 2500 spectators, was their second in three league games and boosted them into a tie for third place with Eastern's Ramblers.

OTHER HIGH SCHOOL GAMES ON PAGE 16

The Ramblers tangle with McKinley Tech's Trainers at 2:30 p. m. today at Central Stadium.

Seven Anacostia linemen, led by Tackles Roland Dixon and Bob Neal, were the heroes of the game, although they received a welcome assist from the clock.

After the Indians had run up a 13-0 lead with nine minutes left to play, the Wilson air attack started to click.

Five passes tossed by Dan Ventries, including a six-yard payoff pitch to Richard Janigan, gave the Tigers a touchdown. A pass for extra point from Pat O'Neill to Bill Voight cut the Anacostia lead to 13-7.

With three minutes to go, the Tigers hit the air lanes again from the Anacostia 43 with O'Neill passing. He completed passes to Chet Cooper and Voight and the ball moved to the Anacostia five.

Changing their tactics, the Tigers switched their attack to the ground, and the big Indian line, outstanding all day, turned back O'Neill twice and Julian Self once as the game ended. Neal and ixon were in on each tackle.

The Indians took a 6-0 lead late in the first quarter on an 89-yard touchdown drive of three plays. Monk Fraser's 61-yard dash to the Wilson 19 set up the score. Bob Mitchell crashed over center from the six. Max Pheasant's dropkick for extra point was low.

Anacostia's second touchdown came in the fourth period on a 43-yard drive, capped by Chow Echaves' 30-yard run off tackle. Echaves bucked over for the extra point.

HE'S GOING FOR A TOUCHDOWN—Bob Mitchell (38), of Anacostia, is on his way to a first period touchdown yesterday against Wilson. Mitchell's plunge was for 6 yards and he was almost stopped by Julian Self (36), of Wilson (with hand outstretched) but a block by an unidentified Anacostia lineman (right) took Self out of the play. Anacostia won, 13-7

Colonials Figured to Lose by 3 Touchdowns

By a Post Reporter

George Washington University's Colonials, still looking for their first win after three straight defeats, make their hometown bow today at 2 p. m. when they tangle with the undefeated and untied Deacons of Wake Forest.

More than 10,000 fans are expected at Griffith Stadium.

The Deacons, strongest where the Colonials are weakest, are three to four touchdown favorites.

The Colonials are weakest on pass defense. The Deacons possess in Halfback Tommy Fetzer, the Nation's No. 1 passer, percentagewise. Tommy has completed 25 out of 38 passes for a .658 mark.

He has as his preferred receivers a pair of glue-fingered ends in Jim Duncan and Red McQuinn, although the latter will not start. The Deacs, ranked as the top Southern Conference team, and fourteenth among the Nation's teams by the Associated Press weekly sports-writers' poll, are second among the United States elevents in rushing defense.

The Deacons' three opponents, Georgetown, Clemson and North Carolina, managed to gain a total of only 84 yards on the ground. Key me nin the Wake Forest line, which averages 213 pounds are 230-pounder Bob Leanetti, formerly of G. W., and 210-pounder Ed Royston, both guards.

G. W. Coach Skip Stahley has revamped his backfield more in an effort to add scoring punch. In the Colonials' three losing efforts against Virginia, VMI and Washington and Lee, only one of the four G. W. touchdowns was scored by a back. That was tallied by Jimmy Kline on a pass from Joohnny Mazero against Virginia.

Hank Bartelloni has been installed at left halfback to take care of the passing. Al DuGoff, a sophomore, and former Roosevelt High star, will be at the other half, starting for the first time. Line-plunging Bill Spangler will be a full and Joe Wapinski will call signals.

Babe's 293 Takes Arkansas Title

Fort Smiht, Ark., Oct. 17 (AP).—Mildred (Babe) Zaharias of Denver won the $2500 Hardscrabble Country Club's women's open golf championship here today, stroking a 75 on the final 18 holes for a 72-hole score off 293. She received the $1250 first prize.

Mrs. Zaharias, who yesterday scored an 11-under-par 68, was five strokes ahead off Patty Berg, Minneapolis, whose 73 today gave her a total score of 298 and second-place money of $750. Betty Jameson of San Antonio, won third prizeo ff $500 with a 78 and a 305 total.

Segura Upsets Frank Parker

Mexico City, Oct. 17 (AP).—Francisco (Pancho) Segura, Ecuador's singles champion, upset defending Pan-American Champion Frank Parker of Los Angeles today in the semi-finals of the sixth Pan-American singles championship.

Segura took the first set 6-3, dropped the second 0-6, and then took another easily 6-3. In the fourth set Parker had a 7-5 advantage and twice lost match point. Segura finally won the game and then took the next two for 9-7 and the match.

Fancy Tulsa Attack Worry For Hoyas

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 17.—Out here in the land of red soil, Redskins and black gold, it odesn't look very promising for Georgetown University tomorrow.

Local lights have established the Tulsans as 13½-point favorites, and that may be about right. However, Coach Jack Hagerty of Georgetown's Hoyas begs to differ.

"If my boys play as well against Tulsa as they did in their 6-0 loss to Wake Forest, we can beat Tulsa," Hagerty said.

The team that Hagerty's charges will oppose is a typically Tulsa eleven. That means that the Georgetowners will face a style of attack not often seen in Eastern college circles.

Over the years, Tulsa teams have gone in for spread formations, tricky stuff and a lot of forward passing. That's the way the Tulsans will play tomorrow.

Tulsa Beaten Once

Georgetown demonstrated against the Wake Forest's giant-sized line that it can stop a hard, straight-line ground attack, but a question remains whether it can fathom Tulsa's wide-open play and its passing.

Tulsans aren't especially hgih on this year's team. It has won twice and lost once, to Texas Tech. But Tulsa teams seldom lose in Tulsa, and they have an impressive record in tersectional and bowl games.

Five straight years — 1942 through 1946—Tulsa sent its team to Bowl games.

In 1942 Tulsa beat Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, 6-0; lost to Tennessee, 14-7, and to Georgia Tech, 29-18, in Sugar Bowl games of 1943 and 1944; beat Georgia Tech in Florida's Orange Bowl, 26-12, in 1945, and lost to Georgia in the Oil Bowl in Houston, 26-6, in 1946.

Play Here Next Year

Thats the caliber of opponent that Georgetown faces tomorrow.

Tulsa has lost its passer and "coach on the field," Clyde Leforce, of last year, but has come up with a young man named Jim Finks who "finks" thnigs out pretty well, too.

Hagerty is especially eager to beat the Tulsans for they play a return game in Washington next season. If this year's game clicks, the Tulsa-Georgetown game may grow into an annual affair. In his pep talk before tomorrow's game, Hagerty can point out to his boys that back in 1923 a Georgetown team faced Tulsa in the only previous meeting of these two schools, and Georgetown won, 26-0.

Coolidge Beats Roosevelt, 25-0

With Tex Jones supplying the spark, Coolidge exploded for four touchdowns to rout a hapless Roosevelt team, 25-0, before 3000 spectators yesterday at Central Stadium.

The victory gave Coolidge, last year's Interhigh champion, its first league victory against a pair of setbacks. For Roosevelt it was the third defeat in a row.

The Colts struck for a touchdown in each period. Jones was the key in three of these tallies.

In the first quarter, Tex flipped a 15-yard toss to Bobby Rohr, who escaped untouched for 45 yards and a touchdown. Frank Minni plunged for the point.

With the ball on the Roosevelt 18 in the second session, Jones faded and pegged a beauty to Bud Hefler who hade a diving match in the end zone and put Coolidge ahead, 13-0, at halftime.

The third period score came after Guard Jerry Kull recovered a Roosevelt fumble on the Rough Rider 9. Minni carried to the one and John Brosnan sneaked it over. Then in the fourth quarter, the ever-present Jones took off around his right end and outrand the Roosevelt secondary for a 67-yard touchdown jaunt.

Middies Keyed Up For Big Red Game At Ithaca Today

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Navy's football team was in a rip-snorting, fighting mood tonight and if it fails to sock Cornell here tomorrow, it won't be because of lack of that old "hubba-hubba."

Not since the Army game last year has Coach Tom Hamilton's squad been in such a keen mental state. Hamilton appreciated the fine spirit his Sailors displayed at their workout this morning, but warned them that it will take more than just spirit to thrash the Big Red.

And he didn't have to remind them that tomorrow's clash well could be the make-or-break game on their murderous schedule. Cornell, a slight underdog, is the softest touch on the slate from here on out and if the Sailors fail to crash through with a victory, it's curtains.

Tough Row to Hoe

Coming up after the Cornell game are Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Penn-State and Army in the order named. And even optimistic Hamilton can't see a triumph anywhere in that group, so tomorrow must be the day if there's to be a Middie triumph this year.

And if one does come, it'll be the first in 12 games. Only the 14-14 tie with Duke last Saturday spoils an otherwise perfect losing string.

Hamilton still hadn't decided who would direct his "T" attack tomorrow. He used both Reaves Baysinger, jr., who has been disappointing so far this year, and Bob Horne, the sub who sparked the drive against Duke, at quarterback in this morning's rehearsal.

Observers believe Baysinger will be tapped and they also believe that he's about ready to live up to his advance notices.

Another uncertainty is at right guard where Ed Golding usually plays. Golding was hurt in the Duke game and may yield the starting cal lto Bob Hunt.

33,737 to See Game

Cornell, beaten only by Yale in three games, is primed for Navy's first visit here.

Coach Lefty James, in his first year at Cornell, has a fair-to-middlin' team which features the power running of Capt. Walter Kretz and the hippity-dippity dashes of Sophomore Bernie Babula.

All 33,737 tickets were sold long ago and tomorrow's audience will constitute a record one for Schoellkopf Field.

The probable lineups:

Navy		Cornell
Martel	L. E.	Bolger
Smith	L. T.	Westphall
Emerson	L. G.	Quinn
Scott	Center	Pastuck
Golding	R. G.	Busch
Shimabuk	R. T.	Lous

Terps Seek Initial Victory Over Devils; 25,000 Expected

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Durham, N. C., Oct. 19.—Highly aware of past indignities at the hands of Duke, this season's unbeaten Maryland University football team takes the field tomorrow in a vengeful mood—but underdogs again.

Maryland's new coach, Jim Tatum, who has seen his team romp over South Carolina, Delaware and Richmond in its first three games of the year, will be striving for Maryland's first conquest of a Duke team.

Four times Maryland has tried to beat Duke—and it's been awful. They took a 34-0 beating in 1932 under Coach Curly Byrd, and in 1933 it was 38-7.

Under Clark Shaughnessey in 1941, it was a 50-0 licking for Maryland, and the following year a 42-0 massaging. For Duke, 164 points in the four games, for Maryland 7.

Like Maryland, Duke is unbeaten, with its latest outing a 14-14 tie with Navy, and the Blue Devils are being quoted as 14-point favorites. A crowd of 25,000 is anticipated.

Tatum is more than slightly distressed by the absence of his No. 2 halfback, Hubert Werner, who is out of tomorrow's contest with contusions of the thigh suffered against Richmond. John Idzik, 165-pound halfback, will replace him.

The Maryland team flew into Durham tonight on a chartered airliner that brought 38 players and the coaching staff into the landing field in bumpy weather. The squad is quartered at nearby Chapel Hill, in North Carolina University dormitories.

For Lu Gambino, rampant right halfback, whose touchdown gallops have featured all of Maryland's victories to date, tomorrow's game is the big test. In Duke's heavy, smart line, typical of Coach Wallace Wade's products, Gambino will be meeting up with the aggregation that stopped Navy's vaunted fullback, Bill Hawkins.

Duke has held its opponents to an average of 70 yards gained per game, but Maryland believes it can throw more good backs at the Duke defense than it has encountered this season.

Vic Turin, clever ball handler in the quarterback spot of Maryland's T, not only directs a smart passing attack, but his hand-offs to Gambino and Fullback Harry Bonk may be something for Duke to contend with.

In Duke, Marylanud will be meeting up with a single-wing outfit that features, besides the passing of Folger, the end and off-tackle sweeps of Buddy Mulligan, and the smashing game of Paul Stephanz, 185-pound fullback.

The probable lineups:

Maryland		Duke
Sinnler	L. E.	Hardison
Drash	L. T.	Allen
Phillips	L. G.	Marshall
Kinney	Cen.	Wall
Schwars	R. G.	Knotts
Rock	R. T.	Eisenberg
Davis	R. E.	Duncan
Turyn	Q. B.	Montgomery
Idzik	L. H.	Folger
Gambino	R. H.	Mulligan
Bonk	F. B.	Stephanz

Lions Halted By 'Fog' While Trailing, 1 to 0

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Fog, smog, or what have you, caused the hockey contest between the Washington Lions and the Hershey Bears at Uline Arena to be called off after officials ruled further play was impossible.

The Bears were leading 1-0, at the time. Three previous interruptions because of fog had delayed the game.

Geordie Bruce, Bear wingman, had poked in a point-blank shot after 1:12 of the opening period to put the champs ahead, 1-0.

Fog, which had accumulated as play got under way, became so bad that the ice was cleared of players at five minutes of the first period and four Lions, with blankets, attempted to clear the playing surface of the vapor.

They succeeded and play continued for three minutes when, the fog returned. This time all the players raced around the rink waving their sticks to dispel the murk. Again play started and again it stopped after a couple of minutes.

Officials decided to call the first period over after 10:47. They also decided to tack the remaining 9 minutes and 47 seconds of the first period onto the second stanza.

A further decision was made to flood the ice.

This was done and the players returned for the marathon second session. After six minutes of play, the fog rose again. The management conferred with the officials and decided to stop the game.

One "weather expert" advised that the 71-degree temperature and 91-degree humidity combined to Uline officials were awaiting word from American League headquarters in New York as to whether the game would be replayed, from what point it would be replayed, or whether the score might stand.

The spectators were informed by the management that their ticket money would be refunded at the Uline box office from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. or at the Fairway Sports Shop from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

For patrons wishing to keep the tickets, the management advised that they would be honored at either the Tuesday night game with New Haven or the Friday night contest with Springfield.

Immediately afte rthe game was halted the Lions entrained for Pittsburgh where they will meet the Pittsburgh Hornets tonight.

Not Forced to Sell

MacPhail Blames Tax Bite For His Quitting Yankees

New York, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Larry MacPhail stoutly denied today that either Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler or an aftermath of the rowdy World Series victory party forced him to resign as president and general manager of the New York Yankees.

Money was the only consideration, MacPhail told a press conference.

He said the deal for him to sell his stock to Del Webb and Dan Topping, his partners for three years in the Yankee enterprise, was made on September 18, 1947—two weeks before the start of the series.

His salary as general manager he said was $50,000 a year plus 10 per cent of the profits. This would have put him in a higher income tax bracket and, "I was in the position where I would have been working for nothing," MacPhail added.

Plan Rejected

Although MacPhail branded as "absolutely false" stories that Webb and Topping had forced him out of the Yankee organization, his statement threw another gem of speculation into the case.

The date that MacPhail set for the agreed sale of his stock coincides with the deal whereby Topping and Webb rejected a plan to sell a half interest in the Yanks to a Wall Street syndicate which, in turn, would have placed the stock on public sale.

At the time, MacPhail's statement indicated he had favored the plan, but that Topping and Webb rejected it.

MacPhail's statement today also constituted a denial of the reports that he had agreed with Chandler to step out of baseball at the end of this season. Said Larry: "No one knew I was going to resign as general manager until I announced it to the press right after the Yankees won the series."

For the Record

The red-haired fireball, who said he is retiring to his Maryland farm, claimed today that the entire two million dollars which Webb and Topping reportedly paid for his stock came from corporate profits. "Neither Mr. Webb nor Mr. Topping put a single dollar of their own money to purchase my stock," he said.

MacPhail said he called today's press conference "to set the record straight."

May Shift to Belmont Monday

Strike Forces Cancellation Of Jamaica Race Card Today

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—Because of the strike of grooms and exercise boys at the Jamaica Race Track, the Metropolitan Jockey Club announced tonight its directors had decreed "there will be no racing tomorrow."

A spokesman for the club released a statement which said in part:

"Inasmuch as the Metropolitan Jockey Club is not a party to the controversy between horsemen and their employes, the MJC has asked permission of the State Racing Commission to transfer racing to Belmont Park."

Directors decided to suspend Jamaica operations, the statement said, "when it became evident that new and additional difficulties of horse transportation due to the dispute . . . would make it impossible for the racing association to conduct racing at Jamaica."

However, the strike of stable workers, picketing by their bargaining agent, the Teamsters Union, AFL, and foggy weather were not enough to keep 17,388 fans from seeing a normal number of horses perform at Jamaica today.

They saw Mrs. Whitney Stone's By Sea capture the featured Hedgewood (Class C) Handicap for fillies and mares by three-quarters of a length thus giving trainer Jim Fitzsimmons and Jockey Hedley Woodhouse a consecutive double. Mama Fufu was second with ellendale third 5 lengths behind. By Sea paying $5.90 was timed in 1:11 2/5 for the 6 furlongs. Risolater, the favorite, could not keep up with the leaders and wound up fourth.

One of the main developments in the strike situation was the fact that George Gotimer, president of the Independent Union of Mutuels Workers, announced that his department would not walk out in sympathy with the AFL strikers.

Redskins Off To Green Bay, Taylor Stays Home

En Route to Milwaukee, Oct. 17. They were short one very important player, End Hugh Taylor, but high confidence reigned among the Washington Redskins tonight as they entrained for Sunday's important National Football League clash with the Green Bay Packers.

Taylor, suffering a recurrence of the fever and cold which kept him out of last week's game, was left behind on orders of Dr. Robert Moran, club physician.

As one of Sammy Baugh's best passing targets, the lanky Oklahoman will be missed against a Packer eleven concided at 7-point margin, but the Redskins still boasted ample talent on their wings.

Five ends are on the squad of 32 men, 6 tackles, five guards, 3 centers and 13 backs. Every player was in shape for at least part of Sunday's outing, although Tackle Johnny Adams and Fullback Sai Rosato may be used sparingly.

Trough Hill Wins Butler 'Chase in Photo Finish, Sets Record

Bennings . . .

Dear Folks: At Laurel.

Mrs. J. T. Maloney's Big If, easy winter at Jamaica, will be shipped to Laurel to keep his engagement in next Wednesday's Spalding Lowe Jenkins Stake, it was learned today. The gelding, a son of King Cole and Nasca is in charge of Mrs. Maloney's husband. The latter is anxious to compete in the Jenkins and there will be added interest in the appearance of Big If, should he come down for the race, for the son of King Cole was bred by Breckinridge Long, one of Laurel's directors. Big If's victory yesterday was an impressive one, for he ran six furlongs in 1:12 3/5 without being extended as he triumphed by four lengths. Immediate response from the public has marked two items undertaken by the Laurel management to provide quicker and better service for its patrons. Installation of four turnstiles and two ticket-selling booths on the upper level of the ramp leading from the railroad into the track has relieved ground congestion by a considerable amount and more and more train patrons are using this entrance each day. Also to facilitate handling of the many customers who wish to participate in the daily double wagering, windows for sale of double tickets have been opened on the mezzanine floor of the grandstand. This too, has been an item to find quick favor with the fans. See you on the rail.

Sun Bath Loses Duel In Stretch

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 17.—A rarity—a photo finish in a jumping race—developed today when Mrs. Stephen C. Clark, Jr.'s, Trough Hill headed Robert W. Grant's Sun Bath in a thrilling finish of the $10,000 added Butler Handicap Steeplechase, first of the brush features here. Mrs. Corliss Sullivan's Allier was third in the field.

A crowd of 11,000 saw the battle in which Sun Bath was a keen factor. This 5-year-old raced head and head with Kent Miller's Elkridge in setting the pace and then fought it out with good courage when threatened by Trough Hill, only to weaken right at the wire.

Jockey T. Field won his second steeplechase aboard Trough Hill, a $4.60 favorite, clocked in 3:52 for the about 2 miles over 13 fences. The time was the best for the Butler, first contested in 1944.

Flint Shot Thriller

Elkridge, the high weight of the race, stumbled and dropped out of contention at the tenth fence, leaving Sun Bath in front. Chesapeake failed to get in the race at any stage and was taken up when going lame.

The Flint Shot, $5000 secondary feature on the flat, not only was a thriller, but was marked by disqualification. Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Dr. Almac and the Bomar Stable's Piet battled head and head through the stretch.

However, Dr. Almac bumped his rival while bearing out. Jockey R. Howell lodged an objection against C. Wahler which was sustained. Dr. Almac was disqualified and placed second.

Daily Double Pays $67.60

S. A. Mason 2d's First Nighter was third with the heavily backed Whirl Some, from the Calumet barn, fourth.

The fans booed lustily as the horses returned to be unsaddled, some because Whirl Some ran a poor race and others because of the bumping in the stretch.

The daily double paid $67.60, on the 7 and 7 combination. E. B. Townsend's Barefoot Lad won the first race at $15 while E. K. Bryson's Lady Airy, at $9.80, was successful in the second.

Haight Loses 5 Pounds, $46; Comes Up With His Own Diet

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

THE "FOR MEN ONLY" diet—a 10-day affair, thank goodness—is over.

I lost the following: 5 pounds; $46 (at Laurel); 11 friends; 86 arguments and 1 pair of old shoes (forgot to bring them home when I bought a new pair).

Well, Lucia Brown got away with it, so I believe I will go in the diet business. She specializes in the concave, so I'm going to feature the convex—for either sex.

My diet guarantees to put on 10 pounds in 24 hours with 16,984 calories. If you follow it faithfully, W. W. Chambers will weigh you without charge. Here goes:

BREAKFAST—1 can peaches, be sure to drink all juice; oatmeal, quart bowy with plenty of cream and sugar; pancakes, 5 stacks of 4 each with 1 bottle syrup; eggs, 3, any style fried in butter; pork sausage, ½ pound; coffee, 4 cups.

MIDMORNING SNACK—Candy bars, 4, gooey kind.

LUNCH—Bean soup with pork rind; spaghetti, 3 servings with 14 meat balls; small salad with bottle of olive oil; pit a la mode; sweet rolls, butter ¼ pound; milk, one quart.

DINNER—Anything fattening.

MIDNIGHT SNACK—Welsh rarebit.

1 A.M.—Two does of bicarbonate of soda.

3 A.M.—Call doctor.

Alcoholics should drink five old-fashions before dinner and six bourbons before midnight.

Good time, Lucia Brown, Better time, Haight.

St. John's Downs Western High

Cadets Gain 4th Victory By 20 to 13

Coming from behind twice, St. John's Cadets defeated Western's Red Raiders, 20-13, yesterday at Western Stadium and preserved their unbeaten record at four games.

A one-yard quarterback sneak by Cadet Jack George in the fourth quarter broke a 13-13 tie. George had passed to St. John's previous two touchdowns, one on a 10 yarder to Tom Fannon in the second quarter, and the other on 30 yards to Bob Poch in the third. George also converted twice.

Western scored the game's first touchdown in the first quarter when Don Strain picked up a Cadet fumble and raced 30 yards. Jack Leadbetter set up the second Western touchdown in the third period with a 30-yard run. A lateral pass play, Don Strain to Norm Wacker scored from the 15 and George Holmes converted.

Dean Paces Friends

With Tommy Dean, their sparkplug fullback, personally delivering three touchdowns and passing for another, Friends defeated National Training School, 34-0 at Friends' field yesterday afternoon. It was the Quakers third win against one defeat.

Bainbridge Wins, 13-6

Bainbridge, Md., Oct. 17.—The Bainridge Navy Commodores rammed across a touchdown late in the final quarter to defeat a strong Washington Military District eleven, 13-6, here yesterday. Scolpino and Smith tallied for the Navy and Cornell converted.

Williams Fights Pellone

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—Ike Williams of Trenton, N. J., world lightweight champion, and Tony Pellone of Brooklyn, agreed today to terms for a 10-round nontitle bout in Madison Square Garden on Friday, December 12.

25,000 to See Tennessee State, W. Va. State Clash Here Tonight

Some 25,000 persons are expected to watch tonight's sixth annual Capital Classic at Griffith Stadium featuring the Tennessee State College Tigers from Nashville and the West Virginia State College Yellow Jackets. Kickoff is set for 8:30.

Both teams were on the scene yesterday and went through workouts, with Coach Henry Kean presiding over the Tennessee session, and Mark Cardwell, the Mountaineers.

Tennessee, with four All-American intercollegiate players in the starting lineup, and shooting for its second straight national championship, will be the favorites.

Both teams are unbeaten, but the Tigers, with a 26-0 victory over Arkansas; 34-6 over Texas, 33-0 over Langston and 26-0 over Allen, have the most impressive record. In 16 games they have lost but one.

West Virginia will rely heavily on Lynwood Green, All-Eastern quarterback, who with Taylor, is regarded one of the best forward passers in Negro college circles this season. Three Washington boys—Earl Cox, fullback; Francis Queen, tackle, of Armstrong High, and Jack Taylor, Dunbar product—are among the Mountaineer stars. West Virginia last week beat Kentucky State, 18-6.

A parade at 11:30 this morning in which thousands of students, two brass bands, and 30 floats will participate, will start from 18th and U sts. nw., going as far as New Jersey ave.

Beach Wins Open, 8 and 7

Garrison, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—Ralph Beach, Suburban Club veteran, today won the twelfth annual Baltimore City Open Golf Tournament by trouncing Charlie Price of the Kenwood Club, Washington, 8 and 7.

Bach was 4 under par for the day in winning the final round of the last major golf tournament of the 1947 season in the Middle Atlantic area.

He was 5 up on the Washingtonian after shooting 35, 35—70, 2 under par, in the morning round, and ended the match on the twenty-ninth hole when both finalists took par 4s.

A hole in one on the 147-yard twenty-fourth hole helped Beach to his first victory in the fall classic after two previous disappointments. He missed out after reaching the finals in 1939 and 1946.

Beach dropped his tee shot with a No. 5 iron. Price then stepped up and drove his ball 2 feet from the pin for a birdie 2.

Kays Scores Twice; Warrenton Wins, 32-14

Substitute Fullback Pop Kays scored two touchdowns to lead Warrenton High to a 33-14 victory over Leesburg at Warrenton yesterday.

Kays ran 50 yards with an intercepted pass for one six-pointer and bulled through the line from the 5 for another. Quarterback Paul Lunsford sneaked across from the 5 for a third and added three extra points on drop kicks.

Leesburg Quarterback Woodward gave the losers both their scores on two 2-yard line plunges. He also place-kicked both extra points.

Woodward Loses, 13-0

Bud Burton accounted for all Sherwood High points yesterday as his team gained a 13-0 victory over Woodward Prep at Sherwood.

PEPCO Asks PUC To End Reserve Fund

Money Held to Pay Refunds to Buyers Of Electricity

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

PEPCO asked the PUC yesterday to stop making it set aside about a million dollars a year for refunds to electricity buyers.

PEPCO is the Potomac Electric Power Company. The PUC is the District Public Utilities Commission. The company presented a formal petition asking the PUC to let it treat as revenue the money now set aside for refunds at the rate of about $95,000 a month.

Company officials said approval of their request would remove the need of asking for a rate increase early next year to meet rising costs of operations. These officials estimated the plan, if approved, would give hte company a million dollars more a year in gross revenue, and would increase net earnings about $600,000 a year, to a total of about 4.9 million dollars. They said the company earned 4.951 percent on its rate base (investment less depreciation) in the year ending Sept. 30, and the proposed plan would boost the earning rate to about 5.5 percent.

PEPCO Officials Explain Plan

A. G. Neal, PEPCO president, and other company officials, outlined the proposal at a press conference in the PEPCO building after the petition was filed with the PUC.

PUC staff officials said that approval of the PEPCO plan would foreclose prospects for a consumer refund next year. If the refunds were paid out on the pattern by which they are now set aside, they would amount annually to $1.20 for residential users, $2.40 for small commercial users, 9.5 per cent of commercial demand accounts, and 3.6 per cent of other large commercial accounts.

President Neal told reporters "we are not going to request any increase in rates right now. If we get this relief, we don't anticipate any increase in rates for the next year."

PEPCO is the second major District utility in as many days to disclaim an immediate interest in boosting rates. The Washington Gas Light Co. told the PUC Thursday it did not now want a rate boost, but was terminating its present rate-making agreement. PEPCO's petition also voiced dissatisfaction with its rate agreement with the PUC, saying the present arrangement does not provide for rate relief when needed.

$667,000 In Reserve Fund

Neal said there is now about $667,000 in the reserve account for consumer refunds, and that the estimated total by the end of this year will be about $953,000. The present fund started accumulating March 1. Previous reserves set aside for refunds had mounted to $3,213,601 when the PUC ordered the refund made this year. Neal said all present customers have now received the refund as a credit, and previous customers have received applications to file for their refunds.

At the rate of $95,000 a month, the reserve for refunds would total $1,040,000 a year.

In its petition, PEPCO said its rates have never been increased since 1925, when the first sliding-scale rate-making arrangement went into effect, and that they have been decreased in only two years. It cited an earlier request to the PUC for permission to discontinue the special reserve for customer refunds as of March 1 this year.

Billing at 1943 Rates

Neal said the company is still billing its customers at 1943 rates. The petition said that compared with 1943, the year ended September 30 showed total operating and maintenance expense up 58 per cent and net earnings off 22 per cent.

This drop in earnings, the petition said, will impair the company's chances to attract capital for a 43.5-million-dollar five-year program of capital improvements. Officials said this was the same program estimated in June to cost 38 million, with the increase resulting from a new estimate of costs.

The petition was filed by attorneys James Francis Reilly and William K. Laws.

In Export Case

Toneman Convicted of Mail Fraud

Paul L. Toneman, 32, yesterday was found guilty on two counts of using the mails to defraud and one count of false pretenses by a District Court jury.

The jury brought in the verdict after deliberating only 45 minutes. The defendant, who was accused of swindling a Los Angeles export firm official out of $2050 under pretext that he could obtain an export license to China for the exporter, faces a maximum sentence of 13 years.

Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff congratulated the jury on its finding and said "I heartily concur in your verdict."

Toneman also faces a possible additional sentence for contempt involving refusal to comply with four direct orders from Holtzoff to reveal the names of Government officials, Toneman sad asserted he had dealings with.

He said he had given one "bureau chief" $1500 in a move to secure the license. He also asserted he had delt with a man "close to Secretary of Commerce Harriman." Toneman is currently serving a 4-12 month sentence for swindling a manicurist out of $500 on an "investment" deal.

Department of Commerce records showed no license application by Toneman.

"We don't know him from a hole in the wall," a Commerce spokesman declared.

That Blanket Will Continu To Be Excess

If you've been feeling you were a bit hasty in dragging your fur-lined sleeping bag out of storage—well, chum, you were.

No less of an authority than the U. S. Weather Bureau said the weather here today and tomorrow will be "continued warm"—which is a meteorological way of saying temperatures will continue in the high 70s.

If you've steeled yourself you can probably take the rest of it: mostly cloudy, scattered showers, some sunshine in the afternoon, highest temperature near 78, gentle southeast winds. And tomorrow—some cloudiness, continued warm.

Take a salt tablet if all this heat makes you giddy.

Yesterday's temperatures were, of course, unseasonable. The mercury hit 79 at 2:04 p. m. and the low mark was 67 at 5:12 p. m.

But it could have been worse. Back in 1908 and again in 1938 the thermometer hit 86 on October 17. And for contrast, October 17 in 1886 and 1893 witnessed low temperatures of 33.

District Shriners Feast Tonight at Oyster Festival

District Shriners from Almas Temple and friends to the number of 1700 will have their annual oyster festival tonight at 6 in the Mayflower Hotel.

Proceeds of the buffet dinner will go to the 16 crippled children's hospitals throughout the country, sponsored by the national Shrine organization, and to the national Shrine activities fund.

Illustrious Potentate Ralph M. Wolfe said yesterday: "The menu goes something like this—Rhode Island clam chowder, oysters on the half shell, baked oysters (different styles), deviled crab cakes, goujons and fried oysters, remoulade sauce, crabflakes, shrimps and scallops, Espagnole, risotto au safran, cold meats, sausages, hamburger, snacks, chicken a la king."

Lt. Col. Wylie's Body Is Reported Found in Poland

A body believed to be that of Lieut. Col. Andrew Wylie of Washington, United States naval attache, has been recovered from the Oder River near Szczecin, Poland, the United States Embassy at Warsaw, Poland, said yesterday.

Wylie, a bachelor, member of one of Washington's oldest families, whose home at 1205 Thomas Circle was a District landmark for many years, apparently fell from a bridge and was drowned December 27, 1945, the embassy said.

The body will be taken to Berlin today, en route to Antwerp and the United States, the Associated Press reported.

National Guard Group From D. C. To Tour Air Bases

Ten officers and enlisted men of the District National Guard will take off from Andrews Field at 8 a. m. today in a C-47 for a tour of Army air bases throughout the country.

The tour will last from 10 to 15 days during which the Guardsmen will visit bases at Marietta, Ga.; Little Rock, Ark.; ..orman, Okla.; Phoenix, Ariz.; San Bernardino and Los Angeles, Calif.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Sioux Falls, S. D., and Des Moines, Iowa.

The National Guard said the men will make observations during the tour and make recommendations upon their return to improve the District Guard's air base.

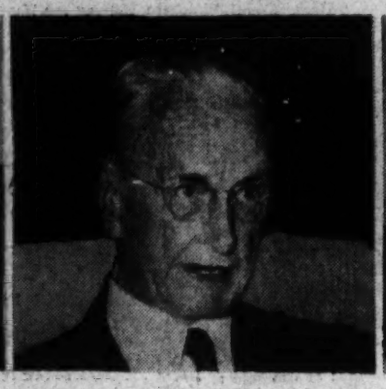
CONSUMERS—The parents of eight children, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Coan of 400 W. Broad st., Falls Church, Va., testified at yesterday's hearing on the proposed 21-cent-a-quart milk price, held in the Alexandria Health Department. They brought along son, Gerry, 4

MRS. CHARLES V. STRAIN, chairman of the Arlington Consumer Council, declared, "It almost appears as though the entire responsibility for feeding hungry Europe and the maintenance of the domestic economy rests solely on the shoulders of the harassed American housewife"



J. F. QUINN of Clifton, Va., said, "I cannot think of a single more unwarranted thing than to come into the Village of Clifton and order the small farmer to charge more than they would like to (for milk) or the community can afford . . . They should turn this all over to the Dies Committee . . ."

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

MRS. SARAH NEWMAN, chairman of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, told those attending the crowded hearing that "In 77 cities, for which fluid milk pri ces are reported by the Department of Agriculture, 68 reported lower prices than we do . . . it's alarming to . . . be faced again with an increase . . ."

Judge Ponders Paternal Right To Punish Son

Severity of the punishment a father can rightfully inflict on a son who admits sharing in stolen money was being studied by Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey yesterday.

The father, Lawrence Lee Cox, sr., 30, of 1909 Nichols ave. se., was brought into court on charges of assault on his 8-year-old son, Lawrence, jr.

The charge was brought by the boy's uncle, Wallace Cox, who said the father flailed the boy with a belt and a fly swatter last Thursday night as punishment for sharing in money a neighbor's son had stolen from his father.

Police who took Lawrence, jr., to Gallinger Hospital after the whipping said the boy's back, thighs and buttocks "looked like a zebra."

Judge Casey recessed court briefly and took the boy into his chambers to examine the marks.

Wallace Cox said the father questioned the boy about the money and heard him confess they had been on a "spending spree," buying toy pistols and holsters and hiding them near a railroad statio nin Anacostia. The child also admitted playing hookey from school, police said.

Judge Casey continued the case until November 7 to permit a probation officer to study the father's record, if any and to enable the judge to examine the case further.

Smoke Drink Sellers Face $1000 Fine

A Municipal Court judge and prosecutor yesterday warned sellers of "smoke," a drink made out of denatured alcohol, that they would facethe maximum penalty of a $1000 fine or a year in jail, or both.

Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott sentenced James T. Smith, 44, 1834 West Court nw., to six months in jail and warned that in the future the penalty would be more severe.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert Kneipp asked the judge not to be too harsh on Smith because past sentences had been much lighter. He said he would request the maximum sentence in the future.

Smith was arrested Thursday afternoon for selling "smoke on the street for 5 cents a shot. When he pleaded guilty to the charge, the judge asked:

"Are you in partners with the undertaker? Don't you know this stuff kills people?"

District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald reported that there had been 25 deaths from the drinking of denatured alcohol so far this year. Taken in large quantities it kills and produces blindness in smaller doses, he said.

21-Cent Milk Plan Is Fought By Consumers at Va. Hearing

greatly increased costs to area farmers for feed, labor, farm machinery and sanitation equipment. In response to a question from him, producers in the audience estimated that 50 per cent of the dairy herds being sold in this area go to the beef market rather than to other dairy farmers because farmers can get a better price for beef than for dairy products.

On numerous occasions throughout the hearing, consumers' and producers' representatives challenged each other's statistics.

Can't Afford Increase

Mrs. Q. Ethel Clair of Arlington, a Republican candidate for House of Delegates, stated, "You're only killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. We women cannot afford milk at these prices."

Condemning the proposed rise of $5.60 to $6.06½ per hundredweight of milk at the farm level, Mrs. Sarah H. Newman, chairman of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, declared:

"This new high would indeed be a shameful and stupid record in the history of the price of milk for this area."

"We're the people who can't come forward and quote these long statistics," said another consumer, Mrs. Carl Coan, of 400 W. Broad st., Falls Church, who said she is the mother of eight children, one of whom was with her and her husband at the hearing.

A resident of Clifton, Va., J. F. Quinn, stated that in that town there are three families with 10 children who received milk from neighboring farmers "with a couple cows" at 10, 12 or 14 cents a quart, "until they were compelled by the Virginia Milk Commission to raise the price to 18 cents." He said, "the town is a little bit stirred up by this, and hostile."

Cites Exemption

A commission member said that farmers with three cows or less were exempt from price minima.

Most of the milk distributors testified said they opposed any price increase, but that if an increase is granted the farmers, the distributors should receive one also.

Robert H. Rawlings of Thompson's Dairy said that for the distributors to earn the same profit as in 1941, when milk sold for 14 cents a quart, the current price, with the farm level increase included, should be 21½ cents. His company, like the others, asked 21 cents.

Representatives of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, Alexandria Dairy Products Co., and Arlington County Dairy, also said they would have to ask a 21-cent home delivery price if the increase is authorized.

Would End Differential

Hugh F. Hall, representing the Lucerne Milk Division of Safeway Stores, asked elimination of the milk price differential between Washington and Virginia. He said the company sells milk in their Washington stores at 17 cents a quart, but is required by Virginia regulations to charge 19 cents a single quart, or two quarts for 36 cents.

The milk producers association asked that the price increase become effective as of Novmber 1. A decision is expected in about two weeks.

Police Searching For Suspended City Fireman

Police last night sought Fred Smith, suspended city fireman who was to have reported back on the force this morning.

Smith

Smith, 29, who lives at 2109 M st. ne., was suspended October 1 and fined $250 by a trial board following his disappearance June 20. He reported for work on August 5 and the suspension and fine followed.

During his suspension he has been working for the Daniel Loughran Tobacco Co., 402 11th st. sw. Officials said he failed to report for work yesterday morning.

Smith is the father of five children.

He is described as 5 feet, 8 inches tall, of stocky build with sandy hair.

Chest Luncheon Set for Clergy

The Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital will sponsor a luncheon for ministers, priests and rabbis Monday at 12:30 p. m. at Barker Hall, YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw., to encourage religious interest in the Community Chest Federation Campaign. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, 16th and H sts. nw., and committee chairman, will preside.

Art Classes Planned At Southeastern U.

Two new classes in art have been scheduled by Southeastern University, Charles P. Lum, director of the School of Art, announced yesterday.

A class in painting, conducted by Caroline Van H. Bean, will be held on Mondays from 7 to 10 p. m., and a water color class, led by Kameron Kent, will meet at the same hours on Fridays.

D. C. Traffic Mishaps Put 2 in Hospital

District traffic accidents yesterday sent two Greater Washington men to local hospitals with possible skull fractures.

Joseph Brook, 41, of 1015 6th st. ne., sustained a possible fractured skull when struck by the right front bumper of a 10-ton trailer truck as he crossed the street at 9th and Virginia ave. sw.

Police said the truck was driven by Howard Lane, 26, of Lawrence dr., Falls Church. Brook, a porter, was taken to Emergency Hospital.

John Lester Barr, jr., 29, of 4814 Bradley blvd., Bethesda, was treated at Emergency and transferred to Suburban Hospital for a possible skull fracture sustained when he lost control of his automobile on Normanstone dr., between 30th and 32d sts. nw. Barr's car, according to police, crashed into a tree while out of control.

early yesterday when a sedan driven by Joseph N. Johnson, 24, of 824 51st st. ne. bumped into another sedan at 14th and K sts. se.,

The second vehicle, driven by Charles N. Thomas, 36, of 718 Roxboro pl. nw., rammed into a third car parked nearby, and then rebounded into a fourth parked auto.

Only injury was to Harold Schlegal, 2260 Mount View pl. se., who told police he would be treated by a private physician for a leg injury. Schlegal was occupying the parked auto first rammed by Thomas. Police reported damage was not extensive.

In another accident, two-year-old Alberta Bradley of 2325 17th st. nw. was struck by a car driven by Lewis Johns, 28, of 2108 I st. nw. late Wednesday while playing in front of her home.

She was reported in "not serious" condition last night at Freedmen's Hospital, where she is being treated for a fractured right arm.

Youth Is Questioned In Laundry Holdups

But It May Return

County Rid Of Gambling, Jury Reports

Prince Georges County is free of "widespread gambling in any form" as far as the October grand jury is concerned.

In a three-page report submitted to the Circuit Court at Marlboro yesterday, the 17 men and six women comprising the jury declared that their study has "established satisfactorily the fact that there are apparently no gambling establishments operating in the county at this time."

While reporting a total absence of gambling in the county, however, the jury noted that it recognized the possibility of a "recurrent prevalence of this particular type of violation from time to time in the future."

"If and when any such apparent outbreak occurs," the report added, "it is possible for the police authorities to control the condition and enforce the law more thoroughly than has apparently been done at times in the past."

The grand jury described the present county police force as "somewhat inadequate in number to accomplish as thorough job of law enforcement as it might be able to if the number of its personnel were larger."

"Notwithstanding this fact, however, the force appears to be doing excellent work in general law enforcement, particularly in the detection and apprehension of perpetrators of violent and felonious crimes," the report continued.

The jury lashed out sharply at authors of anonymous communications relating to law violations in the county.

"If the authors of such communications, acting in good faith and with a sincere desire to be helpful rather than merely critical would make their identity known and cooperate in the prosecution of those whom they accuse, there could and would be better law enforcement," the report declared.

The jurors reported they had made an exhaustive examination of a large number of witnesses before determining there was not "widespread gambling in any form existing at this time."

The report, which completed a two-week investigation, was signed by W. Desmond Walker, foreman of the grand jury, and Robert T. Plitt, secretary.

Numbers Raid Nets Suspect, $2000, Slips

Arlington County law enforcement heads staged a combined swoop on a two-story brick residence at 2716 N. 19th st. yesterday at about 4 p. m. and seized Russell Scheele, 47, on a numbers charge.

In the raiding party were Arlington Police Chief Harry Woodyard, Comonwealth's Attorney Lawrence Douglas, Capt. Hugh Jones, county detective chief, and Detectives John Sanders and J. E. Cullins.

Sanders and Cullins entered the N. 19th st. house by the front door while Jones, Woodyard and Douglas were going in by the back door. Inside, they said, they found Scheele, alone, with $2000 in cash and 25 to 50 packs of numbers and horse race slips.

Jones said there hadn't been a raid of such magnitude in the county in more than five years. Woodyard said the raid was made because of recurring reports that "something was going on there."

Scheele was freed in $2500 bond after being charged with operating a lottery. He wil appear in Arlington County Court at 9:30 a. m. today.

Numbers Operator Gets Probation on Guilty Plea

The first guilty plea to a numbers charge since lottery-hating Judge George D. Neilson left the United States bench of Municipal Court was received yesterday.

Pasquale Crescenzi, 28, of 629 Massachusetts ave. nw., a first offender was given a year's probation by Judge Walter J. Casey on a guilty plea to possession of numbers slips.

No sentence was imposed, but Judge Casey warned Crescenzi "you had better get out of this activity and gain some sort of lawful employment."

Judge Neilson, warned that he would jail all defendants pleading guilty, rather than fine them. During his two months on the United States branch of the lower court, before he went to the jury court bench October 6, Judge Neilson had received only two guilty pleas out of 60 cases sent before him.

In other numbers actions yesterday in District Court, two persons were sentenced to jail by Associate Justice Matthew Maguire and four other first offenders were put on probation.

Those sentenced were: Thelma E. Brown, 35, of 1820 E st. nw., sentenced to from one to three months on a guilty plea to possession of number slips.

Leonard Gravette, 32, of 818 6th st. se., sentenced to three months on a guilty plea to the same charge.

Justice Maguire also fined James N. Brown, 30, of 4147 Minnesota ave. ne., $250 on numbers charges and suspended a six to 18 months sentence.

Theives Steal Safe Containing $1000 From Restaurant

A 20-year-old youth who police said may be the "Laundry Bandit" who has been terrorizing dry cleaning and laundry shops in the District in recent weeks was arrested at about 6 p. m. last night.

Police said the suspect was picked up by Pvt. Charles W. Yeatman of the Tenth Precinct while loitering in the vicinity of 14th and Harvard sts. nw. The youth told police he was a laborer.

The suspect is a medium-built, neatly dressed Negro who answers perfectly the description of the "Laundry Bandit," police said. He was taken to headquarters for questioning by the Robbery Squad and an appearance in the night lineup.

Safe Stolen

Earlier in the day Thieves stole a 300 pound safe containing $1000 from the Trio Restaurant, 1335 17th st. nw.

The theft was reported by John Costianes, 6501 6th st. nw. proprietor of the restaurant. A lock on the front door of the restaurant was broken and the imprint of the marks of the rolling safe led from the door to the street.

Costianes last had dealings with police when his Buick was reported missing this summer. Later, it was learned that a clerk at the Brazilian Aeronautical Commission had mistakenly shipped the car to Brazil instead of a similar car she had intended to send. Costianes eventially got a new car out of the deal.

Purse Snatcher Escapes

A fleet-footed pocketbook snatcher sucessfully made off with two purses yesterday in northwest and northeast sections but netted only $20.20 for his efforts.

Margaret Davis, 33, of 515 E st. ne. told police she was approached from behind as she mounted the steps of her home at noone and was struck on the head with a fist by a man who snatched her pocketbook containing about $20 then fled.

An hour earlier Mrs. Oliver Wigfield told police she was near her home at 2222 I st. nw. when she was seized from behind by a man who took her purse containing but 20 cents. Mrs. Wigfield was treated at Emergency Hospital for hysteria and released.

Both women described the man similarly: A Negro about 5 feet, 8 inches, medium build, wearing a double breasted suit and dark hat, believed to be a homburg.

Prisoner Flees

'Vanishing Act' Stumps D. C. Police

Bennie Melvin, suspected in a housebreaking, disappeared yesterday in the Municipal Court Building.

He was there one minute and gone the next. Deputy United States Marshal Elmer Graves thinks he lost him in an elevator.

Melvin, 36, of 441 Lamont st. nw., had been arraigned before Judge Walter J. Casey on a charge of housebreaking. The case was continued until Friday and bond set at $2000.

Graves, a deputy marshal of 20 years standing, collected Melvin and two other prisoners from a cell block in the rear of the court to convoy them to the clerk's office on the first floor where bond is arranged.

Graves got on an elevator. It was crowded. When he got off at the first floor he counted noses. Melvin's wasn't among them.

The deputy marshal rushed to the police liaison office and a lookout was flashed over the police radio. It described Melvin as a slender built Negro of 36, weighing 140 pounds and 5-feet-8 in height. He wore no coat, but had on a green felt hat, gray shirt and brown trousers.

The chief deputy marshal said he was making an investigation of the escape to determine who was responsible. He said it had been a custom in the court not to handcuff prisoners, but that custom was definitely a thing of the past as of yesterday. Later in the day, after Melvin's escape, prisoners were handcuffed.

Melvin, who police said has a previous police record, was arrested at his home Wednesday by Detective Francis Gaver of the Ninth Precinct. Gaver said fingerprints found at the scene of a housebreaking at 212 10th st. ne., corresponded with those of Melvin.

Marshall to Receive Degree at Lafayette

Easton, Pa., Oct. 17 (AP).—Secretary of State George C. Marshall will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the annual Founder's Day exercises at Lafayette College tomorrow.

Similar degrees will be conferred by Lafayette President Ralph C. Hutchison on Dr. Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, president of the United Nations General Assembly, and Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the U. N.

Also to be honored is the Rev. A. Brown Caldwell of Baltimore, Md., doctor of divinity.

Area News In Brief

Giving Beer to Baby Costly to Cafe Owner

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday found Michael J. Kelly guilty of delivering beer to a 27-month-old girl and suspended his restaurant's liquor license for 21 days, effective October 27.

ABC ruled that Kelly, owner of Kelly's Restaurant, 1801 L st. nw., was guilty because his wife, Annie, delivered a shot glass full of beer to the 27-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Boudoulos of 1324 Colonial rd. nw.

(Last August Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West stirred up a hornet's nest of controversy by ruling that children can legally drink in the District so long as they don't order or pay for the drinks or have waiters set drinks in front of them.)

ABC conducted hearings on the case October 6 and 14. At the latter hearing Mrs. Boudoulos said a whisky glass containing "beer foam" had been given to the baby as a "plaything."

Police Pvt. Howard Dudley of the Third Precinct testified he saw Mrs. Kelly serve two regular beers to the parents and the "short" beer to the baby.

U. S. Attorney Sworn

George R. Humrickhouse, Boydton, was sworn in as United States attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia yesterday to fill the post vacated by Harry H. Holt, jr., earlier this week.

The oath was administered by Judge Sterling Hutcheson, senior judge of the district, Richmond. Humrickhouse's appointment is temporary, pending a nomination by President Truman, and confirmation by the Senate.

Heads Citizens Group

John Paul Jones, jr., of Admasters, Inc., has been elected president of the Forest Glen Park Citizens Association, it was announced yesterday. Other officers elected were E. Kenneth Stabler, vice president; Mrs. Myron Miller, recording secretary; Mrs. Henry B. Johnson, jr., corresponding secretary, and Miss Jessie Kimpton, treasurer.

Tecumseh Gets War Paint

Old Chief Tecumseh, a statue facing the midshipmen's dormitory at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, bore red paint yesterday splashed on presumably by Cornell supporters as "magic" for victory in the grid contest today with Navy at Ithaca.

A Navy spokesman said that the visitors were not apprehended.

A Japanese bell on the campus was also wet with paint.

Maryland U. Carnival

A five day "Autumn Carnival" will be staged at the University of Maryland, College Park, beginning November 12, week of the Maryland-North Carolina football game. It will feature a fashion show, musical review, rally, and dances at fraternity and sorority houses.

Weight Cases Drop

Arrests on charges of "short weight" law violations have dropped to zero in the first month of an enforcement campaign here.

James G. Dance, deputy director of Weights, Measures and Markets for the District, said that no arrests, and few violations had been made since the middle of September. He stated that the campaign would continue, however, with careful checks being made of all dealers.

Woman Called in Theft

An attachment was issued yesterday to assure the appearance in Municipal Court Monday of a woman who complained that $2900 in jewels was stolen from her hotel room Thursday.

The woman, Mrs. Edith M. Lewis of 505 11th st. nw., did not appear in Municipal Court to press larceny charges against two sailors accused of the theft.

Held under $1000 each for the Monday appearance are Keith R. Rice, 24, and Raymond T. Simmons, 23, both of the Patuxent River Naval Base.

Man Sent to Indiana

Sam Christian Platis, 51-year-old East Chicago, Ind., chef, yesterday was ordered returned to Indiana to face an indictment charging him with theft of a $50,000 trunk.

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage ordered Platis held on $7500 bond.

Students Use Studios

University of Maryland students studying speech and dramatic arts have two new broadcasting studios for workshops in the recently completed classroom building next to the university theater. The studios, adjoining the control room, have a four-channel console, and sound-effects tables.

Swing That Missed

Edward Koeber, sr., 68, of 902 6th st. sw., former Army sergeant, mixed it with Police Pvt. George V. Davis in the Fourth Precinct station when being booked on a drunk charge yesterday.

Koeber's swing was wild and he fell, his head striking a radiator. Treated at Gallinger Hospital, Koeber was returned to the precinct where he paid a $10 drunk fine and was released.

Lane Answers Critic

Virginia is interested in Maryland's sales tax law—at least to the extent of requesting copies of it—Governor Lane disclosed yesterday in Annapolis in a statement the Governor issued in reply to reported criticism of the law by Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Bunting's criticism in part said: "I live in a State without a sales tax. I'm glad I live in Virginia." Governor Lane's reply pointed out that 37 States have sales taxes, and that "if this keeps up, Mr. Bunting will be hard put for a place to reside. His own State has asked us for copies of our sales tax legislation."

Persistence Aids Thief

Persistence is a valuable trait, even in a petty thief, it was demonstrated again yesterday.

It was because of a "try, try again" culprit that William H. Landrum, 33, reported to police that he is missing four suits and a topcoat.

Landrum was moving at 6:30 a. m. yesterday from 1709 New Hampshire ave. nw., to his new home 325 S. Wayne st., Arlington.

When he went to his clothing-filled automobile outside, he saw that someone had vainly tried to pry open the right ventilator window. Landrum saw nothing was missing, so he drove to 20th and R sts. nw. for breakfast. When he came out some 10 minutes later, that ventilator window was smashed. Two suits were missing.

Landrum went back to the restaurant to call police, and was assured that help was on the way.

He hurried back to his automobile.

This time, the thief had grabbed two more suits and a topcoat.

100,000 Seek Home

More than 100,000 jingles vying for a model home will have been submitted when the Home Show contest closes at 8 p. m. tomorrow, officials of the Home Builders Exposition at the District Armory estimated yesterday. A group of 10 District teachers are screening the jingles. Those they select will be passed on to the three final judges. The winning jingle will be announced at the show at 10 p. m. tomorrow night.

Pentagon Choral Club Elects Slate For Fall, Winter

A new slate of officers for the fall and winter season has been selected by the Pentagon Choral Club, the Military District of Washington announced yesterday.

New officers selected are Maj. Norman R. Schlicher, 1644 21st st. nw., president; Capt. Harry J. Gaumond, 2852 South Buchanan st., Fairlington, Va., vice presidents; Miss Beulah Bonta, 1483 Columbia rd. nw., secretary, and Miss Dorothy A. Edighoffer, 1724 17th st. nw., treasurer.

The next appearance of the 70-voice club will be October 28 at the Industrial Home School, 2453 Wisconsin ave.

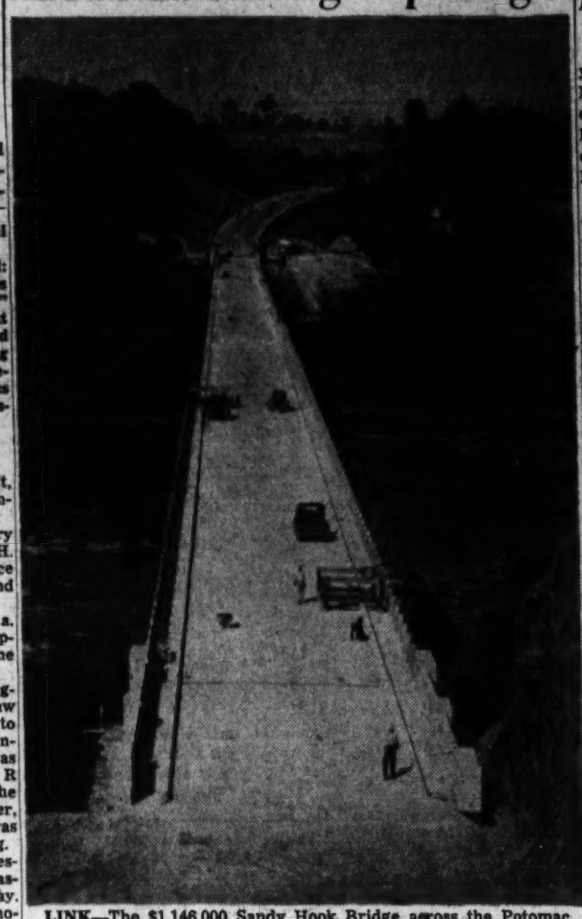
Ransom to Speak At NAACP Meeting

A full membership meeting of the Washington branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will be held at 5 p. m. tomorrow at the John Wesley Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw.

Dr. Leon A. Ransom will review the suit filed on October 7, in behalf of Marguerite Daisy Carr, a 13-year-old Negro girl, to test the legality of the District's segregated school system.

Dr. Edwin B. Henderson will speak on breaking down racial barriers in recreation work. Mrs. C. Leslie Glenn will review progress made in eliminating discrimination in hospitals.

Three Governors to Officiate At Potomac Bridge Opening



LINK—The $1,146,000 Sandy Hook Bridge across the Potomac, which will be opened today to traffic, connects U. S. Route 40 in Frederick County with Route 9 at Sandy Hook, Va.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 17 (Spl.).—Completed at a cost of two million dollars the new steel and concrete Potomac River bridge at Sandy Hook, Md., will be opened for traffic tomorrow at noon, six years after the first phase of the tri-State bridge and highway project was started.

Russell H. McCain, member of the Maryland State Roads Commission, said yesterday that governors of the three States will participate in the formal opening of the bridge. Governors Tuck of Virginia, Lane of Maryland, and Meadows of West Virginia will cut a ribbon opening the bridge. Walter Hopkins, who designed the bridge, also will be present.

Another Bridge Coming

Remaining to complete the project is a bridge across the Shenandoah River at Bolivar, W. Va., which will relocate Route 340 between Frederick and Charles Town, W. Va., by way of the Sandy Hook bridge, Loudoun County, Va., and the Shenandoah span.

The tri-State road and bridge project will completely isolate Harpers Ferry, W. Va., site of two washed out highway bridges.

The Sandy Hook bridge was started in 1941 when 13 concrete piers and two abutments were started by a Philadelphia firm. Plagued by Potomac floods in June and October, 1942, it was not until March 20, 1943, that the piers were finished.

Begun Late Last Year

Two years later a concrete approach was constructed to the Maryland end of the bridge and late last year the Bethlehem Steel Co. began erecting the steel superstructure.

Approximately 2500 tons of structural steel and 250 tons of reinforcing steel were used, along with 80000 yards of concrete and 1500 gallons of paint, according to D. S. Brown, junior assistant highway engineer for the State Roads Commission.

The Sandy Hook span is 2246 feet and is between 75 and 80 feet above water level, Brown said. It now conencts with the Hillsboro rd. in Loudoun County, with connecting links into Charles Town, W. Va., and Leesburg, Va.

The Virginia Highway Commission has finished several miles of macadam road from the south end of the bridge to the site of the span to be built by West Virginia across the Shenandoah. Work on the Shenandoah superstructure is to begin in January.

Virginia Pair Wins Women's Bridge Title

By Marian H. Barre
Post Reporter

Two events have been concluded in the District Bridge Tournament now in play at Hotel Shoreham. Both games were finished yesterday.

They were the women's pair championship, a two-session match, won by Mrs. J. E. Folline of Richmond and Mrs. Leon Landauer of Norfolk and the one-round men's pairs, which went to John J. Parish of Washington and B. O. Johnson of Spartanburg, N. C. Trophies are the Columbia Cup and the President's Cup.

The new women titleholders entered the finals with a 22½-point lead, finishing 18½ points ahead of Mrs. Marianne Boschan of this city and Mrs. G. H. Whitfield of Richmond, who surged up from a middle position. Their respective scores were 428 match points and 409½. Another pair who overcame a first-round handicap was Mrs. Frederick Eberson and Mrs. Edward Cotter, one of the favorite local entries who finished one point under the runners-up. Mrs. T. M. Boyle and Mrs. Maurice Reddy, Washington, ranked fourth with 404½ points. Fifth place went to Mrs. Edward Behrend and Mrs. Stanley Newman, both of Baltimore.

Runners-up to Parish and Johnson were Maurice Levin, of Newark, and David Warner, president of the Philadelphia Whist Club, who scored218 points to 224 for the winners. Two newcomers in the duplicate field finished third with 217½ points. They were Charles Geier and E. J. Hornish, both of Washington. E. M. Becker and H. M. Woodward, also of D. C., scored 210½ and the veteran partnership of Leroy Thurtell, Washington, and R. L. Miles, Jr., of Norfolk, took fifth honor position with 207½.

Results of the mixed pair championship will be posted at noon today. Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Steinberg led the first session, with Mrs. Cotter and J. H. White less htan one board behind. All entries in this contest played throughout both rounds without elimination.

Dr. Steinberg is the sole "Life Master" in this city. He will meet several of his peers when the ranking event for open pairs is played today, with a qualifying round in the afternoon and finals tonight. The brightest star in the open field with Charles Solomon of Philadelphia, 1947 winner of the national individual championship. Solomon will probably be paired with Mrs. Ben Golder, another Philadelphian who is also a Life Master. Defenders of the D. C. open title are Edward Pierson and Ira Haygooni of Baltimore. The trophy is the Woodward Cup.

The tourney ends tomorrow with two more trophies in competion.

MacArthur Quoted As Saying He Won't Run for Presidency

By The Associated Press

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) yesterday quoted General Douglas MacArthur as saying that if a general ever runs for election against President Truman, it will be General Dwight D. Eisenhower and not MacArthur.

The Maine Senator told reporters it all happened in the summer of 1946 when he made a trip to Japan.

"I stopped in to see the President before I left and he told me to tell MacArthur he was doing an excellent job and that he had complete confidence in the general.

"Then he (Mr. Truman) leaned back and said with a smile: 'Tell him that I am fed up with this job and that he can have it any time he wants it.'"

Brewster said that when he delivered this message, MacArthur commented:

"Tell President Truman that if a general ever runs against him it will be Eisenhower and not MacArthur."

WORLD'S LARGEST FLORAL CLOCK

The ten thousand colorful plants that make up the face of the largest floral clock in the world can be seen now in the height of their glory. At no other time of the year are these plants seen in such glorious hues. It is only a short time until Jack Frost will wipe out all this profusion of color.

SEE IT NOW

When its specially designed electric movement is turned to 4 o'clock this Sunday afternoon a musical program of Old Songs of the Church will be amplified throughout the grounds. This program will emanate from the popular little Church of Fort Lincoln, where so many hundred couples are married annually. Other points of interest in Fort Lincoln are:

The site of the Battle of Bladensburg, War of 1812
Dueling grounds of James Barron and Stephen Decatur
Fortification of the Civil War
Famous Lincoln Oak, over 425 years old
The old Spring House built in 1683
Many beautiful gardens of flowers
Acres of lovely rolling lawns

Nation's Club Women Asked to Support Food Drive

Federation Board Indorses Plan To Assist Hungry

By Genevieve Reynolds

THE General Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday indorsed the President's food drive to aid Europe and called upon its estimated 3,500,000 members to promote and support the voluntary rationing program in both their homes and clubs.

Swift action came in a series of resolutions adopted by the organization's board of directors at the opening session of a two-day conclave in the Statler Hotel. In attendance are State presidents and committee chairmen from all States in the Union.

A second motion, pointing out the urgent need for emergency relief asked the United States Government to act speedily to save suffering humanity, and that if it be necessary, Congress be called into a special session to provide funds for such emergency relief.

The federation also called for congressional action to stop the rising cost of living and urged women to quit unnecessary buying at inflationary prices.

Hit High Prices

Preamble of the motion, which was presented by Mrs. Mildred Hermann of Juneau, Alaska, co-chairman of the consumer relations division of the American Home Department of the federation, pointed out that spiraling prices not only are threatening economic security of this country but are endangering hope of rehabilitating war-ravaged sectors of the world. Furthermore, the resolution asked that Congress take aggressive remedial action to prevent further raising of prices and to restore them to reasonable levels . . .

After a debate on the phrasing of a resolution calling upon Congress to make adequate appropriations to the State Department for the so-called Voice of America program, the original motion carried.

Prior to adoption of the resolutions, Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck president of the federation, reported on the food situation in England, France and Denmark. "I saw and felt the dire need of food everywhere," she said. "Food is the sole topic of conversation everywhere. These people (except the Danes and they are desperate for coal) are on a starvation diet. Their crops have failed because of frozen fields last winter and drought during the past summer. They look to us for help; we must not fail them."

Leadership Needed

Several hundred members of the federation board at an afternoon meeting heard Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl of New York City urge all American women to "take the leadership" in the national food conservation program and public support for the Marshall Plan.

Last night's dinner session featured a youth conservation program with Miss Stella Scurlock, director of the department, explaining the year's work. She said that the federation would stress the importance of State clubs working with all organizations, welfare agencies, business, professional and laboring groups in an over-all planning council for youth conservation.

Committee reports and resolutions will be the main business at the federation's convention today. Mrs. Truman will entertain the group at at White House tea at 4 p. m., and a workshop will conclude the events tonight.

Trinity Times Gives Dance

The Trinity College newspaper, The Times, will give a tea dance this afternoon, 4 to 7 o'clock, at Wardman Park Hotel. Miss Joanne Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Tucker of Chevy Chase, Md., and business manager of the paper, is in charge of arrangements.

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

MEMBERS of the General Federation of Women's Clubs' board of directors, committee heads and department chairmen put aside world problems in the afternoon to attend a tea given by Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, national president of the organization at 1734 N st. nw. Threshing out the earlier events of yesterday are (left to right), Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Leslie Wright of this city, national chairman of legislation, and Miss Stella Scurlock, director of youth conservation

Princess Writes 'Thank You' Note For Table Cloth

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, read a "thank you" note from Princess Elizabeth of Great Britain at the meeting of the federation's board yesterday.

It was for the federation's wedding present—a "summer sale" table cloth and napkins, which was delivered by Mrs. Buck on her recent visit to England.

Gaily Mrs. Buck told the clubwomen the tablecloth got into England duty free:

"The customs man asked what I had in that suitcase to declare.

"'A tablecloth for your princess,' I answered.

"'For our princess,' he repeated. 'Then close your suitcase.'

"So I paid no duty."

Mrs. Buck said the duty on the cloth, which cost $125, would have been $75.

Club members revealed that Mrs. Buck bought the cloth, a madeira organdy appliqued in a linen voile design, complete with eight large napkins, at a Washington store's summer bargain sale. It was reduced from $200 to $125.

That gifts for the princess had to approved was revealed when some members of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs attempted to give Elizabeth a "white satin nightgown." Those in charge answered "no."

Engagements Are Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wallace Carpenter of Merion, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Alison Carey, to Albert Lucas 2d, son of Canon and Mrs. Albert Hawley Lucas of Washington. Canon Lucas is headmaster of St. Alban's School for Boys.

Miss Carpenter is a graduate of Centenary Junior College and is as present a senior at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Lucas is a graduate of St. Alban's School. During World War II he served both on the Atlantic and Pacific in the United States Marine Corps. He is now attending the University of Pennsylvania where he is a member of Delta Psi fraternity.

Worthington—Anderson

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Worthington announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia, to Roy Irvin Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin R. Anderson of Kenosha, Wis.

Both young people are graduates of the University of Wisconsin.

The prospective bridegroom served two years with the Army Air Forces and was assigned for part of this time in the European Theater. He is now an instructor in the Engineering College at Northwestern University and will receive his M. A. degree in Mechanical Engineering from that institution in December.

Miss Worthington is at present a member of the staff of the University of Minnesota, serving in the university's mobile speech clinic as a specialist in speech defects.

The wedding will take place in January.

Mrs. George C. Marshall To Entertain at Tea

Mrs. George C. Marshall, wife of the Secretary of State, has invited for tea on Wednesday at Blair House wives of the chiefs of diplomatic missions who were unable to attend the tea given by Mrs. Marshall on May 10 and those who have subsequently arrived in Washington.

Acting Pair Give Meals Top Billing

By Lucia Brown

MR. AND Mrs. Frank Allenby of London, England, are thrilled over the beauty of Washington and happy about the reception of their play here, but it's when American food is mentioned that their faces really light up.

The Allenbys—a charming British theater couple who have been married for 21 years—are members of the cast of "The Winslow Boy," at the National Theater. Mr. Allenby takes the role of Sir Robert Morton, the lawyer, while his wife, whose stage name is Dorothy Hamilton, plays Miss Barnes, the reporter.

"The amount of food here is overwhelming," says Mr. Allenby, "and the food itself is wonderful. We like your American cooking so much. I've gained 5 pounds in the past 10 days."

Had Previews of Food

Before they came to this country, the Allenbys had previews of American food in boxes sent them from time to time by friends in New York.

"Our friends were astonished when we cabled thanks for food boxes," says Mrs. Allenby, "but you've no idea how grateful we were. It was such a red-letter day when they arrived.

"Your tinned corned beef is wonderful," she continues. "It's very sustaining and can be prepared in so many ways. We liked it best in curry, and it went farther, too, you know, with dried fruit, apples, lemon juice and curry powder added."

Mrs. Allenby has had long experience in making a little food go a long way, for she kept house in London throughout the war and the dark days that have followed.

"The food situation is much worse now than in the war," she says. "Everything is rationed except fresh vegetables and fruits. There's a ration on tea, too, so you can't ask friends in even for that. It certainly cuts down on good neighborliness."

Now that the Allenbys are in America for awhile, they're enjoying sending food packages to friends back home.

What to Send

"We always try to include olive oil, chocolates, rice and sugar," says Mr. Allenby. "A little extra fat means so much there now, and sweets are such a treat. About our only dessert is 'spotted dog' occasionally." The latter, he explained, is steamed pudding made with raisins and currants.

"We're sending packages with colorful wrappings, too," says Mrs. Allenby. "Your American wrappings are so beautiful—printed papers and cellophane. You've no idea how they cheered us up."

"It's ridiculous to talk about food so much," says Mrs. Allenby, with a sigh, "but it's hard not to. All this self-denial in England is probably good for us—it's good for the figger anyway. And America has been wonderful about sending us things. I don't know what we would have done but for you people."

Alexandria Tour, Oct. 25

The tour of Alexandria Historic Homes, sponsored by the Alexandria Hospital Board, will be open one day only, on October 25, not for the week of October 19 as previously announced.

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allenby, of the cast of "The Windsor Boy," enjoy fresh orange juice and eggs more than almost any foods after long years of housekeeping in hungry England. The food situation in England is now much worse than during the war days, Mrs. Allenby says

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

1. Can you give me advice on how to schedule my day so as not to be busy all day long as I have in the past? I have two children, one of nursery school age (goes for 2½ hours each morning) the other 1½ years old. I live in a five-room house in a community where neighbors are very friendly and always "dropping in." I'm not sufficiently at ease to go ahead with my work and chat with them simultaneously. As a result, I find that I'm never through with my day's work.

2. Also, can you tell me how to remove the smell from an aluminum coffee dripolators? Mrs. B.

1. It is very difficult to suggest a schedule which will work if much of your time is taken by neighbors who drop in at all hours. Perhaps if you let your friends know that you are trying to hold to a schedule in the mornings, let us say, they will be glad to confine their visits to the midafternoon hours. Then, with your work taken care of, you can spend these afternoon hours in the sunshine with your children and your friends. I have an idea your friends would be pleased to have you lead the way on such a program and would soon be organizing their days so they are free in the afternoons to enjoy their leisure.

Now for a schedule: I do not believe that a schedule which parcels the day out in one-half hour periods with a job for each period is very practical for a mother of small children. Instead, a schedule which plans to take care of one big job each day, plus the routine ones, is better. For instance: Monday, wash; Tuesday, iron; Wednesday, catch up on mending, clean cupboards and any other job which needs doing occasionally but not every week; Thursday, clean refrigerator and lay in groceries for the weekend; Friday, thorough housecleaning; Saturday, extra baking and cooking for the weekend. Such a schedule would vary, of course, to meet needs of the individual family.

It seems to me that it's always wise and good for the morale to do the breakfast dishes and straighten the rest of the house before turning to the big job of the day. That way, you don't go upstairs from your washing, tired, to find an untidy house, a sinkful of dishes, and your child due for lunch in 10 minutes. And here's another thought. If you've any housekeeping jobs which, if left undone, really bother you, be sure to do them early in the day. For some women this might be dust on the furniture, or an untidy bathroom, or the front porch unswept. You'll be surprised what a lift it will give you to be able always to see a well-dusted room, for instance, if that's your pet phobia.

2. To remove the odor from your dripolator, first scour the inside of it well with a household scouring powder. Now, place two or three tablespoons of baking soda in the place where you put the coffee and fill with boiling water. Let stand several hours. Rinse and open completely to the sun and air. Also, hold the coffee basket to the light. If some of the holes are stopped up with coffee grains, poke them out with a toothpick. These fat-containing coffee grains become rancid if allowed to remain. Your dripolator should get this treatment once a week.

I have a tapestry-covered living room suite and I have cleaned it with cleaning fluid and washed it with soapless shampoo and it still isn't clean. It has a drab look and is stiff. I have three small children and don't think the tapestry would last if I had a commercial cleaner.

2. I spilled baby oil on a woven rug and neither soapless lather nor dry cleaning fluid has removed it. I can't get carbon tetrachloride in my neighborhood. H. A. S.

1. It may be that your upholstery is stiff and drab looking because you didn't rinse the dirt and shampoo out thoroughly. It will probably be difficult now to get it bright and clean with home methods, but if you wish to try, here are some suggestions: Use a good upholstery cleaner, make a rich, creamy lather—be sure to make plenty for you clean with suds alone, not water. Clean over a small area only, applying a sponge out of clear, fresh water and wipe off all suds and dirt. If necessary, repeat the entire process over the same area. Change bowl of water for rinsing frequently. Let a fan blow onto the piece when you're finished or place it out of doors on a sunny, clear day to dry. When you have your piece completely clean, protect it from further soil by a slipcover, or if that isn't possible, a large piece of cretonne or other washable material thrown over it to protect the most used places would be helpful.

2. Dust a cleaning powder into the rug, let stand to absorb grease, then brush out. This may have to be repeated several times.

In moments blue

I treasure all my memories
. . . And now and then I sigh
. . . For days and nights that brought me joy . . . Before they said goodby . . . I wish they could be here again . . .
With all the friends I knew
. . . To take away the loneliness . . . Of moments that are blue . . . But they are some beyond recall . . . And I must be content . . . To find that tears as well as smiles
. . . Are never permanent
. . . And I must live the life
I have . . . As well as I know how . . . And do as much to gain my goal . . . As time and tide allow . . . Because tomorrow will depend . . . On what I do today . . . And memories are only songs . . . To sing along the way.

Torso Dress: two-piece version

three smart styles for misses

What quiet elegance a little black dress acquires when it is cut on a long, slender line, broken only by a gently handled fullness at the hips . . . the fitting, "crucial to a dress" as Vogue terms it, smoothly effected by a button-in-back torso blouse—you could wear another with the stem of a skirt . . . and, need we add, here is the background-beautiful for accessories. . . . basic black or color, if you like.

Left—its tiny collar invites a scarf, or pin or necklace, and its pocket-feigning drapery melts your waistline away. Rayon crepe, green or royal as well as black. Misses' sizes $35

Center—color with black, gracefully briefly sleeved bodice in green or periwinkle over black. Rayon crepe. Misses' sizes $25

Right—exquisite detailing, in jewel neckline, dolman sleeve, tiny belt, slit skirt. Black, green, gray rayon crepe. Misses' sizes $25

Singer Spurs Equality Fight At the National

Paul Robeson, noted Negro singer, yesterday called on Washington members of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare to continue their "struggle" to end discrimination at the National Theater here.

Robeson

"This struggle is being watched throughout the whole nation," Robeson told an audience of more than 150 at the first of a series of luncheon meetings on "citizens' rights" at the YMCA.

Simultaneously, he paid tribute to "the American actor" for his "courageous" stand.

Earlier, he declared:

"Every human being has potentialities . . . all people have possibilities if they have opportunities."

"All human beings, whatever their color, have a right to walk this earth . . . in dignity," he added.

"A meeting of this kind is the living denial of his statement," Rothenberg asserted.

U. S. Attorney Shows Record On Bunch Case

A photostat of Ninth Precinct cell block records covering the night og Jhon Forrest Bunch's incarceration there indicated inspections were made of the cells five times during the three-hours when Mr. Bunch was said to have been suffering convulsions.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay permitted inspection of the photostat in his office yesterday. He would not comment on the record except that his investigation of the death of the 64-year-old carpenter on July 29 was "still continuing."

Police regulations require inspection of the cells every 30 minutes. The photostat showed the cells were checked by Patrolman Francis V. Andruzzi at 4:05, 5, 5:30 and 6:30 p. m. and that one prisoner (Mr. Bunch, according to inquest testimnoy) was removed to Gallinger Hospital at 7 p. m.

An inspection of the photostat indicated that the 4:05 entry was made in ink and the remainder in pencil.

Frank Paul Regan, who said he occupied the cell next to Mr. Bunch on the fatal night, has made a sworn statement that Mr. Bunch suffered three convulsions during the three hours preceding his removal to the hospital and that police failed to heed calls for aid.

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barret declared at that time that he felt the "police are in the clear on this matter" and that Regan had changed his statement from a previous document given to the police on the Bunch case.

Six Appointed To Advise on Liquor Clinics

The District Commissioners yesterday named a special six-member advisory committee to help shape policy for the city's new alcoholic clinics.

Those appointed on recommendation of Health Officer Dr. George C. Ruhland were Donald C. Clemmer, superintendent of the District Corrections Department; Judge Walter J. Casey of Municipal Court; the Rev. Seth Brooks, pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church; Col. E. Goring Bliss, assistant general manager, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, and Mrs. George C. Thorpe, civic leader.

Clemmer, advised of his appointment, suggested a "mobile clinic, which would be able to move around."

He pointed out that alcoholism is "not only a medical problem—it is a social and economic one as well."

Congress provided for the clinic in a bill signed by President Truman August 5. Treatment of alcoholics is to be financed by a 10 per cent increase in the cost of liquor licenses.

FCC Quizzes WARL About Its Quizzes

Even super-Quiz Kids wouldn't be able to toss off-hand answers to many of the quiz questions asked over WARL, in the opinion of the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC yesterday ordered the Arlington, Va., radio station to show cause at a November 21 hearing why the spot quiz programs, which flash the questions at the rate of 140 a week, are not violating the law against broadcasts of lotteries.

A Commisison spokesman said the program had begun about April 14 and continued to date. The FCC issued the order on its own motion and not because of any complaints, it was stated.

Ray Baker, station manager, said that a great number of other stations are broadcasting imilar programs al over the country, and that WARL "seems to be the goat."

Doctors Report Blood Test in Polio Case

By Frank Carey
Associated Press Science Reporter

Three New York doctors reported yesterday they believe they may have accomplished something which has been done only once before in all the history of science—detection of infantile paralysis virus in human blood.

Dr. Hilary Koprowski and two colleagues, writing in Public Health Reports, related evidence which they said would "seem" to indicate that a strain of polio virus had been isolated from human blood by direct inoculation of laboratory mice with blood serum taken from a patient suspected of having the disease.

Dr. Charles Armstrong of the United States Public Health Service here, asked to appraise the significance of the report, said this:

1. If the scientists are able to repeat their findings in a large number of cases, it would mean that a blood test was available for detecting the presence of polio.

2. If it should be demonstrated that polio virus occurs in the blood of most afflicted persons, that would mean it might be possible for the virus to be spread by blood-sucking insects.

"But," Dr. Armstrong cautioned, "it remains to be seen whether poliomyelitis virus actually is present in the blood in most cases, or whether its presence in the blood occurs only in exceptional cases."

Up to now, the most common methods of detecting the presence of poliomyelitis virus in humans has been by inoculating laboratory animals with "washings" from the human nose or throat, or with spectimens taken from intestinal waste.

In the work reported yesterday by Dr. Koprowski and Dr. Thomas W. Norton of the American Cyanamid Co., and by Dr. Walsh McDermott of Cornell University, brown mice were inoculated with human blood serum from a patient suspected of having infantile paralysis.

Theirs was the first report of causing the development of the disease in mice by the direct inoculation of blood serum. In the only other case where the presence of polio virus in blood was demonstrated, the relatively rare rhesus monkey was used.

U. S. Help for Education Backed at Virginia Meeting

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Federal aid for education was advocated by Dr. Glenn E. Snow, president of the National Education Association, in his address to the final delegate session of the Virginia Education Association convention here tonight.

Dr. Snow said the most available taxable capacity was possessed by the Federal Government and expressed the belief that richer States would benefit by helping poorer States with their education problems.

The NEA head called the $2000 to $3000 salary scale adopted for teachers with bachelors degrees Thursday by the VEA a "long step forward." He added that he hoped in time that Virginia could reach the $2400 to $3600 minimum recommended by the NEA.

Over 3100 educators from all sections of Virginia were registered for today's final session of the convention which Robert F. Williams, VEA executive secretary, said was attended by the "largest delegation in the history of the association."

Honorary life memberships in the VEA were awarded tonight to two former State superintendents of public instruction—J. D. Eggleston, who served from 1906-1913 and Harris Hart, whose term went from 1918-1931.

Va. Employe Salary Law Held Needless

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—The Virginia Advisory Legislative Council's committee studying minimum wages and hours for State employes announced today it has come to the conclusion that the State should not fix by law a minimum wage or maximum hours for its employes.

The committee, in a report released today by Governor Tuck, said that it felt the benefits of such a law can be attained under the present Personnel Act without necessarily experiencing many of the attendant disadvantages of such legislation.

The group was directed by a resolution adopted by the General Assembly of 1946 to study and report on minimum rates of compensation and maximum hours of employment of State employes.

It was requested to recommend whether the State should provide by law for (1) a minimum wage on an hourly, weekly, or monthly basis for its employes and the rate thereof; and (2) maximum hours of work with overtime for extra work and, if so, the overtime rates.

Car Skid Kills Girl

Waverly, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Juanita May Staton, 20, of Lynchburg was killed near her yesterday when the car in which she was riding skidded off the wet pavement of U. S. Route 460, and overturned. Warren D. Ayres, also of Lynchburg, the driver, was unhurt.

Interest Is Low

Delay Hit In Building Public Works

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—"No needed public improvement should be unduly postponed because of high prices," said Reid W. Digges, general manager of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission today before members of the Virginia Industrial Wastes and Sewage Works Association.

Digges said that while prices are at an all-time high, "interest rates are approaching an all-time low."

"For example," he said, "if a city needed a school which would have cost a million dollars during the so-called normal period of 1926 it would have had to pay 5 to 6 per cent interest at that time."

"Today," he continued, "this school would probably cost three million dollars but the city could borrow the money for an average of 1½ per cent interest."

"My suggestion, therefore, is that we go ahead with these improvements that benefit everyone and are done for the common welfare, and do it now before the rates go up again, and not try to gamble either on the price market or the dollar market of Wall Street."

The speaker's general topic was "The Objective of the Hampton Roads Sanitation Commission."

Public Shown Buggs Island Dam Project

Buggs Island, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Some 200 visiting Congressmen, civic representatives and just plain citizens gathered here today at the site of the multimillion-dollar Buggs Island power and flood control dam to get some first-hand information on the big project.

After a two-hour guided tour across the massive cofferdam, the visitors waded into 75 gallons of Brunswick stew and four barbecued pigs before settling down for an afternoon of briefing.

The tourists were addressed by a number of Congressmen and Col. George C. Derby, district Army engineer; Resident Engineer Fred L. Geis; Brig. Gen. R. C. Crawford, deputy chief of engineers; two officials of the Roanoke River flood control committee, Secretary Eric Rodgers and Chairman W. H. S. Burgwyn and Bowling Lambeth, chairman of the Roanoke River Basin.

Among the visitors was 78-year-old C. O. Bugg, Mecklenburg County farmer, whose ancestors bought land near the dam site from Indians for the price of one shotgun. Buggs Island, a tiny circle of land just below the dam, was named after his great-great-grandfather.

Hamsters Disappoint Md. Livestock Director

Salisbury, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—About two months ago the Maryland livestock laboratory here imported two mouse-like Syrian hamsters to use in its experiments.

Director L. M. Moulthrop contemplated with satisfaction the vital statistics: gestation period, 45 days; litters, up to 16. He'd soon have hamsters all over the place.

Today he reported somewhat sadly that the hamsters apparently are brothers—or sisters. The laboratory's hamster population still is just two.

Press Club Meeting Elects P. J. Austensen

The first step in the formation of the Prince Georges County Press Club was taken yesterday at a luncheon meeting of representatives of county weekly and Washington daily newspapers.

Phillip J. Austensen, reporter on The Washington Post, was chosen temporary chairman, and Don O'Reilly, public relations director of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, was elected temporary secretary. Yesterday's meeting was held at the P. and C. restaurant in Cottage City. The next meeting will be held November 14 at 1 p. m., at a place to be selected.

FBI Declines to Guard Bankrupt Contractor

Baltimore, Oct. 17 (AP).—The FBI, holding it does not supply bodyguards to anyone, declined today to look after the person of a bankrupt contractor who said he lost $77,000 in gambling.

The request for FBI protection was made by Paul R. Kach, United States referee in bankruptcy, on the ground that Frank R. Novak, jr., was a "pretty important piece of property of the bankrupt estate."

Kach was hearing the matter of the bankrupt Frank R. Novak Realty Co. Nocak in sworn testimony mentioned bets as high as $3000.

Williamsburg Hospital Contract Awarded

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, State commissioner of mental hygiene and hospitals, announced late today that a contract had been awarded for a $2,875,000 building program at Eastern State Hospital at Williamsburg. The contract went to J. Kennon Perrin & Co. of Richmond. It includes a power house, sewage disposal plant, patients and employes buildings and roads. The work, Dr. Barrett said, will be started as quickly as possible.

Dairymen to Hear Va. Agriculture Chief

Hamilton, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—L. M. Walker, jr., State Commissioner of Agriculture, will head the speakers' list at the annual meeting of Loudon County dairymen here tomorrow.

Also on the program are B. B. Derrick, secretary-manager of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, and R. G. Connelly, dairy husbandman for the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

New Station Planned

Waynesboro, Va., Oct. 17 (Spl.). Construction of a new $638,300 Union Station here will begin shortly after the first of the year, according to officials of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. The station will be jointly owned and paid for by the C. & O. and the Norfolk & Western Railroad.

Benefit Auction Set

An auction for the benefit of the Greenwood (Va.) War Memorial will be held at the Greenwood High School at 10 a. m. next Saturday. Land for the memorial community center has been contributed and the architectural plan submitted. Luncheon will be served at the school following the auction.

FBI to Return Davis

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—William H. Davis, charged with violating the Federal extortion statutes in Roanoke on September 9, has been arrested in Douglas, Ariz., and will be returned to Roanoke to face the charges against him, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said here last night.

School Bus Warning

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 17 (Spl.).—Sergt. C. W. Blue, State traffic officer, today warned that the law requiring cars to stop for schol buses must be observed. Blue said that automobiles coming from either direction must stop while the bus in unloading.

Union Asks Vote in Struck Button Plants

Federalsburg, Md., Oct. 17 (Spl.). The mayors of Federalsburgh and Ridgely were asked by officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL) today to hold an election in struck plants of the Excelsior Pearl Works, Inc.

The requests were made in advertisements place by the union in the Caroline Sun in Ridgely and the Federalsburg Times. The union said it would abide by the results of such a vote at the two button plants.

Meanwhile, 30 striking employes at Ridgely were paid $15 weekly strike benefits and 150 similar checks were distributed at Federalsburg, according to Robert Gladnick, international representative of the union from Baltimore. He said 20 additional checks are being held for Federalsburg strikers.

In the advertisements, the union complimented Federalsburg Mayor Clinton S. Poole "for keeping cool" during the strike and charged that in Ridgely "residents are fighting the battle for the company and are even paying the costs by carrying the salary load for many deputies," Gladnick said.

Danville Tobacco Prices Irregular

Danville, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Prices continued irregular today as the fourth week of sales ended on the old best flue-cured tobacco market.

According to the United States, North Carolina and Virginia Departments of Agriculture, the changes were mostly from $1 to $4 per hundred, with a few more declines than increases when compared with the previous day's quotations.

Good lemon primings dropped $7, and common orange smoking leaf $10 for the greatest losses.

St. Luke's to Observe Its 219th Anniversary

Church Hill, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—St. Luke's Episcopal Parish, one of the oldest in the United States, will celebrate the 219th anniversary of its founding Sunday.

The old parish was part of St. Paul's in Centreville until 1728 when its members were granted a separation. The Rev. John Lang, appointed by the Lord Bishop of London, was the first minister to preach at St. Luke's.

The present ivy-covered church was built in 1729. It was remodeled in 1880, but the original walls are intact.

18 Classes Feature Hilldale Horse Show

Warrnon, Va., Oct. 17 (Spl.).—Eighteen classes will be shown at the Hilldale Horse Show to be held at the L. R. Sanders farm, New Baltimore, Va., tomorrow beginning at 9:30 a. m. Proceeds from the show will go to the Warrenton Volunteer Fire Department.

A silver trophy has been donated for the winner in the hunter championship, and $500 in prizes will be awarded to winners in other classes.

Loudoun Schedules Safety Education Week

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 17 (Spl.).—November 3 to 7 will be safety education week in Loudoun County, the education committee of the county highway safety committee has announced. An essay contest on "Highway Safety" will be conducted in the five county high schools, with a $5 prize for the winner in each school. Prizes have bee donated by the Leesburg Fire Company.

Scouts Clean Streets

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 17 (Spl.). Boy Scouts here will take over street cleaning in front of stores to earn money for uniforms and dues. Town officials say they have been unbale to get anyone for the job, and are happy to let the Scouts take over.

Burial Aid Planned

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—Veterans' organizations of Anne Arundel County and Annapolis have formed the veterans' committee for the return of World War II dead. The new group will assist next of kin in the burial of bodies of service persons returned from war cemeteries.

Rule to Speed Court Actions Is Opposed

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—A group of Baltimore lawyers opposed today a rule for Maryland courts to speed the tempo of justice which would void a Baltimore City Speedy Judgment Act.

Arguments against the rule were presented to the Court of Appeals, whose committee on practice and procedures had recommended it.

At present there are so-called Summary Judgment Acts in 16 counties and in Baltimore City, with a variety of terms.

The proposed rule would permit courts to hand down quick judgments in cases where no defense is offered. The right to trial of any contested case would remain as at present.

Paul Kach, president of the Baltimore Bar Association, said the rule would deter settlement of contract cases in Baltimore, which are now handled under the speedy judgment act.

Attorney H. Vernon Eney, a member of the court's committee, contended the rule would hasten judgments throughout the State and set up a uniformity where differences now exist.

He said not a single lawyer had privately objected before the committee.

After hearing arguments, Chief Judge Ogle Marbury said the Court of Appeals would take under consideration the opposition to the rule.

Hampton Students Vote Bridgman Out

Hampton, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Students of Hampton Institute voted overwhelmingly October 9 that they did not want Dr. Ralph P. Bridgman, president, as its head, a spokesman for the school administration revealed today. He said the matter is being refered to the trustees, who are expected to meet in New York next week.

The students are reported to have voted "no" in 522 cases, "yes" in three cases.

Holiday Season Planned

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 17 (Spl.). Merchants here are making plans for Christmas season decorations, the Chamber of Commerce has announced. During the holiday season stores will be open evenings to accommodate shoppers.

Va. Methodist Church Parley Hears Bishop

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—BishopTitus Lowe, of Indianapolis Ind., of a worship service of the 156th Virginia annual conference of the Methodist Church this afternoon at the Amercian Legion auditorium, said that religion, and particularly the christian religion, is primarily personal, and that Christianity is social, morale and communal.

Bishop Lowe drew his text from the Lord's prayer, which he said is perhaps the best known brief passage in the bible. He quoted the 23rd psalm to prove his point that religion is personal, terming it the best known poem in the world.

At the morning session, Dr. W. A. Smart, professor of old testiment theology at Emory University, Ga., emphasized the value of reading in clergymen's lives.

The six-day conference is being attended by approximately 1400 clerical and lay delegates.

Earlier, Bishop Lowe told 27 ministers who were accepted into the conference not to be afraid to preach about a complete Christ, sin, sonversion and resurrection.

The conference resolved to instruct delegates attending the jurisdictional conference in Columbia, N. C., to work for the reappointment of Bishop W. W. Peele of Richmond presiding bishop to the Virginia conference for another four-year term. The bishop has held his present post for almost 10 years.

Man Goes Back to Jail After Aiding Friend

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—A man who said he escaped from the Maryland State Penitentiary 10 months ago was in jail here today because he attempted to summon aid for an injured friend.

The man, Peter Barnacki, 30, who has a Philadelphia address on penitentiary records, attracted police attention after he stopped a taxi to bring aid to a Philadelphia man who had been struck by a hit-run driver. Barnacki escaped from the Maryland institution last December after serving four of a 10-year sentence for three larceny convictions.

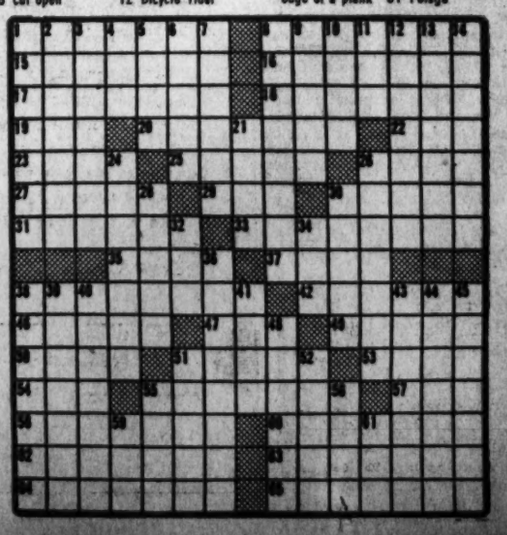
Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle



4 Greenbelt Citizens Join Probe Group

Selection of four Greenbelt (Md.) residents to sit with the Town Council in an investigation of the town's administration was announced yesterday by Mayor Thomas J. Canning.

The appointees, who round out a nine-man committee authorized by the council to conduct the inquiry, are Bernard Bordenet, an attorney with the General Accounting Office; Joseph Fitzmaurice, Civil Aeronautics Administration attorney; Milton T. Williams, of the War Assets Administration, and Wesley Darling, of the Bureau of Naval Personnel. The other five are the council members.

Canning said no date had been set for the initial meeting, but added "we'll probably try to get organized sometime Saturday."

Formation of the group was authorized by the council several weeks ago, after former Mayor George F. Bauer accused Town Manager James T. Gobbel of mismanaging Greenbelt funds by authorizing payments of salaries higher than those approved by the council.

The investigation is to include a study of any other complaints against town officials, Canning said. He disclosed that at least one other official has been named but declined to reveal his name until charges are presented formally.

Kieffer to Take St. John's Post Next Saturday

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 17.(AP)—John Spangler Kieffer, a native of Hagerstown, will be inaugurated as President of St. John's College October 25 in solemn academic ceremonies under the historic Liberty Tree on the college campus.

The event will be marked by the gathering of representives of 170 American colleges and universites and 12 learned societies.

Kieffer, who was graduated from Harvard University, where he took his master's degree, succeeds Stringfellow Barr, who instituted the college's new program based on the "world's great books."

Governor Lane, who is president former officio of the college, will preside at the ceremony.

The new president was named acting head of the college last year and began serving January 1.

Union Men Fined By Pulaski Judge

Pulaski, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Pulaski Trial Justice John W. B. Deeds fined a union official and a picket $25 each today on charges arising from incidents near the Coleman Furniture Corporation plant, where CIO United Furniture Workers are on strike.

Warren Leader, of Philadelphia, national representative of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, drew one of the fines on a charge of using language "of an insulting nature" in a talk to employes and strikers near the plant, and Lemuel D. Hart, a picket, was fined on a charge of cursing and abusing a Coleman employe, Robert Jones.

John Goldsmith, of Radford, counsel for both defendants, gave notice of appeal in each case.

Man Electrocuted In Va. Rape Case

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP).—Buford Russell Morton, 30-year-old Danville, Va., Negro, paid with his life today for raping a white woman, the mother of two, last May 9.

Maj. Frank Smyth, superintendent of the State penitentiary, said Morton went to the electric chair about 7:30 a. m., and was pronounced dead at 7:40 a. m.

Morton had several visitors—members of his family—yesterday, Smyth said.

Morton, whose appeal to the State Pardon Board for commutation of his deat hsentence to life imprisonment was denied last week, was convicted by a Danville Corporation Court last July.

Orange County Jail Bids Delay Asked

Orange, Va., Oct. 17 (Spl.).—The Orange County Board of Supervisors has decided to request a delay before asking for bids for an addition to the county jail. Commonwealth's Attorney Page Higginbotham was directed by the board to ask the State Board of Corrections to permit continued use of the jail with present accommodations. The State Board recently condemned the Orange jail and threatened to close it because of lack of provisions for a jailer.

Collision Injures 3 Near Warrenton

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 17 (Spl.).—Three persons received minor cuts and bruises in a head-on collision on route 17, 10 miles south of here, at 10 a. m. today.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Captain Paul E. Donnelly of Olean, N. Y., now stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., skidded on wet pavement and struck a car driven by Herbert J. Heller, Pittsburgh, Pa. The injured were listed as Mrs. Betsy Hilliard Donnelly, wife of Captain Donnelly, Heller and his daughter Jean.

Potomac Edison Opens Williamsburg Plant

Williamsport, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—R. Paul Smith of Hagerstown, president of the Potomac Edison Company, today pulled a switch turning on power in the utility's new $4,500,000 addition to its Williamsport generating plant.

The ceremony marked the opening of the six-story brick and steel addition after three years of planning and construction.

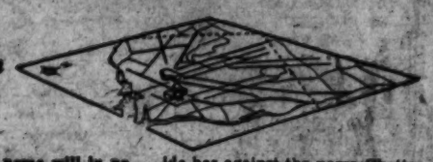
Old Crab Finds No Peace, Even on Streetcar Ride



The last sanctuary for my jangled nerves has now been denied me.

No longer can I board my favorite No. 30 streetcar with any assurance that I'll be able to read the comics in peace.

The 'teen-agers have taken to carrying portable radios with them, and the jumping jive pounds against everybody's eardrums, whether he wants music or not.

Please don't think that I'm an old crab just because I am, but it's enough to drive a guy into a taxi—except that I prefer jive to the deadly monotone of the guy who announces the race results.

FALSE ALARM

Employes of the Federal Saving and Loan Insurance Corp. spent Thursday morning wondering what was wrong at the Continental Hotel, about two blocks away.

The two American flags displayed from the top of the hotel were upside down—the international distress signal.

Lunch time provided an opportunity for investigation and the explanation proved quite prosaic.

A new man had hoisted the flags that day—completely oblivious of the excitement he was causing.

When the management was informed of the slip, the flags were immediately righted.

MEMO TO WALTER HAIGHT

Assistant Corporation Counsel Irving Bryan of 811 Quincy st. nw. is systematically losing weight without going on a diet.

He decided that he needed some exercise—and besides, the downtown traffic and parking problems often make driving to work a nuisance.

So Irving worked out a system. He drives part of the way to work, parks his car in the wide open spaces outside the congested area, and then hoofs it the rest of the way down.

He says he's already lost several pounds—and on Haight that would look good.

RIVER, STAY AWAY FROM OUR STATE

Bart Hickman observes that the Chattahoochee is the only American river which is stopped in its tracks by a State line.

For many miles the Chattahoochee forms the boundary between Alabama and Georgia. But when it reaches the Florida line it stops.

Fortunately, the Apalachicola River begins at that precise point, furnishing a convenient outlet for the Chattahoochee's waters.

This circumstance leads me to suspect that the Apalachicola and the Chattahoochee are really one and the same, and that Florida has merely changed the river's name within its own State boundaries.

If this is so, will some District Liner please explain what Florida has against the name Chattahoochee—especially inasmuch as a Florida city bears that name?

SIGN OF THE TIMES

I hear that the kids in some of our elementary schools are taking direct action to protest against rising milk prices.

Last year the children paid 25 cents per week for their milk. Then the price was raised to 30 cents, and a few of the youngsters quit buying milk, but most of them continued.

This year the price went to 35 cents per week, and in some schools the purchases have been drastically cut in protest.

I'm told that the teachers are remaining neutral and letting the kids work out their own economic problems.

It's the youngsters who are organizing the "don't buy" movement.

U. S. Sells Pipeline, Will Build Another

By Drew Pearson

Sometimes it looks as if Government officials make it a special point not to let the right hand know what the left hand doeth.

The War Assets Administration has just sold the famous Canol pipeline built in the Canadian Arctic during the war to pump oil to the Alaskan seaboard. President Truman, when a Senator, raised cain about construction of this line. He called it wasteful and unnecesary.

But now, one branch of the Truman Administration is selling this pipeline for a pittance, while another branch of the Truman Administration is proposing to build another pipeline in Alaska, not far away.

Why the Government could not dig up the pipe from the original Canol line in the Canadian Arctic and use it in Alaska, instead of selling the Canol line for junk and buying new pipe for the new project is hard to understand.

This summer the Navy Department undertook highly important oil explorations in Alaska, which, if successful, should prevent gasoline rationing in the United States, also give the Navy a badly needed additional supply of oil. Scientists predict that if the explorations bear out the first Alaskan oil sample, deposits will be discovered richer than California's gushing oil lands.

But in order to market this oil, a 700-mile pipeline must be built across the Arctic. And to get Congress to vote the money for this pipeline, the Navy flew the House Interstate Commerce Committee across northern Alaska this summer, pointing out the importance of such a line.

Meanwhile in Washington the War Assets Administration proceeded to sell for the paltry sum of $700,000 the Canol pipeline to the L. B. Foster., Inc., of Pittsburgh, and the Albert & Davidson Pipe Corp. of New York City—for junk. Originally the cost of materials alone for this pipeline was nine million dollars. In view of the increased cost of steel and the extreme difficulty of buying pipe, the new proposed pipeline across Alaska would cost at least double this amount.

Sale of the Canol pipeline now goes to Attorney General Tom Clark for approval. Betting is that he will not OK the deal.

Russia's Atomic Bomb?

Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, in charge of development of the atomic bomb, had a highly significant off-the-record meeting with Army and Navy officers the other day during which he told them that Russia has the secret of the atomic bomb. But, he added, the Soviets do not have the industrial power to produce it.

"The earliest date Russia will be able to produce the bomb," estimated America's No. 1 atomic soldier, "will be 1951."

Groves explained that Russia lacks not technical knowledge, but industrial facilities. Soviet scientists know the secret of the atomic bomb except for a few minor details, though these can be solved easily by experimentation.

One minor step which the Soviets have not yet discovered, explained a scientist who addressed the group with Groves, is the exact ratio of uranium particles that should be mixed with other substances. The physicist also predicted it would take 15 years to develop an effective atomic V-2 rocket.

General Groves suggested that atomic development inside Russia would be hindered rather than helped by the dictator system. To illustrate this, he recalled his own experiences in developing the bomb.

"Some of our scientists were too pessimistic, and I would have to encourage them. Others were too optimistic, and I would have to discourage them," said Groves. "Then both would go to Mr. Stimson (then Secretary of War) and tell him what I had said. The Secretary would call me in, and ask which story was correct. I just told him I knew what I was doing and would have to do it in my own way. In Russia, I would have been purged immediately."
